Burglary yielded 'enemies list'—MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Information used to compile a 1971 government "blacklist" was obtained illegally in a burglary during a fire, a Conservative MP charged in the Commons Wednesday.

Frank Oberle (PC — Prince George-Peace River) made the mysterious allegation when asking Prime Minister Trudeau for precise details on the RCMP or other security force investigation behind the list.

He did not elaborate on his charge.

The 1971 list and a letter written by Jean Pierre Goyer, solicitor-general contained the names of 21 public servants described as members of the new left with subversive intentions. It was circulated among members of the cabinet.

Trudeau told Oberle that he does not know how the information on the 21 was gathered and said he never asks the RCMP for such details.

Outside the Commons Oberle told reporters he has obtained information showing that the list was compiled on the basis of "documents selectively stolen from files in the office of a company in Toronto during a fire."

Oberle would not disclose any other details of the incident, saying he would do so today in the Commons if the government refuses to either supply the details or provide an inquiry or other forum "so I can tell what I know."

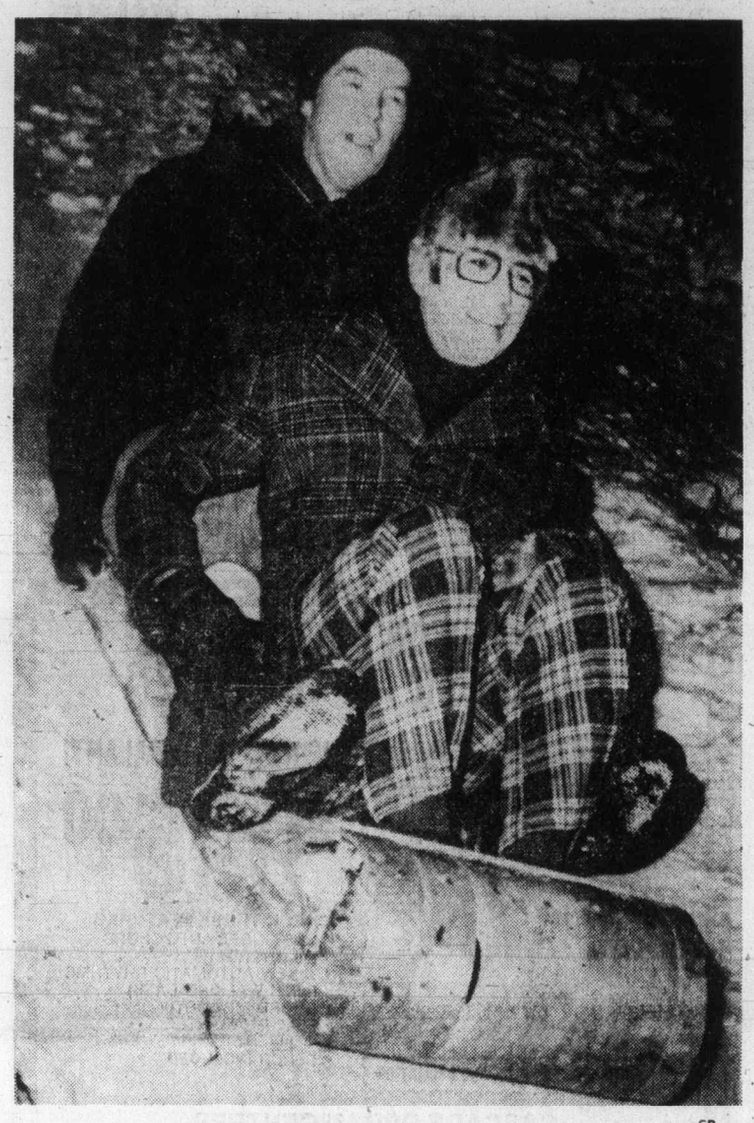

"I have information which makes me very nervous about the thing," said the MP who first divulged the list without the names, and Goyer letter, in the Commons last week.

Oberle said he told Solicitor-General Francis Fox everything he knew about the list a

Blacklist of employees denied

Bennett calls probe into ministry leak

Premier Bennett has ordered an internal probe of the environment ministry by the attorney-general to try to find a leak of confidential documents, including what has been called a list of enemies of the Social Credit government.

Bennett made the announcement shortly before the 6 p.m. adjournment of the Legislature Wednesday.

Before announcing the investigation, Bennett said he rejected allegations made earlier by William King (NDP - Revelstoke-Slocan) regarding a black list of government employees.

He said King had tabled a series of unrelated documents to "make a case which doesn't exist." Of far greater concern, Bennett said, was the fact that the confidential documents had found their way into New Democrats' hands from Environment Minister James Nielsen's office.

Scott Wallace (PC-Oak Bay) said he didn't object to the investigation but asked the premier to consider placing it under the jurisdiction of an all-party committee so that "justice can appear to be done" as well as being done. Bennett made no response.

Is it a blacklist comprised of "enemies" of the government? Or is it a letter from an over-concerned civil servant expressing personal opinions on other staff members?

King says it's the former. Bennett says it's the latter.

Whatever it is, it was tabled in the Legislature by King along with a statement charging that the premier and the environment minister were being at least evasive in answering questions.

The "blacklist" was first mentioned Tuesday by King and opposition leader David Barrett. Both wanted to know if the premier was aware that such a list had been forwarded from his office to the office of Nielsen.

Bennett said he was unaware of such a list and that, as far as he was concerned, no blacklist existed in government circles. Nielsen said he'd never received such a list.

King Wednesday asked leave of the house to make a formal statement and "table certain documents."

The documents turned out to be:

- A personal and confidential memorandum to Nielsen from Dan Campbell, head of inter-governmental affairs, outlining the need for reducing a "top-heavy bureaucracy."
- Two management charts outlining the management structure in the land management branch of the environment ministry.
- A list of order-in-council appointments made while the NDP was in power and covering appointments of aides to all political parties.
- A hand-written letter addressed to "Dan" and signed by Klaus Ohlemann.

The letter, dated Dec. 23, 1975 (the day after the Social Credit cabinet was sworn in)

Chapel users face wrath

OTTAWA (CP) — Dissident Roman Catholic priests have been warned they will be punished if they continue to celebrate mass in a separate Ottawa chapel.

The warning came in a recent letter to priests signed by Archbishop Joseph Aurele Plourde, who said the rebels' chapel was built without his consent.

"It goes without saying that the celebration of the mass and liturgical offices are not authorized," the letter states.

The $20,000 chapel, constructed by a 55-year-old postal worker, Maurice St. Jean, is the site of a revolt by conservative Catholics who celebrate the Tridentine Latin mass, banned by the church following the Vatican II reforms of the 1960s.

The letter, dated Jan. 17, says priests using the chapel face "appropriate action" by the archbishop, including removal of their powers in the diocese.

In a separate message which priests were instructed to deliver to their congregations Sunday, the archbishop urged his followers to prove they supported the church by avoiding the rebel chapel.

In response to the archbishop's letters, St. Jean said: "Great. The more publicity he's going to give us, the better."

Less than 100 people usually turn out for the masses, and the archbishop's reaction "shows how much they're afraid of us," says the father of 13 children.

Hefty cash jump for top servants

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy admitted Wednesday that senior civil servants could take up to 30 per cent of a retroactive 51 per cent pay hike in cash over a three-year period.

The increase, over three years ending April 1 this year, is for some 400 non-unionized civil servants, at the deputy minister and associate deputy minister levels.

In a statement "in reference to erroneous information given through the media," Mrs. McCarthy confirmed, however, that senior civil servants would get up to $20,000 in benefits under the agreement.

She said the New Democratic government, having signed "very generous" contracts with the unionized civil servants, agreed to a study which resulted in the "acceptance and implementation" of the raises.

Mrs. McCarthy said the mandarins, for giving up the benefits of collective bargaining, security, overtime pay and the 35-hour civil service week, deserved the compensation.

"No more than 10 per cent can be taken in cash. The rest may be used to buy extra vacation time (within limits), voluntary superannuation, education leave, pre-retirement leave, or pay technical or trade organization fees."

Mrs. McCarthy went on to say that a second level, some 800 department heads and the like, who had given up union security, the right to refuse overtime and the right to grievance, won 11 per cent a year.

A third group of about 120 employees, exempt from union membership because of the confidential nature of their work, were awarded "optional" benefits equal to 3 per cent of their pay.

Mrs. McCarthy confirmed the federal Anti-Inflation Board approved the raises because it "accepted that a prior commitment has been established" for the agreement.

Levesque rejects talks during police slowdown

MONTREAL (UPI) — The robbery and murder rate bulged in the wake of a metropolitan police slowdown to protest a lack of contract talks but Quebec Premier Rene Levesque Wednesday refused to negotiate "while police are holding a gun to our heads."

Earlier Wednesday the policemen had defied their union leaders and refused to end a work slowdown that has prompted a wave of armed robberies throughout the city including 20 bank heists. Police were also investigating five murders.

"We're so damned fed up with promises that there's no way we're going to end this action until we get a contract," said a union steward for one police station.

Hydro cutbacks aimed at commercial sector

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro officials have met with federal and provincial government building operators, and now are meeting with commercial users in an effort to urge a cutback in lighting and a saving of energy.

"Cutting back of illumination in the commercial sector is going to be the next step (in energy conservation), because it is going to pay them," says Rejean Racine, manager of energy use and engineering for Hydro.

"People are going to start turning lights off because they'll find they can't afford them."

Racine's comments are aimed equally at the large buildings with lights blazing on sometimes empty offices and storekeepers who advertise their wares at night in floodlit display windows.

He notes that in Ontario the drain on electrical energy is so acute that government action is being threatened against commercial users who waste electricity by leaving lights on.

In B.C. there still is enough energy for essential requirements but, with 60 per cent of the total electrical energy consumption of a large office building being used for lighting, a great saving can be made, says Racine.

He says the 21-storey Hydro building in downtown Vancouver has been attempting to conserve on lighting and now a committee has been set up to look into further savings by such methods as turning out more lights earlier and providing high-intensity lighting only in certain offices where it is required.

Lottery dreams breeding 'generation of gamblers'

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto psychiatrist says government-run lotteries have dangerous psychological aspects and are breeding a generation of gamblers.

Dr. Jerry Cooper, head of the psychiatric unit of York-Finch General Hospital, said in a recent interview the get-rich-quick appeal of the lottery is a sign of crumbling values in a society that has lost faith in the old-fashioned work ethic.

People no longer believe that "hard work, sacrifice and the sweat of the brow will gain them some security," he said.

Many who buy $5 to $10 lottery tickets for a chance at up to $1 million in tax-free prize money actually believe they are going to win despite odds which lottery officials admit are astronomical, Cooper said.

It is childish and immature to think that playing lottery games is the way to get ahead, he said.

"They'd have a better chance if they went down to Las Vegas and started shooting craps," he added.

Cooper said Canadian lotteries flourish on people's false expectations, just as mobsters in large U.S. cities exploit the dreams of the ghetto poor with the illegal numbers racket.

He said Canadian provincial and national lotteries appeal mainly to middle-income wage earners who see them as their only chance to get out from under mortgages and government-controlled wages.

Since the Olympic Lottery, now called Loto-Canada, had its first draw in April, 1974, Canadians have spent more than $700 million on lottery tickets in the major national and provincial lotteries.

Tests confirm PCB spill reached harbor

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

A transformer explosion at the Canadian Cellulose mill near Prince Rupert 12 days ago released the toxic chemical polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) into Porpoise Harbor, federal pollution officials confirmed Wednesday.

And the federal fisheries department on Friday advised persons not to eat shellfish taken from Porpoise Harbor because of their possible contamination.

Crabs taken from about 150 yards to five miles away from the spill site were given "a clean bill of health" by the B.C. agriculture laboratory in Vancouver, where water, sediment, and shellfish samples were sent last week for tests, a federal pollution spokesman said Wednesday.

He stressed that tests on water and sediment from the harbor were only preliminary, and further tests would be required to determine concentrations of the chemical.

He said it was certain that PCB escaped from the drainage system of the CanCel mill into the harbor, but exactly how much escaped is not known.

As of Wednesday, there were no test results on crabs picked up within 100 yards of the spill site, he said.

Materials at the mill which may have come into contact with the chemical have been placed in steel drums and sealed for future disposal. There are about 100 drums of "potentially contaminated" debris, the spokesman said.

PCB can be destroyed only if it is burned at temperatures exceeding 2,500 degrees fahrenheit.

A spokesman for the provincial environment ministry said Wednesday that 25 gallons of PCB, trapped in a sump at the mill, were "placed in a safe container until it can be disposed of in a furnace hot enough to destroy it."

There are several sumps, which act as catchers, connected to a network of sewer lines at the mill.

A CanCel transformer released about 180 gallons of PCB when it overheated and exploded. About 120 gallons were contained on the roof of the mill while the rest escaped through a roof drain and into the network of sewers which discharge into the harbor.

Environmentalist Gary Gallon of SPEC said in a telephone interview from Vancouver last week that effects of PCB are usually not immediate.

He said the danger to humans comes when the chemical has dispersed itself into the food chain.

He said PCB does not cause outright death, but may cause cancer over a long period of time.

Manufacture of PCB in the U.S. will be outlawed on Jan. 1, 1979. The oily liquid is used as an insulator in electrical equipment such as transformers because it is difficult to ignite.

Bennett orders internal probe into ministry leak

appeared to be the basis for the King-Barrett charges.

It reads:

"Dear Dan: In the last few days NDP supporters from different departments have held strategy meetings in an attempt to persuade the new ministers to carry on certain projects, take certain stands, continue policies, etc.

"It is the intention to secure as many positions as possible, even down into the lower civil service ranks. An attempt has been made to push reclassifications.

"Enclosed please find organizational charts of lands and the ELUC (Environment and Land Use Commission) Secretariat showing those that are NDPers etc.

"The key people who have influenced the NDP in terms of government policy in lands and the secretariat are: Lands: Pearson, deputy; Raine, ski development co-ordinator (on contract); Webster, special projects (on contract); Wilson, director; Edgell, assistant director; Secter and staff, environmental services unit (some staff on contract).

"These people have worked extremely closely with Williams and some have assisted in his campaign.

(The Williams referred to is Robert Williams, former NDP lands and forests minister.)

"ELUC — Secretariat: Crerar, director; O'Gorman and total staff, assistant director, resource planning unit; staff under O'Riordan, special projects unit.

"O'Riordan, assistant director special projects unit, when hired had no affiliation with the NDP club and since his appointment became the black sheep of the Secretariat.

"In the department of municipal affairs, the planning section is primarily NDP. The key position here is planning executive Harkness (one of the key NDP club members.)"

The letter is signed Klaus Ohlemann. There is a K. Ohlemann listed on the staff of the lot development unit on the land management chart.

Benneft claims there is nothing mysterious in the letter or in its having been forwarded without comment to Nielsen.

"That happens quite regularly with mail," he said. "We get thousands of letters, some useful, some advancing a political philosophy and some just straight kook letters. It's policy not to throw them away but to forward them to the minister concerned."

He said he was confident that normal procedure had been followed with the Ohlemann letter.

"We can't control, and Dan Campbell can't control, what is written to him,' Bennett said. "I'm sure that he received the letter and just forwarded it, without comment, to the minister concerned.'

King
. . . charges blacklist

Bennett said he would be worried if, on receipt of the letter, Nielsen had initiated political action against the people mentioned.

Nielsen said he had never taken any decisions based on the contents of the letter. "It was received, I presume I read it, and it was filed.'

King said he was far from happy with the government's explanation. "I see it as a list of enemies of the government," he said. King also noted that the names on Ohlemann's list had the initials NDP scribbled against their names (by Ohlemann) on the organizational charts.

He added that the entire incident "was distasteful" but refused to disclose the source of his information. "I'm sure you people in the press will understand why," he said.

That aspect of the case left Nielsen distinctly unhappy. "I am very concerned with material that goes astray," he said. "Especially material marked personal and strictly confidential."

Wednesday's documents are the second set to wind up in NDP hands from Nielsen's office.

Bennett said he too was concerned that some civil servants would forward documents to the Opposition in violation of their oaths of office.

"I have talked before about conflict of interest legislation and repeat that we intend to bring that legislation before the house this session," Bennett said.

"And I'm not just talking about financial gain, but people who break the rules, break their oath, for financial, political or personal gain."

Campbell's memo deals entirely with the management charts and reads:

● "Regional units have been heading in the direction of becoming top heavy in bureaucracy. In the old system these regions were adequately serviced by regional land inspectors and district land inspectors who are still in place.

● "The lot development unit requires co-ordinated action between the environment and housing ministers.

● "Environmental services unit appears to be a fifth wheel in view of the environment and land use secretariat and two apparently recent appointments by contract should be questioned. The enclosed chart is the general outline."

Campbell said the memo and the organizational chart were merely suggestions for the restructuring of a department that had become too-heavy. It was not, he said, associated in any way with Ohlemann's letter.

Campbell said that while he had provided the original organizational charts for Nielsen's ministry, he had not scribbled political affiliations on the charts.

Late Wednesday, Nielsen said he would be making a further statement in the house today. "After that I think you will have no problems in understanding."

As for a blacklist, Nielsen said he had never seen one and never used one.

RENE LEVESQUE: THE FIRE WITHIN

He's a lonely man, a symbol of politica. integrity who is driven by a dream of an independent Quebec. Last November he shocked the country with an election victory that could make that dream a reality. He's René Lévesque, Quebec's 31st premier, who may become its first president. In a specially commissioned article, the February issue of Reader's Digest profiles the man who wants to take Quebec out of Confederation. It's timely reading that answers questions Canadians have been asking since November 15th: Who is he? Where does he come from? Where is he going? week ago and asked for a government inquiry.

"He told me he would rather have the information revealed in the Commons," Oberle said.

But during his discussions with Fox he was not aware of the burglary. He said that information came up during his personal investigation into the matter, which included discussions with five of the 21 people named on the list.

Oberle said he hoped his disclosure of the burglary would prompt the government to disclose everything there is to know about the list.

He said the files from the Toronto company's office were found to be missing by the head of the company "during the fire or shortly after." The company no longer exists, he said.

The files contained "all the information that would have been necessary to compile the extra-parliamentary opposition list."

In the Commons, Trudeau told Oberle that "the names of the people on that list came through the RCMP security services in the normal course of their operations."

Oberle then asked whether Trudeau considered it "to be the normal course of an operation of a security service of the RCMP to illegally enter the offices of a legally-constituted corporation during a fire and selectively burglarize such an office."

The prime minister after saying he was confused by the noise in the Commons said he did not "know what the question of a break-in and illegality has to do with this particular matter."

Jed Baldwin (PC — Peace River) pressed the prime minister to make a categorical statement that information for the list "was not obtained through irregular means."

Trudeau said he was not prepared to make such a statement, that he presumed "the RCMP obtains its information in legal fashion."

Oberle would not say whether the burglary was carried out by the RCMP, noting that question was what he had in mind as he pressed Trudeau for exact details of the information-gathering activity.

New Democrat Leader Ed Broadbent continued his party's attempts to get the government to agree to give the 21 people on the list a chance to clear their names.

He named in particular Walter Rudnicki, a former top career public servant in Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. An Ontario Supreme Court ruled he was wrongfully fired by the government in 1973 for showing a confidential document on native housing to Indians. Opposition MPs say he was fired because his name was on the list.

"Mr. Ridnicki's dismissal had nothing to do with the letter which the solicitor-general then circularized," Trudeau said.

Sacrifice, thrift needed to combat fuel bind—Carter

● Ontario moves again as weather conditions ease. Page 12

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter told Americans Wednesday night it will take sacrifice, thrift and cooperation to weather a permanent energy shortage that government cannot solve "if you are not willing to help."

In a fireside chat on a cold winter night, Carter asked Americans to rekindle a spirit of unity like that of the Second World War days, so as to cope with energy, economic and an array of other problems confronting his two-week old administration.

"I believe we are ready for that same spirit again — to plan ahead, work together and use common sense," he said. "Not because of war, but because we realize that we must act together to solve our problems and because we are ready to trust one another."

Carter spoke first of energy, saying that a permanent policy to deal with that problem is one of his most urgent projects. He praised Congress for its quick passage of the emergency natural gas act he signed hours earlier.

"But the real problem — our failure to plan for the future or to take energy conservation seriously started long before this winter and will take much longer to solve," he said.

"This winter had made us all realize that we have to act."

Carter said he will complete by April 20 a long-term energy program emphasizing conservation. He said the United States now wastes more energy than it imports.

"We must face the fact that the energy shortage is permanent," he said. "There is no way we can solve it quickly.

"But if we all co-operate and make modest sacrifices, if we learn to live thriftily and remember the importance of helping our neighbors, then we can find ways to adjust and to make our society more efficient and our lives more productive.

"As president, I will not be able to provide everything that every one of you might like, I am sure to make mistakes."

He added: "But I can promise you that you will never have the feeling that your needs are being ignored or that we have forgotten who put us in office."

Guards protest inmates arrival

MONCTON, N.B. (CP) — RCMP were called to Moncton Airport Wednesday night when guards from the penitentiary at nearby Dorchester, N.B., gathered to protest the arrival of four prisoners from the British Columbia Penitentiary.

Twenty maximum-security prisoners arrived shortly after 10 p.m. on a Canadian Armed Forces Hercules aircraft but the guards were objecting to the transfer of only four, whom they said had not been screened.

The guards, led by Percy eatherby, president of th8e Weatherby, president of the Dorechester guards' local of Canada, had planned to block the passage of vehicles carrying the prisoners. Only a handful of the guards managed to be at the right exit at the right time.

They stood in front of oncoming vehicles until advised by a rifle-carrying RCMP constable that the road was icy and it could be dangerous not to move out of the way. There were no incidents and Weatherby said the gaurds would have obeyed any orders from the RCMP.

Weatherby said two of the four prisoners were involved in a hostage-taking incident last year at the Prince Albert penitentiary.

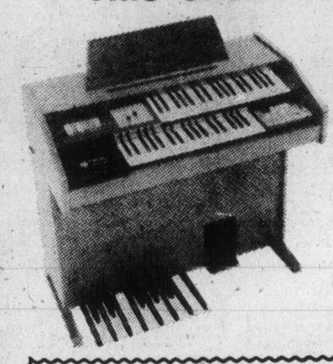

He said a committee sent to B.C. had screened 18 prisoners butat the last minute two ers but at the last minute two want to move to Dorchester.

Weatherby said the national commissioner of penitentiaries, Andre Therrien, then ordered four others, including the two involved in the Prince Albert hostage taking, to take their place.

Your Good Health

By DR. G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can you tell me about Perthes disease? J.P.

This is a disorder of the upper end of the thigh bone, where there is a softening of what is called the epiphysis. That is the portion of the bone and responsible for laying down of new bone material, making possible linear growth. Why it softens is not clear. The disease (sometimes called osteochondritis of the hip) seems to affect Caucasian males from 5 to 12 years. It can occur in girls, however, and those age limits are not definite ones.

Early diagnosis (by X-ray) is important. The main treatment is reducing pressure on the bone, but surgical procedures have been tried. Long walking casts are usually prescribed.

With treatment the affected area eventually heals with the depositing of solid bone. Untreated, the hip joint ultimately comes to resemble one with severe arthritis.

Treatment is trying for both the patient and the parents since it involves incapacitation during a youngster's most active years. I recall a particularly soulful letter from one recovered patient. It emphasized the patience, understanding and love that must accompany treatment.

Other than this I can only tell you it has been established that injury, infection or congenital defect are not causes.

The disease can be suspected when a child complains of pain in the hip and walks with a limp where there is no obvious immediate cause such as an injury.

Envoy urges new try

LONDON (UPI) — Andrew Young, the new U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Wednesday proposed a joint Anglo-American diplomatic effort to resume the Geneva talks on a peaceful transition to black rule in Rhodesia.

"I don't think the Geneva conference is dead," Young said after meeting with British foreign ministry officials. "I think it's always a very difficult job resolving situations like this."

The talks broke down last December.

Young met Ivor Richard, Britain's chief negotiator in the stalled Geneva talks on the transfer of power to Rhodesia's black majority, and Ted Rowlands, the foreign office minister of state in charge of African affairs.

Richard joined the meeting immediately upon his return from Africa and was to meet privately with Young late Wednesday afternoon.

Young arrived from Washington Wednesday morning on a 14-hour London stopover before continuing his fact-finding trip to southern Africa.

Young said he was not discouraged by Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's rejection of Richard's latest call for a resumption of the talks.

"When you've had a dozen years of struggle, it's rather naive to expect a few hours of discussion to persuade a people to change their lives altogether," Young said.

Diplomat shoots family

PARIS (Reuter) — France's former ambassador to the Vatican, depressed at not receiving a new ambassadorial post, shot to death his wife and two teenage children in a Paris apartment building Tuesday night, police said Wednesday.

They said Ambassador Gerard Amanrich, 56, surrendered to police 20 miles west of Paris shortly after the killings.

Amanrich, a former ambassador to Hungary who also served in London and New York, said he tried to kill himself but his pistol jammed, police said.

When he did not obtain a new ambassadorial post after being recalled from the Vatican last year, he encountered financial difficulties.

Described as a brilliant diplomat, Amanrich was appointed ambassador to the Vatican in 1974.

Gandhi facing tough new enemy

NEW DELHI (AP) — A rebellion in India's governing Congress party plunged Prime Minister Indira Gandhi into a fight for her political life Wednesday, six weeks before parliamentary elections.

Warning that "a fear psychosis has overtaken the whole nation," Agriculture Minister Jagjivan Ram, leader of India's 80 million Untouchables, bolted the party with five other stalwarts and announced plans for a new political grouping to work for the end of Mrs. Gandhi's 11-year reign.

The 68-year-old Ram, the prime minister's most senior cabinet member and longtime supporter, said the dissident members of the Congress party are committed to restoration of India's democratic freedoms. He accused Mrs. Gandhi of carrying the country toward "despotic rule."

The surprise defection came three days after a new non-Communist opposition coalition drew unexpectedly large crowds across the country in the first opposition rallies permitted under the state of emergency Mrs. Gandhi imposed 19 months ago.

This outpouring of anti-government sentiment, climaxed by Ram's resignation, marked a stunning reversal for the 59-year-old prime minister.

Two weeks ago, when Mrs. Gandhi announced the elections and lifted a ban on political activity, she seemed certain to win an easy victory in the March poll.

How large an impact these latest developments will have on Mrs. Gandhi's political strength is not known.

But in the last 19 months the prime minister's tough authoritarian rule and the growing influence of her 30-year-old son, Sanjay, have created dissension within the governing party and in broad sectors of India's 610 million people.

In his harshly-worded letter of resignation to the prime minister, Ram complained that she had refused to lift the state of emergency for the election campaign and charged her with depriving Indians of their democratic freedoms.

"Life and liberty of the citizens are not safe," he wrote. "A fear psychosis has overtaken the whole nation. People are living in a state of constant fear and are silently suffering."

After an emergency huddle with advisers in an effort to close party ranks, the prime minister initiated a counter-attack, issuing a letter accusing Ram of complicity in the controversial cabinet decisions involving the emergency and suspension of civil liberties.

"It is strange that you should have remained silent all these months but should make these baseless charges now," she wrote. "That a man of your seniority should choose to make wholesale allegations at this time will be widely regretted."

At dusk, hundreds of men and women of the Congress party gathered outside Mrs. Gandhi's residence to reaffirm their support for her.

The six rebels command support from the left-and rightwing factions in the Congress party and from some of India's most populous and influential states, including Uttar Pradesh, the birthplace and seat of power of the prime minister.

Furthermore, Ram's main strength comes from his leadership of the Untouchables, Hinduism's lowest caste and traditional supporters of Mrs. Gandhi.

January kidnappers set record in Italy

ROME (AP) — Italian kidnappers have just completed their most active month in history, grabbing 11 persons for ransom during January.

The gangs had some setbacks: One group freed the 11-year-old son of a Swiss industrialist without collecting any ransom. Fourteen persons were arrested for the kidnapping of another child, and part of the money was recovered. An argument among members of another gang ended in a shootout; the woman they were holding escaped and called the police, and the kidnappers were arrested.

Despite these failures, six persons were kidnapped in the last week of the month.

Gangs in Sardinia introduced kidnapping for ransom into Italy in the late 1960s, collecting ransoms in the tens of thousands of dollars. The crime boomed into a multi-million-dollar business after the Getty oil family paid $2.7 million for the release of J. Paul Getty III in 1973.

There were 38 kidnappings in 1974 and 62 in 1975. The number dropped to 48 in 1976 after judges began freezing victims' assets to block ransom payments. But police said the kidnappers got around the legal roadblocks through knowledge of Swiss bank accounts and other secret holdings of their targets.

Ransons paid in 1976 totalled an estimated $60 million. The kidnappers of Piero Costa, a member of Italy's leading shipbuilding family who was abducted Jan. 12, are reported to be asking a record $12 million.

The police have organized special anti-kidnapping squads. The rich build walls around their estates, equip their homes with protective electronic equipment, buy watchdogs and hire guards.

Canada bars professor third time

OTTAWA (CP) — The immigration department has refused for the third time to allow a West German professor to come to Canada on a visit.

The department said that Andre Gunder Frank, a lecturer at the Max Planck Research Institute of Frankfurt, wanted to attend a seminar at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., in March.

An official said it was not in the interest of Canada to permit Frank to enter Canada. She would say no more.

Canon AE-1...the revolutionary "new generation" SLR with electronic circuitry, flash and speed winder for superb high-speed precision shooting.

No other camera quite like it.
The AE-1 is not just another "automatic" camera. For the first time in the world, camera functions are under the command of a microcomputer and electronic circuits are used not only for determining the exposure, but for automatic control of practically every working part.

New Shutter Priority System.
Unlike most automatic cameras, you start by choosing the speed required to "freeze" the subject. You then focus – and the camera's electronics determine and set the correct exposure the instant you press the shutter release! And you can continue to shoot at the same speed – with the aperture automatically adjusting to changing light conditions.

Compact, lightweight, reliable.
Because of its revolutionary construction, electronics replace a great many mechanical parts. This saves weight and means a new degree of reliability and trouble-free operation...in a more compact camera that's easier to handle and operate.

Power Winder for continuous shooting.
When you add the exciting Power Winder, the film is advanced at about 2 frames per second and because it is coupled with the camera's circuitry, you get perfect exposure automatically – even at this incredible speed. It's a whole new world of rapid-fire continuous action shooting.

Automatic Speed Light.
The Speed Light automatically synchronizes the shutter speed at 1/60 second, then sets the aperture for the correct exposure and the correct flash duration.

A system camera.
The AE-1 takes advantage of the vast series of famous Canon FD lenses. It is truly "changing the course of photography" because of its new, higher levels of quality, performance – and the freedom it allows for creativity.

Incredible camera. Incredible price.
The AE-1 is exciting. And part of this excitement is the price. To get the whole incredible story, get excited...go to your Canon dealer.

No answers

IT WAS ONLY six months ago that Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau gave Canadians the memorable assurance that "separatism is dead" in this country. And in spite of the developments of November 15 and the subsequent insistence of Quebec's Premier Rene Levesque that independence for the people of that province is only a matter of time, Mr. Trudeau seems still to believe that no urgent response to this very grave challenge to the Confederation is required.

It is true that Mr. Trudeau went into Quebec a week ago to tell the people they had representatives in Ottawa and across the country looking after their interests.

He reminded them there are a million French-Canadians living elsewhere than in Quebec in Canada who, if their cultural citadel was separated from the confederation, would inevitably be assimilated into an English-speaking world.

There were only six million people in Quebec, he said (and of these 800,000 were non-French-speaking), an enclave in a continent of 200 million English-speaking inhabitants.

"This is the reality" Quebec must recognize, he said.

But in the main Mr. Trudeau's efforts were directed to the restoration of his and the Liberal Party's diminished stature in Quebec in view of the forthcoming federal by-elections — five of them. There is no doubt these seats are in jeopardy, as far as the Liberal Party is concerned. And Mr. Trudeau was as much concerned with rallying support for his candidates as he was in preaching the gospel of Canadian federalism. Perhaps more so.

Back in Ottawa, Mr. Trudeau confidently insisted Quebec would not separate.

When interviewers at the time suggested Canadians expected something more tangible in the way of response to the separatist threat, "a ringing response," was how they put it, Mr. Trudeau took refuge in the facetious reply.

"I can't ring every day," he said.

That sort of waggishness creates the suspicion that perhaps Mr. Trudeau does not have any satisfactory answers, answers that would be acceptable to Quebec's separatists and to the rest of Canada as well.

He cannot be indifferent to the fact that the country might live without Quebec, but that the Liberal Party could not.

He does not believe there is any chance that separatism will ever be effected, so his threat to resign if a referendum supports such a move is hardly likely to impress anyone with his sacrifice. For if Quebec were to quit the confederation there wouldn't be any place for Mr. Trudeau in politics anyway.

Anxious Canadians, not by any means as confident as Mr. Trudeau that separatism poses no threat, are looking for leadership in this time of momentous decisions.

They will be anything but comforted by Mr. Trudeau's evasions in the House of Commons when Robert Stanfield, former Conservative Party leader, and Miss Flora MacDonald, a candidate for Tory leadership, tried in vain to get meaningful answers from the prime minister.

"What specific studies," Miss MacDonald wanted to know, "has the federal government undertaken, and what information is being prepared for Parliament and for all Canadians, about the strong social, political and economic benefits that accrue from the federal system?"

"Mr. Speaker, the minister next to me (presumably Finance Minister Donald Macdonald) indicates it is part of our whole activity as a government, and as a party, to spell out to Quebecers in particular and Canadians in general why it is preferable that Quebec remain in Confederation."

It was no answer at all. And Miss MacDonald's supplementary questions got the same sort of replies.

"Mr. Speaker, I do not think this is the appropriate place for me to comment on a matter like this . . ."

What is the appropriate place, one wonders, for the prime minister of the country to explain his intentions when faced with the sort of confrontation Mr. Levesque has devised?

Mr. Stanfield had no better success than his colleague.

"May I ask the right honorable gentleman (Mr. Trudeau) whether he intends to continue to try to bait the Opposition with regard to this question . . . or whether he is really trying to unite this country and all the political parties in meeting this very difficult problem?"

"I do not think," Mr. Trudeau answered, "the House expected me to enumerate all the things we have done or shall be doing to try to keep the country united . . . . We have a certain approach to Confederation which I assume is different from that of the Opposition. But we shall continue to promote it and if the Opposition wants to join forces with our prescription for unity we shall welcome them, but it is not apparent to me that that is the case."

The New Democratic Party leader, Edward Broadbent, tried to get some satisfaction from Mr. Trudeau. And he did get an answer of a sort.

"Is he (Mr. Trudeau) saying," Mr. Broadbent asked after a preamble, "that the Official Languages Act is the sole foundation to the Liberal Party's approach to this question? Because that is all he referred to today. I ask the prime minister this because given the fact that it has created difficulties in the rest of Canada, even though all parties accepted it, more importantly it remains monumentally uninteresting to the people of Quebec. Is the prime minister saying he is going to keep Quebec in the federal union by pushing a policy they are not interested in one bit?"

Mr. Trudeau took an opposite view of Quebec's attitude towards the Official Languages Act, and added: ". . . when a separatist party has to say that it wants to get elected not on separatism but on good government, it proves that that party itself, the party of the separatists, does not believe that separatism has the support of the electorate of Quebec."

Here, possibly, is the explanation of Mr. Trudeau's belief that separatism is no real issue, that if it is not dead, it is moribund, that there is no real need to treat the matter seriously except insofar as the challenge may injure Canada's credit and general economy.

But surely such a situation demands the gravest analysis and something more than a casual dismissal, and decisions which may be too late if made tomorrow — or the day after.

Mr. Trudeau maintains a fine impassivity in the face of the Quebec development, just as he did when he denied there was any such thing as inflation in this country and pledged that, even if there were, he would "wrestle it to the ground."

It is one thing to be confident but unwise to be complacent. It is a mistake to refuse to acknowledge danger when it flutters in one's face.

The coming of television

Parliament in living color?

By PAUL HELLYER from Ottawa

If Marshall McLuhan is right about the medium being the message, a televised House of Commons will never be the same again.

That may not be all bad. MPs will spend more time at their tailors, their hair stylists and under sun lamps. And the PM will have to double-check the color and freshness of the rose in his lapel. But the general improvement will show.

House rules will need changing. Speeches must be much shorter. Can you imagine listening to someone drone on for 40 minutes from a prepared text? And the house might have to meet an hour later each day so that committees wouldn't be meeting when the house is sitting.

People back home just wouldn't understand the reasons for so many empty desks so much of the time.

Recently, Liberal House leader Alan MacEachen introduced the motion that would ease the Commons into the electronic age. He reminded the house that one of its own committees had observed that "radio and television and particularly the latter have become the most important media of mass communication and exert a powerful influence on public opinion." And in 1972, the committee had recommended the implementation of broadcasting as an "electronic Hansard."

★ ★ ★

MacEachen admitted that there are risks involved including the maintenance of the dignity of Parliament — a fear shared by Walter Baker, Tory house leader, who warned that a televised house was not a step toward an open Parliament, but a step toward an illustrated Parliament.

Inevitably there will be a lot of ham acting in the early stages — at least until MPs become less conscious of the cameras. And the competition for centre stage will be fierce. At the opening of Parliament, which is already televised, backbench MPs literally shove their way into the procession so the folks at home can get a fleeting glimpse.

MacEachen continued with a categorical assertion that a televised house would strengthen Canadian democracy. But he didn't say how that would happen.

The answer came from Ed Broadbent in a clear, forceful and unequivocal speech. Television might force the government to put first things first. He didn't suggest that this would happen automatically. But by exposing Parliament's increasing irrelevancy to universal view, it is possible, just possible, that public opinion would force the government to change its priorities.

Broadbent was outraged. He had just returned from a visit to Newfoundland and Nova Scotia where he found that unemployment was even higher than shown in the statistics.

But what was the government doing? Nothing. The best it could come up with after a lengthy Christmas recess was a resolution to permit television in the house to be followed by a measure related to the metric system.

If there had been TV in the house that day, Broadbent added, the people of Canada would have seen with their own eyes the prime minister's apparent shrug as he referred questions on unemployment to a parliamentary secretary.

The NDP wants TV in the house and wants it now. The Tories favor the principle, but would like to stall indefinitely for further study. The Socreds are for it but only if guaranteed their fair share of parliamentary time and copies of government statements well in advance of delivery — in both languages — so they can reply with some appreciation of the subject matter.

So TV is coming. Someday. It will catch the rare moments of high tension and drama. But for the most part, the cameras will only expose the dullness of routine debates.

The nastiest word of all

By FRANK LOWE from Montreal

It came to me in a flash the other night when my wife returned from a trip. She didn't even take off her coat — she merely stood in the front hall, looked around and said sweetly:

"I see we have not sent the drapes to the cleaners as we promised, have we?"

At that moment, it occurred to me that, despite what the censors or purists might say, the nastiest word in the English language is not a four-letter word.

The nastiest word in all the English language is a two-letter word — the word we.

The word we, used by the proper person at the proper time and in the proper manner, can do more to undermine a fellow's mental and moral well-being, than any collection of conventional four-letter words.

It starts, I now realize, when one is very young, in school. That is when the word we begins to take on its life-long, sinister connotations.

Because it is then a fellow hears that line from his teacher:

"Well, it is obvious that we did not do our homework last night, isn't it?"

★ ★ ★

After some thought, and experience, I think I have some idea why the use of we is so devastating. If the teacher had told me, for instance, "It is obvious you did not do your homework last night," I might have mumbled, "Yes, your majesty," and retired to my seat.

But to be told that we had not done homework — well, this seemed to turn one's individual guilt into a great, collective thing, and that, somehow, one had not only disgraced oneself, but everybody else in the school. Perhaps even the school janitor, at that moment, was skulking in shame behind his boilers.

Later on this we horror grows and spreads. I remember an editor saying: "We certainly would not want to print a story like that, would we?"

Naturally, the we in this case was an individual reporter (guess who?) who had loused up an assignment. But again, this sense of having brought shame onto everybody associated with the newspaper, engulfed me, and I felt more humiliated than if the editor had simply bawled me out.

At least, then, I would not have been a lone pariah, a person who had shamed his entire tribe. If one was bawled out, the others rallied round to offer a little sympathy. But once the word we was used, everybody stayed away. They did not want to risk contamination by association, or something.

Nurses, of course, are extremely skilful when it comes to using the soul-destroying we. "We haven't taken our medicine yet this morning, have we?" old Florence Nightingale will say — and immediately. I am convinced that by not doing so, I have personally endangered the lives of everybody in that hospital.

Naturally, such a natural weapon of intimidation has not been ignored by the power brokers. At a board meeting the president will smile — an ominous sign in itself — and then say:

"Gentlemen, I am afraid we goofed in our dealings with Proliferating Mulch — we have lost the account."

Meanwhile, way down the board table, one little guy is trying desperately to do the invisible man act. He knows who that we is, and he knows that everybody at the meeting with him knows.

Better by far, if the president had snarled, "Old L.H. (short for Lard Head) fumbled again." Because then old L. H. could stand up and tell the president what he could do with Proliferating Mulch — and walk out of the meeting with some dignity.

And perhaps that is it. Perhaps right there the deadly guidelines of the we have been discovered.

If someone is attacked, or accused directly, he can counter-attack. A statement has been made, and he can agree or disagree.

★ ★ ★

But when a crime or sin or fault has been covered with an arsenic coating which is supposed to look like sugar, there is no defence. If a fellow gets shirty and says, "We didn't do it — I did it," all that happens is that there is another syrupy smile from the person in charge and the soft:

"Now, now — we are not here to assess blame. We are only interested in what can be done. We don't deal in personalities."

That must be the key to we. Because when my wife commented that we had not done what we had promised to do, it was obvious that she was anxious that I get the message. But she did not want to sound shrewish by dealing in personalities, knowing full well that the personality had already done his shrivelling act.

Down with we.

Shot in the arm for Britain's tea pushers

By MICHAEL DINEEN from London

Although the price of tea is likely to be increased by a further 12 per cent in the next three months — bringing the toal rise to 69 per cent in 14 months — London tea merchants are still optimistic about the trading recovery of Britain's national drink.

For the latter part of last year the gradual slide of tea's popularity in Britain was halted, largely due, the trade believes, to the huge rise in the cost of coffee, now selling at five times the price of tea here.

Britain imports more than 200,000 tons of tea a year, more than a third of the world's exported supply, from Asia, Africa and South America. Britain is the world's most important "alien" consumer and, in a good year, the average Briton consumes at least 2,000 cups, or more than nine pounds of leaf.

Not a leaf is produced in Britain, but more than 300 years of national addiction have made Britain's blenders and tasters the most knowledgeable in the world. Their know-how is global. Teas from every growing country reach the London market and each household packet sold in the United Kingdom contains up to 30 different varieties of leaf.

Traders attribute the lean years of decline to coffee, considered more chic by British youth. But coffee never claimed more than 24 per cent of the non-alcoholic beverage market in Britain. Tea accounts for 70 per cent, milk, four per cent and the remaining two per cent is divided between chocolate, cocoa, milkshakes and health food drinks.

No tea landed in Britain yields import duty. A British government that suggested reintroducing an import tax would find itself extremely unpopular, for the idea of duty on so emotive a product has been anathema since the almost forgotten days of imperial preference, when the industries of India, Ceylon and Africa were initiated with London money.

So, if the short-term prospect for Britain's powerful tea merchants and their 50 million customers is good, some observers in Britain are watching world beverage trends with misgiving. Nobody in Britain wants to return to the days of 200 years ago when a British laborer spent a third of his wages on satisfying his addiction — nor to go back a further century to the habit of taking warm, sour beer with breakfast, lunch and dinner.

Of interest to Manitoba

From the Winnipeg Free Press

The British Columbia government's budget, brought down on Monday, should be of interest to Manitobans — who will be getting a budget of their own one of these days — for at least three reasons.

The first is that the Social Credit administration of B.C. has increased its spending for 1977-1978 by just under 6 per cent — which is about the present rate of inflation. The budget, the government hopes, will be balanced.

Secondly, Premier Bill Bennett has kept his promise to the electors not to increase taxes. He made the promise some time ago, but before the recent financial readjustments between Ottawa and the provinces — readjustments which some provincial administrations immediately said would result in a rise in provincial taxes.

Thirdly, Social Credit has removed succession duties and gift taxes, thus making B.C. a tax haven similar to Alberta. It has done so in the hope of encouraging British Columbians to invest in their home province. This is a step that has often been advocated here in Manitoba, but to which the government has turned a deaf ear. In consequence, a number of people have moved themselves and their estates out of Manitoba. Now, because of B.C.'s action, people so inclined will have British Columbia as well as Alberta to move to.

THE financial problems of the world are not confined to thee and me, to governments, to businesses or to unions. The monetary crisis has invaded the world of sport and the world of sport, especially in professional areas, is shaking, shivering and, in many instances, in dire need of the services of a good liquidator.

The demise of one, two, three or any number of pro sport organizations isn't about to bring about any radical change in our lifestyles, but I think the financial crisis of the NHL and the WHA is merely symptomatic of what has gone wrong in the world of high finance as a whole.

GREED, gluttony, voracity. Use any appelation you want, the end result comes out the same. In the case of pro hockey, the greed originally came about when a gaggle of millionaires decided to form the WHA and when the NHL decided expansion was the name of the game.

This put the player right out there on top of the shay and the players milked their new found power for everything it was worth. Salaries shot up to astronomical levels as league bid against league. Players, who had been getting $10,000 a year to play in the minors, were now getting $70,000 a year to play in the watered-down majors. The Vancouver Canucks, for instance and who cannot be classed as a major league team, had an average payroll last season of $60,000.

ALL OF A SUDDEN, owners found themselves making frequent trips to the bank, for withdrawal purposes. In the entire WHA, only one team, the Quebec Noridques, is operating at a break-even level. All the others are in debt, some of them verging on bankruptcy.

At least four NHL teams face the same gloomy end. Pittsburg, Colorado, Cleveland and Atlanta are in serious trouble and there are a few others keeping heads above water only through the accumulated millions (from other enterprises) of the owners. In the NHL, when a team falls below an average of 10,000 fans per game, that team is losing money. It is not hard, therefore, to discover the weak sisters.

PLAYER AGENTS did their level best to help the inflationary aspect of the game. Their fees were never less than 10 per cent of a player's contract and often as high as 25 per cent. They had the owners over a barrel and showed them no mercy.

The owners, of course, had it the other way for a long period of time. When the NHL was but six teams, they had their own private mint and so, like many business concerns, the pendulum finally swung the other way and they paid for their earlier greed and for the relative poor salaries they paid. There can be no question that many teams in both leagues will fold within the next two years, but hockey, I think, has at least seen the folly of the present course and both management and player staff appear to be working together to affect a cure.

PAT QUINN plays for the Atlanta Flames and is that team's represenative to the NHL Players' Association. In Vancouver a few weeks back, Quinn thought out loud about ills of the game.

"It's time to get a little sanity back in the game," he told a reporter. "The players now realize that if the owners don't make money, then they won't either. Right now there are 360 jobs in the NHL, not counting management, trainers, secretaries or other staff and we don't want to see anybody lose a job."

Quinn went on to say that the time has come for the players to take voluntary pay cuts in order to keep franchises alive. His own teammates recently purchased $25,000 worth of tickets for Atlanta home games for distribution to youngsters of Atlanta. That, then ,was taking a partial pay cut.

"IT'S LIKE trying to stop cancer early," Quinn continued. "We may be a little late, but we'll be doing something. The players have to do their part. This has been in our corner for a long time."

The first casualty will be the huge contract, complete with big signing bonus, for the graduating junior. In recent years, some have signed deals worth upwards of $450,000 and those deals were no-cut guarantees. All a young man had to do was sign his name and he was, to all intents and purposes, set for life. That dog won't be barking again. Now, only the very best of the graduating juniors will be offered contracts and they will be but a fraction of the former deals. As Pat Quinn stated, it's called sanity.

SPORT has seen the necessity of fierce retrenchment. Industry knows the same retrenchment must come and government has no other alternative than retrenchment when it comes to the bureaucracy, or civil service.

Government, however, is loathe to take the bull by the inflationary horns. The civil service, already terribly overstaffed, continues to grow — almost out of control.

If government doesn't want to embark on civil service pruning, then at least government should be insisting on a civil service reduction through strict adherence to attrition — coupled, naturally, with a no-hiring policy. At the moment, we have neither.

Government could learn a valuable lesson from the travails of pro sport and pro sport's attempt to right the wrongs. Government could, but . . .

Erma Bombeck

The loudest snore, according to the Guinness Book of World Records, was measured at 69 decibels at St. Mary's Hospital in London.

Until last night.

The record was broken in the bed next to mine by my husband, who sustained life at a rousing 72 decibels. (Seventy-two decibels is the equivalent of having a cannon go off in the seat next to you in the Astrodome.)

Frankly, I'm sick of all the therapist remedies that never seem to work, like self-hypnosis, earplugs and rolling the snorer off his back.

The following are the only methods of relief that have worked for me:

Change beds: Get the snorer out of his own bed and into a strange one . . . preferably in another state.

The pillow technique: Get a large fluffy pillow. When the breathing becomes deafening, put it squarely over every opening in his face and hold there until some demands are met.

Prolonging sleep: This one works as well as any I've tried. Just as you are both climbing into bed, get every nerve in his body on alert by offhandedly mentioning, "The tax department called you today, but will call you back tomorrow," or, "You seemed so tired today. I hope you don't have the same thing the late Fred Witherall had."

Humiliation route: Place a tape recorder by his bed and the next night when he is watching TV, play it and tell him someone is stealing his car.

Other experts believe you have to get to the root of a husband's reason for snoring. It has been suggested a person snores because he is troubled, his dentures don't fit properly, he indulges in excessive smoking or drinking, has swollen tonsils or suffers from old age.

My husband doesn't snore for any of those reasons. He snores for one thing alone . . . to annoy me. As I yelled to him the other morning at 3 a.m., "You'd do anything to keep from talking to me."

I thought I saw him smile.

'Nuclear gunslingers' lurk in Shah's plan

Oil-rich Iran has embarked on "one of the world's most ambitious nuclear power programs," according to a secret United States State Department document. It presents evidence that the Shah is planning to develop an atomic bomb.

The news raises an early challenge to President Carter who declared in his inaugural address that it would be the aim of his government to work for the elimination of all nuclear weapons from the earth.

The Shah has claimed that his nuclear development program is to be used only for peaceful purposes.

When former secretary of state Henry Kissinger visited Iran last August in connection with a $50-billion five-year trade agreement (including the sale of nuclear reactors to Iran), the Shah expressed agreement with a U.S.-backed plan for regional multi-national centres to reprocess spent nuclear fuel.

By ROBERT A. MANNING from Washington Gemini News Service

This would safeguard against nuclear proliferation in Third World nations. The reprocessing separates plutonium produced from nuclear fission capable of manufacturing nuclear weapons.

At that time the Shah said: "It would really be silly if masses of countries were to be in possession of two or three silly little bombs.

But the secret state department memorandum reveals that Iran has been working on several secret deals that would give the Indian Ocean power the materials and equipment needed to construct a nuclear weapon.

Despite the Shah's public denials that he would try to obtain his own nuclear reprocessing plant that would supply the required plutonium, the state department document claims that secret negotiations have been conducted between Iran and West Germany.

According to the document, the negotiations conducted have been "to include in the (nuclear sales) agreement a commitment by the Germans to sell a reprocessing plant to Iran should they decide to acquire one in the future."

Iran has also denied reports that it has agreed to purchase $700 million worth of uranium from South Africa, to which Iran is the chief supplier of oil. Uranium is the key raw material needed to fuel most reactors.

The state department document, however, confirms that the deal between Iran and South Africa has been made.

According to U.S. sources, further evidence of the Shah's intention comes from the massive nuclear training program he has begun, and his reluctance to purchase major nuclear materials from the U.S.

The U.S. would seem to be a logical nuclear supplier, as it has already supplied Iran with more than $12 billion in sophisticated military hardware since 1972 — not to mention thousands of U.S. advisers. But the U.S. places tighter restrictions on nuclear sales than most other nations. Thus, Iran has moved towards nations such as West Germany and France for nuclear technology.

The document states: "American industry is participating in various aspects of the Iranian nuclear program but the major commercial prizes . . . have thus far gone to competitors, owing to a conflict between quite justifiable American concerns about nuclear safeguards on the one hand, and Iranian pride on the other."

The state department also reports the U.S. firms face expensive, and probably illegal obstacles in doing business with Iran.

"Foreign consultants" are obliged, the memo warns, to operate through firms established by "two influential Iranians. This arrangement is a natural for rake-offs and influence peddling," it explained. The phenomena of questionable payments by multinational firms to foreign officials has been a source of growing controversy in Washington.

U.S. sources say that Iran's high-powered nuclear program has fuelled Saudi Arabia's fears of the Shah resurrecting a Persian Empire, and U.S. officials fear that if the Shah's nuclear program is successful in obtaining a nuclar weapons capability, it will be a source of friction and rivalry with neighboring countries. Already, according to U.S. sources, the Saudis are rushing to develop some kind of nuclear program of their own.

U.S. analysts fear a domino effect among "middle powers" in the Third World, a possible proliferation of "nuclear gunslingers." Indian's explosion of a nuclear device in 1974 triggered interest among developing nations to acquire the reprocessing plants to extract plutonium from spent nuclear fuel.

Taxation 'inequity'

Could you, or any of your readers, tell me why, unlike the federal and provincial governments, municipal financing is still collected by discriminately taxing the way a person spends his savings. Municipalities assume that a larger and "higher quality" residence demands greater taxes regardless of ability to pay; that if you do not buy a residential property then you should not have to pay taxes, and that only the residential home owner has the most need for the services of police, fire, school, welfare?

Thousands and thousands of high earning Canadians pay little or no municipal taxes, financially riding on the backs of those stable Canadians who choose to spend their money on buying a residence. Just a little time in investigation and you would find that in recent years municipal taxing has developed into the most inequitable tax of our time. And all the McMath report can do is recommend an internal working bandaid treatment of full assessment. Grrrrrh!

Residential taxpayers, arise!

Zoning

Further to an article which appeared in your paper on Jan. 27, 1977, regarding the application to have my property removed from the agricultural land reserve, I wish to add some background information.

On Sept. 1, 1976, I was told by the Capital Regional District that contrary to previous information my property would be zoned rural instead of commercial. Mr. C. A. Perkins, the regional director stated: "There is nothing you can do about it . . . If you were zoned commercial you could do anything."

With the assistance of Lyle Kahl, MLA, and R. B. Hutchinson, my solicitor, we managed to have the bylaw returned and the correct zoning applied. The action of the Capital Regional Board had been discriminatory.

Mr. Kahl went to the trouble of holding up the bylaw on my behalf to avoid discriminatory action by the CRD against a small business, a point which is not brought out in the current dispute between Mr. Kahl and the CRD.

At the local planning and zoning committee meeting of Jan. 26, 1977, nobody showed interest in my proposals and recommended to hold my property in the reserve.

It seems that the CRD is simply using the agricultural land reserve legislation to continue their discriminatory actions to suit their own unstated purposes.

By copy of this letter to other newspapers I would ask their assistance to determine why the CRD is so opposed to Anderson Cove's continued existence in East Sooke.

Queen

Why do you insist on having the worst representatives of the greedy and gluttonous American press (AP) write our news stories? Your front page story on Sunday, Jan. 30, 1977 on the Silver Jubilee is a prime example. If this distorted piece of biased propaganda was not so tragic it would be ridiculously funny. The second paragraph says it all: "Elizabeth's 25th anniversary as Queen could give Britons a much needed economic boost and a spiritual uplift after a long slide of business and self confidence."

"Economic boosts" and "spiritual uplifts" are totally incompatible. When we strive for economic gain we lose all hope of spiritual gain.

I thank God that Britons, for the most part, are a happy people, who are happy with what has been given them and have not followed the obsessive greed for more wealth which now plagues North America, and unfortunately our present government in British Columbia.

We have much to learn from Britain's rejection of material wealth as we have much to learn from the materially poor of this world.

Seatbelts

I have read with interest the letter of D. M. Serensen of Westbank on the subject of mandatory seatbelt legislation. The letter has apparently been widely circulated to the news media of the provice and has appeared in a number of "letters to the editor" columns.

I cannot but agree with D. M. Serensen's opinions as they relate to many of the habits to be found in the lifestyle of some of us today and the suggestion that people should be encouraged to behave in a more responsible way than they do.

However, I completely disagree on the subject of mandatory seatbelt legislation. There is an insurmountable burden of proof that such legislation will not only save lives and injuries but will materially reduce the cost to society of the accidents which occur every year.

There are enough auto accident victims in B.C. each year to keep one 400 bed hospital permanently full, at taxpayers expense. It has been proven that mandatory seatbelt legislation, as opposed to education and individual decisions as D. M. Serensen suggests, would reduce this load by at least 25 per cent.

This is a saving in dollars and in suffering worth giving up some freedoms for.

Teachers

It is noted from a recent issue of the Colonist that Kathleen Ruff, director of the human rights branch opened an address to a conference at the faculty of education at UBC by stating that teachers and textbooks which present students with a "white, Christian, male-dominated, middle-class view of life," are socially irresponsible.

The report does not say whether Ms. Ruff elaborated on this particular view of life. Since there is a fair number of white, Christian, middle-class males it means that if Ms. Ruff wanted her remarks taken seriously she would have to sort out quite a few different points of view, for the only really safe assumption is, that if there are views held at all by this heterogeneous lot, they are all different.

Ms. Ruff quite obviously is an expert at finding race prejudice and the class war on every page and in every spoken word. She may have her own ideas if she chooses but when she assumes that she knows what a rather large group of men is thinking she is talking nonsense. Men are often accused of not thinking at all, which is probably nearer the exact truth.

Ms. Ruff is not the first person to accuse teachers and the system of education of trying to make children fit the system. Like many others she says the system must be made to fit the children. This sort of thing sounds wonderful but we never make much progress because we cannot choose the prototype child which the system must fit, and if we did find the golden average we would wind up with something very much along the lines of that which we have already.

Ms. Ruff continues: "In a society where standards are distorted, a teacher who is neutral is reinforcing inequality and injustice." This is just talking for talking's sake. Kathleen ought to know, and possibly would, if her reason had not been drowned by her evangelical fervor, that her ideas about the distortion of standards, inequality and injustice, are not necessarily correct, and are certainly not universally held. Teachers who feel they should be neutral about such subjective matters know a lot more about what their job should be than Ms. Ruff. It is certain that the collective "non-neutrality" on the part of the teachers would prove more bewildering than educational.

Ms. Ruff goes on to complain that teachers graduate without having to deal with values, prejudices and moral issues. "They don't know how to cope with kids from broken homes, other racial backgrounds or working class backgrounds." This is outlandish rubbish, Ms. Ruff, and is perfect proof that you are so taken up with the rectitude of your ideas that you have no idea what anyone else is doing. Just what do you suppose takes up a teacher's time? Teacher's courses before graduation may lack some essentals, but it is hard to lay down rules where there is no typical guide. Good teachers learn much of their trade from experience and they know well that a "know-it-all" attitude can lead to disaster.

Reasons

I am a student in Grade 4 of Richmond school. Our class has talked about Quebec separating and we don't like the idea and here are some reasons why.

The people who don't want to separate might have stores or factories. They might not stay for long. They might close down and move to another part of Canada.

It would cause trouble for the people who make the money because they would have to print it with different pictures. The coins would have to change, too.

Litter crackdown urged in Saanich

Saanich Ald. Sandy Noel would like to see the municipality become out of bounds to commercial litterers.

Urging a get-tough policy against contractors hauling uncovered debris through Saanich, Noel told council's finance committee Tuesday existing bylaws needed tightening.

"We've got to get tough with the people creating this mess, it's essential we crack down on them," he said.

Noel, blaming the municipality's serious litter problem on out-of-district contractors, urged immediate action.

He suggested replacing the existing bylaw "with a document that has some teeth in it."

Ald. Fred Severson noted the bylaw was being re-drafted, but no action had been taken so far on increasing the $100 minimum fine.

The bylaw, he said, required that all loads be secured. "Some of the worst offenders are residents who rent trailers to move garbage."

Mayor Ed Lum said police patrols on West Saanich Road were increased following recent complaints about debris blowing off trucks. He said police had difficulty apprehending offenders and wondered: "Are we going to have police follow every truck entering the municipality?"

The committee decided letters would be sent to all area truckers telling them they have 30 days to get tarpaulin on their vehicles.

Circumstances enough to convict man

Circumstantial evidence was enough Wednesday to convict a former Alert Bay man of smashing into a beauty parlor to steal costume jewelry.

"Seldom does a clearer case come before the courts," Judge E. J. C. Stewart said in Victoria county court where he found George Alex Charlie, 23, of 859 Cormorant, guilty of breaking, entering and theft at The Haireutters, 1036 Hillside, last June 22.

Stewart agreed with defence counsel Barry Gates that evidence was largely circumstantial, "but so compelling and persuasive" in the absence of an explanation by the accused man for the events described shortly after 12:30 a.m. the morning of June 22.

Victoria Constable Harvey Stevenson said he found Charlie about 1 a.m. in a narrow alley adjoining the hairstyling shop where a front window had been smashed.

The accused man had been drinking "a fair emount," Stevenson said, and when asked what he had been doing there replied, "I don't want to tell you."

After dawn that morning the policeman returned to the alley and, a foot from where he had found Charlie, he turned up a rock to reveal one dime and 23 rings which he presented as evidence.

Stevenson said broken glass from the front window littered the shop and there were several small bloodstains on the floor. Charlie, he noticed, had a rather small, fresh cut on his right hand.

Irwin Price, 1100 Jenkins, operator of the shop, identified three of the rings in evidence as missing from a display case in the shop where, the night before at closing time, there had been 30 to 40 pieces of costume jewelry, including rings, bracelets and necklaces worth about $250.

When called to his shop at about 1:30 the morning of the break-in, the showcase was almost empty, Price said. He added that he found three rings in the grass behind the shop next day.

Building owner Victor Marnell, of 2701 Fifth, said he was in bed in his living quarters above the shop when he heard the sound of breaking glass about 12:30, got up, dressed and investigated.

A louvred window at the front had been broken to make an opening of about 1½ by 2 feet, and the rear door was standing open.

Crown counsel Peter Birkett argued the accused man could be held to be in possession of stolen articles by virtue of circumstances, but Gates said a case had not been proven and there was uncertainties as to whether the doctrine of recent possession applied.

Birkett alleged previous convictions for theft, breaking, entering and theft, possession of stolen property, and being unlawfully at large, including a one-year jail sentence for Charlie's first offence for breaking, entering and theft at Alert Bay when he was 17.

"That seems very harsh on the face of it," Stewart commented, noting there had been no probation for the man until a two-month conviction in 1975. He ordered a pre-sentence report.

Charlie was freed on his own recognizance and ordered to continue reporting to his bail officer weekly until he is sentenced March 1, the next available court day for Stewart in this area.

The course will include lectures, workshops, idea forums, activities and films.

Comfortable pew shaken by wife-chasing vicar

AARHUS, Denmark (AP) — As the minister intoned a benediction, a member of his Lutheran congregation rose in his pew in the village church of Sabro near here and called out:

"Vicar, there is something I want to say to you. This is no threat, but unless you stop running after my wife you'll be in for a sound thrashing."

Falka Gregersen, a 51-year-old civil engineer, was fined $50 by a district court Wednesday for disturbing the peace during last year's Christmas Eve service.

Rev. Sven Voss, 42, was fired by the ministry of churches, who said there were "profound disagreements between vicar and congregation." The ministry did not refer to the incident.

The minister, whose own wife had left him and sought a divorce, conceded in court that relations between him and the parishioner's wife had gone beyond mere friendship.

Erhard and stuffed groundhog

'Groundhogese' forecast gloomy

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa. (AP) — Punxsutawney Phil, the weather-forecasting groundhog, was lifted from his burrow at sunrise Tuesday and his interpreters said he forecast six more weeks of winter.

Phil was taken from his comfortable museum cage to windswept Gobbler's Knob an hour before the annual ceremony and tucked into his lighted and heated burrow.

He stayed there until Charles Erhard, president of the Groundhog Club, lifted him out and gave the forecast after talking to Phil in "groundhogese."

It was —14 Celsius with a wind chill factor of —31 on the knob when Phil made his prediction.

If Phil sees his shadow, as he has every year except two since 1887, legend has it there will be six more weeks of winter. If he doesn't, spring is just around the corner.

Groundhog Day originated in Scotland, where the early Christians carried candles to celebrate the feast of Candlemas on Feb. 2. Fair weather on Candlemas was said to mean there would be two winters that year.

When the Romans introduced the feast to Germany, predictions of an extra-long winter came to hinge on whether the hedgehog saw its shadow. German settlers in Pennsylvania adopted the groundhog as their prognosticator.

No one in this western Pennsylvania town seems to care whether Phil and his ability are fact or fantasy.

"The hoopla is good for the town, good for our spirit," said one local observer. "What does it matter whether it's fact or fiction?

"With the kind of winter we're having, we need a time to smile."

Folly to spend greedily – Bennett

B.C. plans trust fund

By PAUL BENNETT
Colonist Reporter

B.C.'s Social Credit government plans to establish an Alberta-style heritage trust fund this year or next, Premier Bennett said Wednesday in the Legislature.

Bennett, speaking on a New Democratic Party budget amendment, said it was not fair to future generations of British Columbians to take the full value of non-renewable resources to pay for benefits today.

"If there is a surplus, if we have a responsible (labor) year with no shutdowns and it creates a surplus, a part of that money, under a formula that we will be advancing later during our mandate to this house" will become a permanent future citizens' fund, or heritage trust fund.

"It's folly . . . that we continue year after year to take all this money and spend greedily, shovelling it out of the back of the truck like that former government used to do, with no regard for the future," he said.

The Alberta fund, with assets of more than $1 billion, is already being spent on such things as a new irrigation project near Lethbridge and shares in the Alberta Energy Corp.

Bennett said the fund would be started this year, given easy settlements in the 65 per cent of the B.C. labor contracts that are up for negotiation, or in any event "in the following year, when I know we'll have labor peace in this government."

The premier, in a speech that dealt mainly in partisan politics, also denied suggestions by Gary Lauk (NDP — Vancouver Centre) that the $100-million Grizzly Valley natural gas pipeline would be built with public funds.

Bennett added that when he goes to Ottawa next Tuesday to negotiate major agreements with the federal government on the northeast coal development, the northwest rail agreement, and some DREE grants for B.C., he would press a major proposal on coastal and cross-strait ferries aid.

Education Minister Pat McGeer denied expressing separatist sentiments, saying that he had merely been doing his job by asking for a better deal for B.C. in post-secondary education grants.

McGeer said B.C. was getting the lowest per-capita grant of any province in Canada for post-secondary education.

He defended the core curriculum concept, currently under attack by the B.C. Teachers' Association in an advertising compaign. "It will be in operation in September this year," he said to jeers from the NDP benches.

He repeated appeals for public suggestions, saying "while we are not confident about the content, we are confident there will be" a core curriculum.

Consumer Affairs Minister Rafe Mair, responding to criticism that scotch whisky costs more in Liquor Control Board stores than Canadian whisky, although the LCB buys it for less, said:

"There has been a subsidy to Canadian distillers from time immemorial in B.C., and it may be this should not be so.

"Why didn't (Alex Macdonald) change that when he was in power. The NDP wants us to do in three months what they could not do in three years."

He promised a "responsible" liquor policy would be introduced soon and said that would mean encouraging "happy hours" where food was provided, rather than double martinis at the regular price.

WASHINGTON (CP) — Margaret Trudeau spent much of her 42-minute White House visit Wednesday listening to a fellow photography student, President Carter's nine-year-old daughter Amy.

The prime minister's wife, who is taking a two-year photography course in Ottawa, was shown a photo of the White House that Amy had taken, developed and printed as part of her fourth-grade schoolwork.

Mrs. Trudeau, who was here to open an exhibit of Canadian art at the Hirshhorn Museum, had tea with the president's wife Rosalynn in the Green Room of the White House.

Mrs. Trudeau's courtesy call at the White House followed a similar visit with Joan Mondale, wife of the vice-president.

Farmland released to build racetrack

Canadian Press

The recently revised B.C. Land Commission has decided to allow Capt. Harry Terry to run quarter-horse racing on agricultural land in Surrey, south of Vancouver.

A spokesman for the provincial environment ministry confirmed Tuesday that the commission had approved an application by Meadow Creek Farms, of which Terry is president, to set up a permanent racetrack in Surrey's Hazelmere Valley.

The move comes after repeated attempts by Terry to operate the track on land which is in the agricultural land reserve.

In making the decision, the land commissin overturned a decision by the former NDP-appointed commission. The previous commission had twice refused Terry's application for removal of 76 acres from the reserve.

The land commission, established in 1973 by the former NDP government, decides what land in the province will be designated as agricultural and what uses will be allowed on farmland.

Commission members were fired Oct. 7, 1976, by James Nielsen, Social Credit environment minister. The commission chairman, Gary Runka, was the only NDP appointee to survive the firings.

The firings sparked widespread speculation that many acres of farmland would be removed from the agricultural land reserve to be developed as residential and commercial properties.

Terry, president of Potter Distilleries Ltd. of Langley, wants to built a 2,400-seat grandstand, a 600-vehicle parking lot, stables, a concession stand and betting wickets for quarterhorse and Appaloosa horse races.

Runka, commission chairman, said Tuesday there was nothing new in Terry's application that would allow the land commission to hear another request, had he approached the commission directly.

Instead, Runka said, Terry "outflanked us and got Surrey council to support an appeal application from him."

Meanwhile, Fred Reid, a soils specialist with the agriculture ministry who conducted the farm capability tests for the land commission, said: "I might lose my job, but I can't keep quiet about something like this.

"I see this as a matter of principle and I don't like it. Every time you get something like this there is a raise in expectations and you get more requests for land removal."

Toronto trading

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was fractionally higher at the close of light trading Wednesday despite a sharp drop on the New York market.

Analysts said the continued cold snap in the eastern United States was responsible for the heavy demand in the oil and gas field.

A total of 238 contracts were traded on the options market, up from 222 Tuesday.

Teck Corp. Ltd. was the largest of the 34 block trades with 30,000 Class A shares at $6.00 a share.

Canada Trustco Mortgage Co. was second with 25,000 Class A shares at $24.00 a share, followed by Inco Ltd. with 14,200 Class A shares at $24.25 a share. Another 2,000-share block of Inco Class A sold at $34.50 a share.

Among industrials, Bow Valley Industries gained 1⅛ to $23¾, Banister Continental ⅞ to $14⅝, Woodward Stores A ⅞ to $16¾, Stelco A ¾ to $24⅝ and Nova Scotia Savings ¾ to $12¼.

Inco A was down ¾ to $33¾, Magna International Inc. ½ to $25, Alcan ⅜ to $26⅝, Masey-Ferguson ⅛ to $21¼ and Brascan A ¼ to $12¼.

Placer Development rose ½ to $21 after reporting annual net earnings almost double the previous year. The company says net earnings for the recently-completed fiscal year totalled $18 million compared with $9.8 million a year earlier.

NEW YORK (AP) — Renewed selling in blue chip issues pushed the Dow Jones industrial average to a new early-1977 low Wednesday in an otherwise mixed session in the stock market.

Volume 25.7 million.

The Dow average of 30 blue chips dropped 5.57 to 952.79, its lowest close since it finished at 950.55 last Dec. 3.

The Dow edged up a little more than a point at the opening in a continuation of the technical upswing that began late Tuesday, when the average rose 3.99 points.

But it began retreating by mid-morning. Analysts said uncertainty over the economic effects of an abnormally cold winter in the U.S. kept the upturn from attracting much support.

Top White House officials held to a wait-and-see position on whether the economic-stimulus plan proposed by President Carter should be expanded because of the cold.

With little else in the economic news to push the market in either direction, traders seemed to resume their recent selling of big-name stocks to broaden their portfolios into secondary issues.

Among Canadian issues on the New York stock exchange, Hiram-Walker was up ⅝ to $26¾, Seagram ⅝ to $23⅛, and Canada Packers ⅜ to $16⅝.

Inco was down ½ to $33⅛, Dome Mines ⅜ to $43⅝, and Alcan ⅛ to $26¼.

Injunction refused

Ex-employees free to work

HAMILTON (CP) — An Ontario divisional court dismissed an injunction application Wednesday by General Eemployment Enterprises Inc. of Chicago to prevent some former employees from working for competitors.

General Employment sought to prevent two former employees of Craig Agency (Ontario) Ltd., a subsidiary, from working in the employment agency business within 100 miles of this city for a year.

General Employment also sought to restrain 12 other former employees of Craig from working for a competitor within 25 miles of this city for three months.

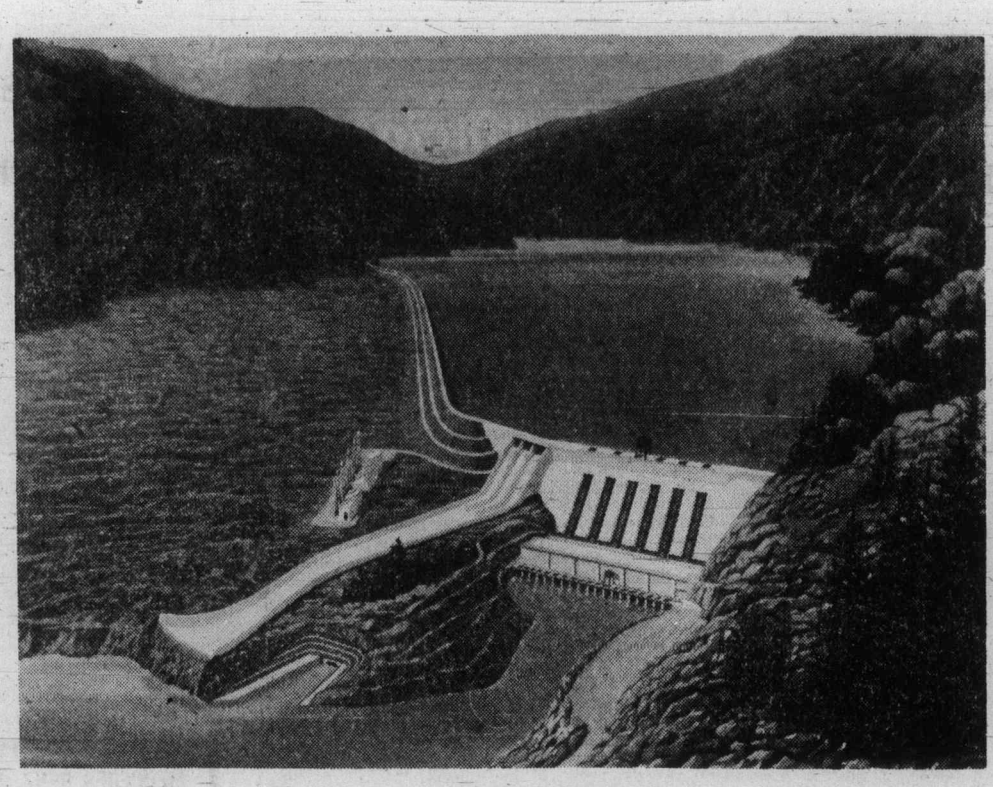

Mr. Justice Allan Goodman said in his judgment the employees could work where and for whom they wished.

The judge said a General Employment contract with its employees, forbidding them from working for competitors after quitting or being fired, was not enforcable.

Herbert Imhof, General Employment president, said the company started the action because it felt some employees were inducing others to join rival employment-counselling firms.

General Employment also has four offices in Toronto and one in Kitchener, Ont.

Artist's concept of planned Hydro dam

Hydro awards tunnel job

VANCOUVER (CP)— British Columbia Hydro has awarded the first major contract in connection with the proposed Revelstoke dam project to a consortium of two Eastern Canadian companies.

The contract bid price of $35,420,290 for construction of a diversion tunnel and associated work was made by Pitts Engineering Construction Eastern Ltd. of Toronto and Atlas Construction Ltd. of Montreal, and was accepted by B.C. Hydro, the Crown-owned utility announced Wednesday.

Four other bids were received, the highest being more than $54 million.

The contract contains provision for cancellation in the event that the utility's conditional water licence for the Revelstoke project should be withdrawn as a result of appeals to the provincial cabinet.

If this happened, contractors would be compensated for any work carried out up to the time of cancellation.

The dam will be built about three miles upstream on the Columbia River from Revelstoke in Little Dalles Canyon.

The diversion tunnel, which will carry river water past the site of the dam during construction of the dam, will be excavated in rock on the west bank of the Columbia River.

Work is expected to start on the contract immediately and the tunnel work is to be completed in August, 1978.

In addition to the diversion tunnel, the first phase of construction will include building on access road, some foundation excavation for the main dam, a high voltage cable tunnel and some clearing and site preparation.

This work is expected to take about 18 months and peak at 600 to 700 workers.

The river must be diverted by the fall of 1978 if first power from the Revelstoke project is to be available when required, in the fall of 1982.

A powerhouse will be built in the riverbed immediately downstream from the dam. It will have an ultimate capacity of 2.7 million kilowatts.

Vancouver port tonnages up, led by lumber

VANCOUVER (CP) — The total tonnage handled through the port of Vancouver last year was 40,872,000 short tons, an increase of 6.3 per cent from the 1975 tonnage of 38,457,000 short tons, the port's year-end review says.

Officials said the increase, despite a generally lacklustre economy, was made possible in part by a more stable labor situation at the port and in industries such as grain-handling and forest products.

The most significant export increase was lumber and logs, up 52 per cent at 2,521,000 short tons compared to 1975 tonnage of 1,662,000 tons.

The number of containers handled through the port, both domestic and foreign, increased 27.2 per cent during 1976, to 95,900 20-foot-equivalent units or 1,057,000 tons.

Foreign container movements, taken separately, showed a 38-per-cent increase in both 20-foot-equivalent units and tonnage, to 72,600 20-foot-equivalent units and 799,000 short tons.

Port officials said the 18.4-per-cent increase in the tonnage of grain handled — to 7,029,000 short tons in 1976 compared with 5,936,000 tons in 1975 — was partially due to the lack of work stoppages which had seriously affected tonnages handled in 1975.

Potash edports through the port declined 28.9 per cent to 1,753,000 tons. It was the second consecutive year that potash showed a decline, and oficials said one contributing factor was soft markets.

ROYAL BANK APPOINTMENT

The Royal Bank of Canada announces the appointment of M. J. Regan as deputy general manager, international, at Montreal Head Office. Previously, Mr. Regan was the bank's general manager for the U.K. and Scandinavia, based in London.

Car production falls short

DETROIT (UPI)—The U.S. automobile industry missed its January production target by more than 100,000 cars, and executives are warning the cold weather losses may show up in lower sales this spring.

"Obviously, if you're not able to make some of your popular cars, it is going to hurt sales," General Motors chairman Thomas Murphy said Tuesday, "but this should be a passing phase and I think we will come back on stream soon."

The four companies Tuesday reported January production of 708,254 — up six per cent from a year ago but more than 100,000 below original projections because of bitter cold and slumping small car sales.

Cold weather and spreading parts shortages combined Tuesday to idle 113,000 workers — one of every six in the U.S. auto labor force — and closed or reduced operations at 37 plants in 12 states.

Parts shortages were the main problem. Industry officials said many small companies that provided parts for the giant automakers had been forced to close.

Analysts said the full effects of the winter production losses would show up in February and March sales because dealers wouldn't have enough of the really popular models to meet increased spring demand.

GM, hardest hit by the cold weather that closed much of its Ohio operations, built 415,442 cars in January, up eight per cent from last year. Parts shortages have forced shutdowns or work reductions at many GM plants not directly affected by the cold weather.

Ford said it built 200,657 cars in January, up 12 per cent from 178,902 last January, and built a record 93,214 trucks, surpassing the old January mark of 85,961 trucks set in 1974.

Chrysler turned out 81,261 cars, a two-per-cent increase, and American Motors, which closed its operations for much of January because of slumping small-car sales, built only 10,894 cars, a 52 per cent drop from a year ago.

African line halts flights

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Financially crippled East African Airways cancelled all scheduled services Wednesday after 30 years in business as the flag carrier of Kenya, Uganda and Tanzania.

Airline sources here confirmed there were no domestic flights all day and no EAA international service out of Kenya all day. Inquiries for flights to Europe were being passed to British Airways.

Livestock

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 3 p.m. Wednesday at the Calgary public stockyards totalled 1,914 cattle, 15 calves and 401 hogs. Feeder cattle were in short supply and were mostly short-keep steers and heifers selling steady for quality. There were no good stock calves on offer. Good feeder steers over 800 pounds 32-34.25. Good feeder heifers over 700 pounds 26.50-29.90. Hogs: low 54.95, high 56.10, average 55.47.

Tourism up in Portugal

LISBON (Reuter) — Portugal's tourist trade has shown the first significant signs of recovery since it slumped after the April, 1974, revolution. Figures issued by the department of tourism said 2,175,370 foreign visitors entered Portugal last year — an increase of 11 per cent over 1975, when there were 1,966,409 visitors.

Survival shack near, but men die of cold

BASSANO, Alta. (CP) — RCMP said Tuesday that four men from Brooks, Alta., escaped unhurt when their truck went into the Bow River near here last week but later died of exposure when they were unable to find a survival shack only a few miles away.

RCMP said the bodies of Ronald Luck, 28, Steven Kaban, 19, and Nolan Krekli-vich, 19, had been found at varying distances from the place where their truck went into the river last Thursday.

Cpl. Leon Rumpf of Bassano RCMP said all three had died of exposure. The fourth man, Mitchell Petrick, 18, is still missing and presumed dead.

Rumpf said the men died within three miles of a rancher's line shack which had propane heat and food. He said if the men had followed the river, they would have stumbled on the shack and survived.

RCMP believe the men bailed out of their truck when it reached a patch of open water in the ice-choked river and stayed together for a mile. But the accident occurred during a snowstorm and RCMP believe the men lost sight of each other and stumbled on in different directions until they succumbed to the cold.

Bassano is 65 miles southeast of Calgary.

Provincial COURT

A 23-year-old man who kicked in a window at Paul's Restaurant, 1007 Douglas, in the early hours of Wednesday winced when he was ordered by Judge William Ostler to perform 150 hours of community service work.

James Roy Durant, who gave addresses of 52 Crease Avenue, Saanich and 1409 Camosun, pleaded guilty in Victoria provincial court to mischief causing wilful damage.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told the court Durant was walking north on Douglas and kicked in a window at the restaurant at about 12:30 a.m. Victoria city police arrested Durant shortly after the incident with the assistance of a witness, Mulligan said. Durant told police he was drunk at the time.

Ostler asked Durant if he realized how much people like him cost the public in increased insurance before handing down a suspended sentence, a year's probation and the community service work order.

In addition, Durant was ordered to make restitution for the broken window, valued at $130.

□

Paul Vincent Thompson, 22, was remanded in custody on charges of possession of marijuana and possession of the same substance for the purpost of trafficking.

Thompson, who gave police an address on Tait Street which he moved away from a week ago, was remanded until next Wednesday for election and plea.

He was denied bail following a hearing Wednesday afternoon.

□

An 18-year-old Victorian was remanded until Feb. 23 for sentence and a pre-sentence report ordered after he pleaded guilty to stealing a credit card, 19 counts of using a stolen credit card and one count of uttering a forged document.

Joseph Gerard Guenette, of 1321 Richardson, admitted theft of the card Sept. 30 in Parksville and using it 19 times for a total of $584.88, as well as forging a cheque in the amount of $200.

Bandits seize manager, wife

ABERDEEN, Sask. (CP) — RCMP say they have suspects but no positive developments to report in investigation of an unsuccessful bank robbery early Wednesday in which three masked men briefly abducted a local bank manager.

Inspector Dick Waller said everything was "pretty tied up" in the case, which began when the three men — believed to have been armed with two pistols and a sawed-off shotgun — broke into the mobile home of Lester and Arlene Jaster and bound each with adhesive tape.

While one man stayed behind with Mrs. Jaster, the other two drove her husband, manager of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in this community 20 miles northeast of Saskatoon, to the bank. However, he was unable to open the vault because it was equipped with a time lock not set to spring open the door until later that morning.

The men were believed to be in their teens, although each was wearing a pull-down ski mask.

After being thwarted in their robbery attempt, the men drove Jaster a few miles south of the town and released him unharmed after taking his wallet.

The pair then returned to the Jaster home to pick up the third man as Jaster made his way to a nearby farm house and called RCMP.

Mrs. Jaster, dressed in a nightgown and with her ankles bound, later hobbled to the home of neighbor Thelma Richardson, who said she was told Mrs. Jaster's captor had not been unkind to her.

A burned-out car, believed to have been stolen from Saskatoon and used by the would-be robbers, was later found south of Aberdeen.

Fitness testing offered at two shopping centres

Victorians will have a chance over the next week to find out how fit they are, as physical education students from the University of Victoria man fitness-testing centres at Hillside mall and the Mayfair shopping centre.

The tests will measure flexibility, strength, lung capacity and reaction time. Also shown will be the Canadian Home Fitness test, a simple exercise which gives an index of fitness after the subject has stepped up and down on stairs over a short period of time.

The tests coincide with Heart Month activities during February.

Anyone taking one of the tests will be asked to fill out a questionnaire to determine if they should do any kind of strenuous exercise, and the results of the tests will show whether their fitness level is "undesirable," (equivalent to the average person 10 years older), "desirable," or "recommended" (equivalent to the average person 10 years younger).

The fitness tests will be available at Hillside mall today to Saturday and at Mayfair Feb. 10 to 12.

Public 'too casual' in self protection

Police chiefs of the two biggest forces in Greater Victoria agreed this week there was no particular reason fro the alarming January wave of armed holdups.

Jack Gregory of Victoria and Robert Peterson of Saanich said the succession of crimes involving the use of weapons did not seem to have any kind of trend attached to it.

In the latest incident — the 13th this year — a bandit got away with $845 in a holdup late Sunday of the Coachman Inn Motel, 229 Gorge. A tall, slim man with a blue bandana over the lower part of his face handed a note to desk clerk Brian Perry and, with one hand in a pocket of his green army jacket, told Perry he had a gun and not to "fool around," Victoria city police said.

Perry described the suspect as six feet, one inch tall, with long, dark brown hair.

Included in the long list of holdups are three bank robberies in which weapons were either seen or simulated. Suspects in two of the three bank robberies have been arrested and are before the courts.

Gregory said the increase in violent cimes was not peculiar to this city but was nation-wide.

He declined to blame the increase on drugs but suggested that crime was becoming more and more profitable.

Gregory said his department was working at full capacity and "doing our utmost."

"Hopefully, we can bring it under control," said Gregory, who is past president of the Canadian Association of Police Chiefs.

He brought up two points which the general public might observe to help combat crime.

He said people should remove temptation by reducing the amount of cash available to potential criminals — and they should be more alert during a holdup.

Gregory urged people to observe details of the robber — clothes, which way he went and how, and anything else which might aid investigators.

He also called for more assistance from the court system in sentencing and more expeditious trials.

Peterson agreed that there were no "hard, cold facts" to support any theory that the crime wave was drug related.

"It's easy to say it's drug related, but that doesn't appear to be the case."

Peterson said that Saanich was also working at full capacity in fighting crime and he concurred with Gregory that there was a great deal of "casualness" on the part of the general public about protecting themselves.

Peterson and Chief Supt. Wilf Lambert of the RCMP Victoria subdivision said publicity may exacerbate the problem.

"It might have to do with sensationalism or publicity as well," Peterson noted.

"Publicity sometimes sparks something like this," Lambert suggested.

The publicity surrounding the January increase has made businesses such as service stations and grocery stores more nervous but the majority of owners and managers have ruled out the idea of keeping a weapon on the premises.

Jim Pine, manager of the 25-Hour Chevron Service at 305 Trans-Canala Highway, said keeping a gun handy would be "a foolish thing to do" because a shooting would create more trouble than it would prevent. He said a minimal amount of money was kept around the station to discourage theft or robbery.

Tom Martin, manager of the Imperial Centre, 1700 Hillside, said he had taken extra precautions owing to last month's increase in armed robberies but declined to say what those precautions might be.

At the Pay-Less Gas head office at 849 Goldstream, supervisor Richard Christie said warnings had gone out to the chain's managers but said weapons were not advised.

A grocery store owner, checked by phone said she wouldn't dream of it as it would be inviting trouble. Another said she had one and could get it quickly if needed.

Elderly need extension

Barely a month after the James Bay New Horizons activity centre opened its doors to the elderly, plans for an extension have been approved.

Victoria city council's Neighborhood Improvement Committee approved the proposed extension Tuesday provided the James Bay N.I.P. committee approves the project which will be partially financed from N.I.P. funds.

In a letter to city council, W. S. Frazer, New Horizons President, said present quarters were already proving inadequate.

"Since moving into our new centre, our membership has increased from 845 to 1,013 and we expect to enrol many more," the letter said.

The existing centre has about 2,400 square feet of space and the addition would consist of 1,800 square feet.

The addition is estimated at $100,000, but the group recently received a $37,250 grant from the provincial recreation ministry.

Consumer rebate increases

Cases under the B.C. Trades Practices Act dropped 13 per cent in volume last year, but rebates obtained for consumers were up 114 per cent.

The figures were made public this week when an annual report on trade practices was tabled in the Legislature.

Total cases handled up to the end of last year were 6,981 compared with 8,027 in the previous year. But the amount of money obtained in rebates to unhappy consumers was $797,319 compared with $372,571 the previous year.

Motor vehicle deals still account for one in every four complaints by consumers or 25 per cent of the total of all complaints.

Germany asked to delay sale

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Cyrus Vance has appealed to West Germany to delay its sale of nuclear facilities and technology to Brazil and announced the United States was revising its own policies on exporting American arms to the rest of the world.

Kenya angry with Tanzania

NAIROBI, Kenya (UPI) — Kenya has broken off all sports links with Tanzania and demanded that country halt its "provocative and indecent" attacks as relations between the two East African neighbors sank to a new low.

Curbs till 1978 says Macdonald

OTTAWA (UPI) — Price and wage controls will probably remain in effect until early 1978, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday at the conclusion of the two-day federal-provincial finance ministers' meeting.

"I would think it would be a matter of many months, perhaps into the new year, before there is an end to controls," Macdonald said.

"Sometime after the first of January is a probable time," he added.

Tuesday, Macdonald had told the meeting that economic conditions might allow the end of controls before the official termination date of December, 1978.

"The economic situation throughout 1977 and into 1978 looks relatively favorable for exit from the controls program," he said.

Macdonald said some provinces wanted the controls removed immediately, while others urged retention of the Dec. 31, 1978, termination. A civil service task force will examine provincial viewpoints further.

A confrontation between the federal government and Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau, expected by some, never materialized.

However, Macdonald would not unhesitatingly endorse investment in Quebec, an apparent divergence from the position of encouraging investment taken by Prime Minister Trudeau a week ago.

"I think that in terms of direct investment there has to be an element of uncertainty," Macdonald said.

"I would have to bring a foreign investor's attention to it," he said in reference to the provincial government's goal of an independent Quebec.

The federal and provincial governments disagreed over financial arrangements during the transition period before new federal-provincial tax sharing agreements take effect April 1.

The provincial governments have already been allowed a bigger share of tax revenue, but are still collecting revenue transfers under the old system. Some $800 million is in dispute.

"They shouldn't expect to be paid twice," said Macdonald, who admitted the calculation of the amount actually overpaid by the federal government was not yet settled.

He said he would "See what kind of compromise we can work out" before a bill affecting the dispute was presented to Parliament.

Paralysed East moves as weather improves

Colonist Wire Services

Conditions gradually returned to normal Wednesday as clean-up operations continued across southwestern Ontario after one of the worst snowstorms in recent memory hit the area earlier this week.

Environment Canada warned that another weather disturbance was moving into Ontario, but winds and snowfall were not expected to match the earlier storm which paralysed the region.

Schools in the Niagara area, closed since Friday, were to re-open today with the exception of a handful of small rural schools where children are transported by buses, officials said. Schools in other regions opened Wednesday.

To help municipalities in the storm's aftermath, Premier William Davis announced Tuesday that the province is setting up a special cabinet committee to study the logistical problems faced by the Niagara Peninsula and Prince Edward County.

In Ottawa, the House of Commons approved a proposal that the federal government consider defraying the cost of relief operations.

Meanwhile the cold, the layoffs and the fuel shortages continued Wednesday, but Americans in frozen cities and towns across the United States Midwest and East fought back with clean up and conservation efforts.

"It's still a disaster, but at last we're coping with it," said Edward Regan, chief executive of New York's Erie County, which includes hard-hit Buffalo.

While Congress worked on emergency energy legislation and officials warned of long-term and costly industrial shutdowns, new conservation measures were put into effect in some of the dozen or so states suffering the most from the cold.

Estimates on the number of people out of work because of factors directly or indirectly related to natural gas curtailments ranged up to two million, with Ohio reporting one million unemployed in that state alone.

The Federal Energy Administration said states reporting "significant plant closings and unemployment of over 30,000" included Alabama, Georgia, Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio, Kentucky, New York and Pennsylvania. States listed as having less severe problems were Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, North and South Carolina, Mississippi and West Virginia.

The Florida Citrus Comission has decided to lift its embargo on shipments of fresh fruit.

The commission imposed the embargo Jan. 24 to allow the inspection service time to isolate fruit that was damaged by the state's record freezes Jan. 10 to 13 and keep it from being shipped to market.

No fresh citrus was certified for sale or movement from the billion-dollar citrus belt during the embargo.

A CHANCE TO CHOOSE YOUR BABY'S SEX

Since earliest times, few topics have interested prospective parents more than the sex of their children. A few years ago Reader's Digest published the condensation of a book by a Columbia University gynecologist-obstetrician outlining a set of procedures for helping parents pre-select the sex of their children. Since then the doctor has heard from nearly 3,000 people who have followed his advice, fewer than a dozen reporting failure. Now a revised edition of that book has been published, and the February issue of Reader's Digest presents a further condensation. # Seghi blasts free agents

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Phil Seghi, general manager of Cleveland Indians, has lashed out at baseball's free agents but one of his unsigned players, pitcher Jim Kern, defended the new system.

Seghi, 59, in organized baseball for more than four decades, told a news conference it was time the game's establishment was heard in the face of free agents and their multi-year, million-dollar contracts.

"I don't want the ownership put on a cross and crucified," said Seghi. "Escalation of salaries is to be expected, but rules don't call for legal extortion."

Seghi launched his scathing attack while three of his unsigned pitchers — Kern, Al Fitmorris and Rick Waits — satat the same table.

"Ballplayers are poor victims of the greed and lust of owners," Seghi said. "But rather than go eyeball-to-eyeball with you, they go out and hire one of those fortune hunters."

Seghi said the thing that disturbs him is what he calls anti-ownership propaganda.

"All through sports," he said, "owners are pictured as vultures. We take the (players) from cradles and put them in slavery."

The Cleveland official said for years players were upset because they had to stay with one club under baseball's reserve clause.

"Now the cardinal rule is for six, seven, even 10-year contracts for the players."

Kern, who won 10 games and saved 15 for the Indians last season, called free agency for players a new baseball era.

"It's going to stabilize baseball," said the righthanded reliever. "Granted, it's going to be a golden era for the players for a couple of years until the powers sit down and say that's enough.

"The owners dug their own holes. They are trying to buy pennants. That's the reason for the high salaries."

Cleveland was one of the teams that entered the bidding war, signing 20-game winner Wayne Garland from Baltimore Orioles to a 10-year, $2-million contract.

Seghi defended that.

"All of us are entitled to one flight from reality," he said.

"That doesn't mean we're going to stay in orbit. We were just as idiotic as any other club."

No place on all-time lineup for modern baseball stars

By WILL GRIMSLEY

NEW YORK (AP) — None of the modern-day millionaire superstars could crash baseball's all-time lineup as picked by a man who has covered the sport from Ty Cobb to Mark "The Bird" Fidrych.

"Nobody can accuse me of being glued to the past — I have been as close to the present-day players as to any of the oldtimers," said Fred Lieb of St. Petersburg, Fla., 88, oldest member of the veterans committee for the Hall of Fame.

"Fred knows baseball as well as anyone I know — he is very sharp and contributes a great deal to our deliberations," said Joe Cronin, former player, manager and president of the American League, a member of the 12-man group which elected three new members here this week.

Lieb began covering baseball for the old Philadelphia News in 1910, later worked on the Press, Telegram and Sun in New York and returned to Philadelphia briefly before chasing the sun to St. Pete, hub of the Florida major league spring training circuit.

"Since you ask," the slender, silver-haired Lieb said, "I will give you my all-time major league lineup."

"It is difficult to leave off Hank Aaron, who has erased so many of the records held by both Cobb and Ruth but, taking all facets of play into consideration, I don't see how he could move out any of those three outfielders.

"Joe DiMaggio, Willie Mays and Mickey Mantle all were superb outfielders, but I wonder who would put any of them over Ruth, Speaker and Cobb."

Ruth's 714 home runs obscured his many other talents, Lieb insisted, while Cobb's lifetime .367 batting average and 892 stolen bases have become monuments of the game.

"And Speaker," he added, "not only batted .344 for his lifetime but was a gazelle in the outfield."

Lieb pointed out that most of these records were made with relatively primitive equipment in the "dead ball" era.

Lieb is one of the most militant opponents of the move in the Baseball Writers' Association of America to curtail responsibilities of the veterans committee on the ground it is diluting the Hall of Fame prestige with a flood of oldtimers.

"They were 'iron men' in those days and men of remarkable talent," he said. "It would be a shame to shut off further consideration of them. There were so many greats."

Torre signs new contract

NEW YORK (AP) — First baseman Joe Torre of New York Mets has signed a one-year contract, the National League baseball club said Wednesday. Torre, 36, who alternated with Ed Kranepool last season, batted .306 in 114 games with five home runs and 31 runs batted in. He is the 31st of 38 players on the roster to sign. Among the players still unsigned is slugger Dave Kingman.

BUDAPEST (AP) — Czechoslovakia's Helena Fibingerova bettered her own world indoor shotput record when she reached 71 feet, ¾ inches Wednesday on her first attempt in a tournament at Olympic Hall. Fibingerova set the former record one week ago at Ostrava, Czechoslovakia, where she reached 70-9¾.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — An assault and battery charge against Harry Neale, coach of the World Hockey Association's New England Whalers was dropped Wednesday. Neale had been accused of hitting a fan, Tricia Duncan, with a hockey stick during a melee at a game Nov. 25. But she dropped the charge when the case got to court Wednesday.

Neale was pelted with debris and verbal abuse as he stood on the team's bench and swung a stick when he felt some fans may come over the glass.

Royal introduces an independent arbitrator system.

NOW AVAILABLE!
Ask your independent agent about our new AUTOSHIELD plan.

At Royal, we make insurance work like a bridge. If you have a loss, we want you to have the means to replace it quickly.

But sometimes it happens there's a disagreement over the proposed settlement and you don't feel satisfied.

That's why Royal introduces a "first" to Canadian insurance: an independent arbitrator system called the ROYAL-AIDE PLAN. You may obtain details of the Plan from your local Royal office.

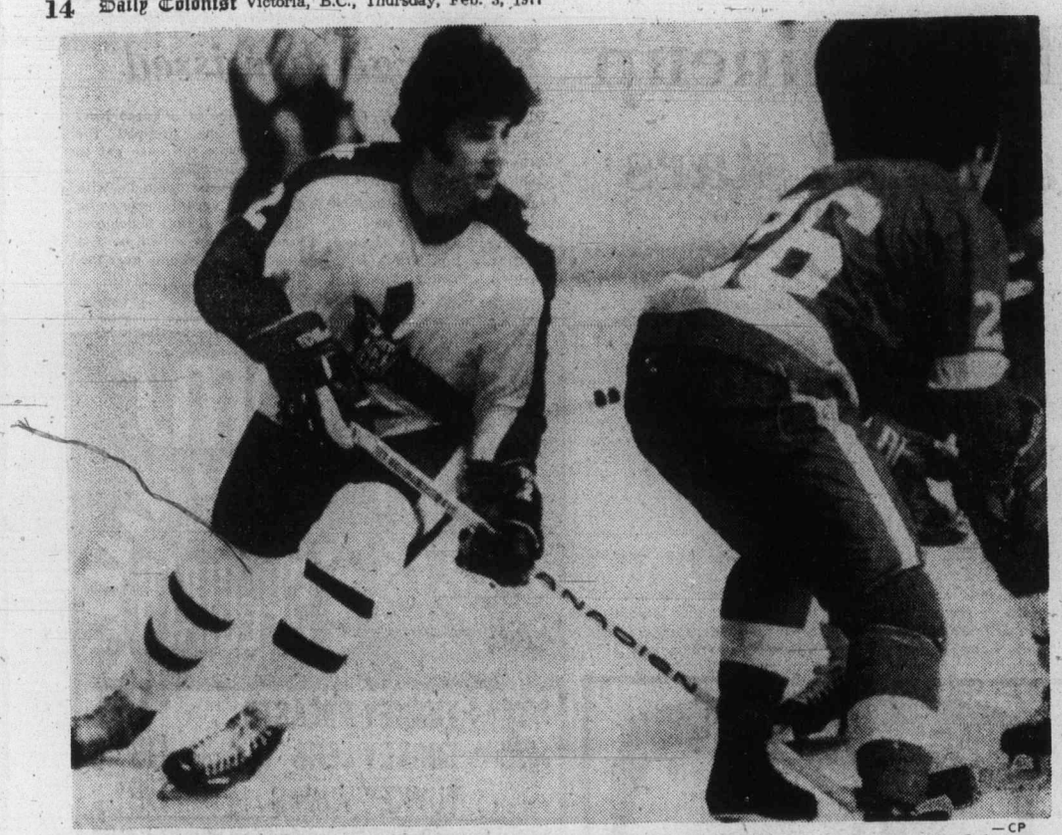

It provides an independent decision expert that our personal auto and property policyholders can choose themselves—to arbitrate those disagreements where neither the validity of the policy nor the good will of the insured is in dispute, and bring them to a speedy, satisfactory solution.

You'll probably never need ROYAL-AIDE.

But it's good to know when we say insurance works like a bridge, we'll do everything we can to make sure it keeps working that way.

ON WAY TO RECORD is Toronto's Ian Turnbull (2) who cuts in behind Al Cameron (26) of Detroit Red Wings during Wednesday night action in Toronto. Turnbull scored five goals as the Maple Leafs belted Detroit 9-1, becoming the first defenceman in National Hockey League history to accomplish the feat. — CP

Five goals by Turnbull record for defencemen

Ian Turnbull, who is partnered with Borje Salming on what many claim to be the best defence conbination in the National Hockey League, gave the argument quite a boost Wednesday night by scoring a record five goals.

They came while Toronto Maple Leafs were romping to a 9-1 win over the inept Detroit Red Wings in a game which had a scoreless first period.

The 23-year-old Turnbull, who is in his fourth NHL season, opened the scoring in the second minute of the second period and completed his splurge with three goals in the third period.

It was the first time an NHL defenceman has had more than four goals in a game, a record equalled six times and shared by five players. None of them named Bobby Orr.

Harry Cameron of Toronto Arenas set the old record by scoring four goals in a 7-5 victory over Montreal Canadiens on Dec. 26, 1917. Then Newsy Lalonde of Canadiens got even with four goals in a 13-4 rout of the Arenas on Jan. 11, 1919.

That set up a unique accomplishment. On March 3, 1920, Lalonde and Cameron, then teammates with the Canadiens, each scored four goals in a 16-3 rout of Quebec Bulldogs.

Sprague Cleghorn of Canadiens equalled the record in 1922, and then came another oddity. John McKinnon of Pittsburgh Pirates scored four goals in a 10-5 win over Toronto Maple Leafs on Nov. 19, 1929. Ten days later, also in Pittsburgh, Hap Day scored four times to lead the Maple Leafs to a 10-5 win over the Pirates.

Turnbull, who now has a league-leading total of 16 goals (for defencemen) got his first goal after being set up in the slot by Lanny McDonald, and his second came less than nine minutes later while both clubs had two men off with penalties.

Jim Rutherford replaced Ed Giacomin in the Detroit goal in the third period, and Turnbull got No. 3 with a slap shot from the point. Then he tied the record by bursting in close to bang the puck in, and the record-setter came on a feed from Salming, who drew three assists in the game to boost his league-leading total to 49.

Turnbull's performance took place in front of 16,422 home-town fans, a different scene than greeted Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks, now only one point out of the Smythe Division lead, are again on the move. But not too many Chicagoans seem to care. The Hawks ran their unbeaten streak to five games by taking Atlanta Falcons, 4-2, but only about 7000 fans were there to watch.

Pittsburgh Penguins, 9-4-3 since Christmas, continued their drive to nail down second place in the Norris Division with a 5-2 home-ice win over Minnesota North Stars.

In Los Angeles, the Kings topped Washington, 7-2.

Barons' players, owner given proposal deadline

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Barons were asked Wednesday to take a 27 per cent deferment in pay to keep the National Hockey League team alive the rest of the season, and some quickly agreed.

The rest have until noon Friday to make up their minds, said Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, adding that he recommended acceptance.

The deferment plan was conditional on unanimous agreement by the players, Eagleson said.

And Mel Swig, the beleaguered San Francisco businessman who owns a major interest in the team that has yet to complete its first season here, also was given a deadline.

John Ziegler, chairman of the NHL board of governors who joined Swig and Eagleson in four hours of talks here, said the league would wait until May 31 for payment of the $250,000 the team owes, but that would be it.

The league has put $8 million into the team, virtually all of it during the club's previous nine-year California sojourn as the Golden Seals, "and that's enough," Ziegler said.

The pay delay proposal included no general guarantee the club would operate next year, Eagleson said.

But it did include a guarantee the 24 players involved would get the full 72 per cent remainder of their pay through the rest of the season, if they accept the plan, Eagleson said.

He said Swig agreed to his requirement the money go into a bank as prepayment to assure the salaries would be available.

The team wasn't paid on schedule Monday or Tuesday.

Eagleson said the future of the team now depends on the players and on the willingness of the board of governors to go along with the plan when it meets Feb. 11 in Chicago.

If the players agree and the governors agree, then by Feb. 17 Swig "has to fish or cut bait," he added.

Under league rules covering pay default, a player becomes a free agent if payment isn't made within 15 days after he gives notice to the team owner.

If either group rejects the plan, Eagleson went on, "I'm certain that between the 12th and the 17th that Mr. Swig will liquidate his assets in the franchise in the same manner as anyone else would."

He said that by evening, 16 players had given Swig default notices and 10 had signed the pay agreement.

The deferment is retroactive to Jan. 1, and that figures out to 13 per cent for the season, he added.

Its aim is simple: "the survival of the club," Eagleson said.

And the association's position also is clear-cut, he went on.

"There are six players that are crucial to the franchise, six more that are marketable, and 12 of the 24 people will not find jobs," he said. "At least four of those people (the crucial six) have to remain in Cleveland if the franchise is to remain credible."

Swig, of course, may sell or trade players within the 15-day default deadline, he said, adding that "if there are four that agree to stay and two or more that are not interested and Mr. Swig can replace them," then that too might be okay.

Meanwhile, he said, the players have an obligation to play the next 14 days without pay before they are on their own.

Dale loses ground

Dale Shaw lost ground Wednesday in her bid to qualify fodr the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

The former Victoria champion, Canada's woman golfer of the year in 1975, had putting miseries in the second round of the 72-hole test tournament at Sarasota, Florida, and is 17th at the half-way point.

She carded a 79 Wednesday, seven over par on the 6302-yard Bent Tree Golf and Racquet Club course, and is at 159 for the first 36 holes.

That's nine strokes behind two U.S. golfers, Debbie Massey and Debbie Skinner, who share the lead. Miss Massey, who retained the Canadian amateur championship last year, made a big leap Wednesday, carding a two-under 70 to get her 150.

Conditions Wednesday were about the same as for the opening round on Tuesday — definitely on the cool side with what was described as a two-club wind blowing throughout.

The decision on how many in the field of 48 will get cards wasn't to be announced until this morning. It had been previously announced that LPGA playing cards would be issued to everyone scoring 312 or better for the 72 holes, but if a maximum number is set it may not be necessary to score 312.

It is, however, likely that Miss Shaw is currently on the shady side.

"I know," she said Wednesday, "that I will have to do better in the third round."

She felt that a 76, or even a 77, today would keep her in the running to be among the new card-holders.

Eastern skaters earn two titles

CALGARY (CP) — Lorri Baier of Mitchell, Ont., and Lloyd Eisler of Seaforth, packed their 2½ minute program with activity and combined to complete the first throw double axel in Canadian novice competition as they won the novice pairs title Wednesday in the 1977 Canadian figure skating championships.

The brilliant performance of the acrobatic 13-year-olds gave teams developed by coach Kerry Leitch of Preston Figure Skating Club the top two spots. Lee-Ann Jackson of Brantford and Roger Collins-Wright of Cambridge combined to finish second.

Vanessa Howe and Jeffrey Mawle of Victoria finished eighth.

Earlier, Marianne Van Bommel and Wayne Deweyert of St. Thomas Figure Skating Club won the novice dance event to become the first champions of the competition.

The Ontario youngsters were named first by five of seven judges to nip Laura King and Doug Kelly of the Ottawa Minto Club for the title.

Rhonda and Jamie Greenwood of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., were third, followed by Michael Tracy of Coquitlam and Kerry Spong of Vancouver, Jennifer and Oliver Coomes of Victoria and Janet and Terry Scheffee of Peterborough, Ont.

Gulls upset Fuller Lake, Trios win

Juan de Fuca King John Gulls upset Fuller Lake Flyers 5-3 Wednesday night and retained fourth place in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Gulls, who lead Oak Bay Trios by two points in the battle for the final playoff spot, scored the only two goals of the third period at Fuller Lake Arena to earn their 15th win of the season.

In a game at Lake Cowichan, the Trios romped to a 7-1 win over Lake Cowichan Bairds Trucking. Trios play host to the Gulls tonight at Oak Bay Arena.

Tom Wilson, Kevin Kellington, Brad Girling, Bob Grant and Perry Therrien scored for the Gulls and Rob Kadun, with two goals, and Wayne Wrigglesworth scored for the third-place Flyers.

Stan Alstad and Clay Bertoia scored two goals each for the Trios, Ken Wilson, Kerry Blain and Steve Hunt were the other marksmen and Shindy Kalar scored the Lake Cowichan goal.

Top calibre volleyball at UVic on weekend

Top international-calibre action is in store for volleyball fans this weekend when 28 teams take part in the University of Victoria tournament for both men and women.

Twelve women's teams have entered the three-day competition, which starts Friday afternoon and continues through Sunday afternoon at the McKinnon gymnasium, the UVic old gym and, on Saturday, Mount Douglas high school.

Pepperdine University of Los Angels and two Seattle squads add international flavor to the women's division but the team to beat will probably be Vancouver Chimos, who have had a virtual monopoly on the Canadian championship for the past decade. Olympic team members Cathy Girvan and Patty Olson and former national team players Helen Hunt and June Wilms give the Chimos the pre-tourney edge.

Sandy Vrba, a U.S. national team player in 1974, heads the Pepperdine squad.

University of B.C. Thunderettes, UVic Vikettes, University of Calgary, Edmonton Phoenix, J.P. Volleyball club of Surrey, two Victoria "Y" teams and Victoria Volleyball Club round out the field.

UBC features national junior team player Dorothy Schwaiger while the Kent Andrews-coached Vikettes have national junior team player Linda Chiu, Denise Montgomery, Alison Penny and Diana McDonald in the lineup and could produce several upsets.

The men's division boasts one of the most competitive fields ever assembled for a Canadian tournament.

The Gama Filho University team, Brazilian intercollegiate champions last year, will be here and the squad will be led by Paulo Roberto de Frietas, a national team member and one of the top setters at the 1976 Olympics in Montreal.

University of Winnipeg has national team players Garth Pishke, a centre blocker, and Don Michelski, a setter. Pishke is regarded as the top player on the Canadian team and is one of the top jumpers in the world.

Victoria's Greg Russell, another national team player, sparks the University of Manitoba entry, handled by national team coach Bill Neville.

Also competing are the Calgary Volleyball Club, University of B.C. Thunderbirds, UVic Vikings, Loyola University of Southern California, Vancouver Volleyball Club, Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland, Edmonton Phoenix, B.C. Olympics, Eugene, Ore. Volleyball Club, and three B.C. provincial teams.

Coached by Al Scott, the Vikings face Brazil at 9 p.m. Friday in one of the feature matches.

Action starts at 4 p.m. Friday and resumes Saturday at 9 a.m. Quarter-finals in the men's division will be played Saturday evening and semi-finals and finals in both divisions will be held Sunday with the women's final at 1 p.m. and the men's final at 2:30 p.m.

Vic High takes lead as St. Mikes idle

Victoria High took advantage of a schedule change to move into first place Wednesday in the Greater Victoria inter-high school rugby league.

The Titans scored a 22-10 win over visiting Spectrum and jumped two points up on St. Michael's University School, which had a match with Claremont Spartans postponed until Friday.

Mount Douglas Mountainmen moved into a second-place tie with SMU by thumping Reynolds, 39-10; Parkland Panthers trimmed Belmont, 20-0, and Oak Bay Barbarians won by default over Esquimalt. Oak Bay played an exhibition match with Alberni Chieftains and were 21-0 winners.

Tim White led the Vic High attack with two tries, Steve Forsyth scored a try and penalty goal, Tim Curtis added a try and Mike deGoede booted a penalty goal. Peter Smillie and Brian Bell scored tries for Spectrum and Smillie added a conversion.

At Mount Douglas Bob Young (2), Bruce Halter, Ian Butters, Jim Campbell and Wayne Mahar scored tries, Kerry Sheppard booted a conversion and penalty goal and Dave Zaparinuk kicked three conversions and a penalty goal.

Lance Mitchell scored a try and Louie Garroway booted two penalty goals for Reynolds, which trailed by only 13-10 at the half.

Brett Hartley scored two tries for Parkland, Darryl Stubbs scored a try and added two conversions and Darryl Bussey scored a try.

At Oak Bay, Steve Bristow (2), Steve Brice and Craig Bentley scored tries, Mark Britner booted a penalty goal and Andy Johnstone added a conversion.

Bruins start long trip by bowing to Chiefs

New Westminster Bruins started their longest road trip of the Western Canada Hockey League season on a losing note Wednesday.

The Western Division leaders, scheduled to play 11 games in 14 nights, took a 5-2 setback from the Chiefs in Kamloops. Bruins, who enjoy four games in hand on the second-place Chiefs, fell behind 1-0 in the first period, 3-0 in the second and were down 5-1 before Brad Maxwell scored his second goal of the game late in the final 20 minutes.

The victory moved the Chiefs one point up on Victoria Cougars but the Cougars now have three games in hand.

In other Wednesday action, Portland Winter Hawks moved to within four points of the Cougars by thumping the visiting Lethbridge Broncos, 6-3; Flin Flon Bombers blasted Winnipeg Monarchs, 13-5; Saskatoon Blades topped Regina Pats, 7-3, and Brandon Wheat Kings were 7-3 winners over Medicine Hat Tigers.

Wayne Babych scored twice for the Winter Hawks, who visit Victoria for a Saturday night game.

In Flin Flon, Jordy Douglas, Ray Neufeld and Kim Davis each scored three goals for the Bombers and in Brandon, Dan Bonar was a three-goal marksman for the Wheat Kings.

Bjorn Borg and fiancee Mariana

Borg, fiancee sign big pacts

NEW YORK (AP) — Wimbledon champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden signed a reported $1.5 million contract Wednesday with Cleveland Nets of World Team Tennis, giving the league its highest ranking men's player.

Joe Zingale, Cleveland president, said at a news conference in New York that Borg and his fiancee, Mariana Simonescu of Romania, had signed multi-year contracts. No details were revealed.

"It's a fantastic feeling to have signed the most famous player in tennis," said Zingale. "I believe Bjorn will be the most dominant player in the game for the next decade."

World Championship Tennis, meanwhile, disclosed Tuesday that Borg would not defend his title this year in its championship tournament due to scheduling conflicts.

"Borg had more than a verbal commitment with us," said WCT publicity director George Pharr. "His people signed for him but there is a scheduling problem."

Part of the scheduling problem may result from Borg's participation in the WTT beginning in April.

Munroe to tackle rebuilding chore

Bill Munroe has agreed to return as coach of Victoria McDonalds, Canadian junior "A" lacrosse champions in 1976, but with slightly different responsibilities.

Munroe, who resigned last September after coaching the club for 13 seasons, will concentrate on a major rebuilding program and leave the day-to-day coaching to two assistants to be named later. McDonalds lost 11 players following the Minto Cup victory but have nine returnees for the upcoming Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League season.

Other executives elected Wednesday were president Ed Hardy, Vice-president Bob Snell, secretary-treasurer George Jakubowski, directors Al Dysart and Harry Wyckoff and general-manager Bob Reid, returning for his sixth season in the post.

Reid said gym workouts will begin March 1 and training camp will start April 3 at Esquimalt Sprt Centre.

Graduating junior standouts want no part of Canadiens

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Three graduating junior hockey players have taken an early stand against playing for Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

Brad Maxwell, Barry Beck and Mark Lofthouse of New Westminster Bruins of the Western Canada Hockey League are all 19 years old and will be eligible for NHL's amateur draft this spring. Hockey scouts consider the trio to be among the best graduating juniors in the country.

They share a common belief that being drafted by the powerful Canadiens would prevent them from playing immediately in the NHL.

"I want to go to an NHL team which will use me right away," Maxwell, a defenceman, said in a recent interview. "No one is going to step into that Montreal lineup for years, especially on defence.

"I'd like to go to a team like Minnesota or Vancouver because they need help on defence and I'd get a chance to play next year."

Beck, a six-foot-one, 210-pound defenceman, said he has no preference in the draft as long as he isn't selected by Montreal.

"It might be six years before a defenceman can break into the Montreal lineup," said Beck. "There are lots of teams that need immediate help on defence and I want a chance to play right away in the NHL."

Lofthouse, a high-scoring right winger, said it would be almost impossible to break into the Montreal lineup, even though right wing is considered the Canadiens' weakest position.

"The Canadiens have lots of good, young right wingers playing in Nova Scotia, I'm told," said Lofthouse. "It's been my dream ever since I can remember to play in the NHL and I don't want to get stuck in the minors for years like some of the Montreal drafts.

"I think I'll be a first-round pick, possibly in the first 10, and I want to play in the NHL as soon as possible."

The Canadiens annually manage to secure more than one first-round draft choice and have had as many as four in the initial round. Montreal already has two first-round picks in the 1977 draft with the acquisition of Colorado Rockies' first selection.

Maxwell and Beck are expected to be taken in the first five picks.

Beck is a Vancouver native who has played well in international games against teams from the Soviet Union. He uses his size to advantage along the blueline and was so aggressive last season he had 325 penalty minutes.

"I've become a better player this season by improving my skating," said Beck. "We work with a power-skating instructor and he's helped me develop a longer stride, quicker start and better push off."

Beck said that he has retained Dave Schatia of Montreal as his agent on the advice of Ernie McLean, coach of the Bruins.

Maxwell, Brandon-born and Victoria-raised, has already signed with super agent Alan Eagleson of Toronto because "he did a good job for a friend of mine."

Lofthouse is the only one of the trio who is not playing as well as he did last season. He said the reason is that New Westminster lost three centres from last year's team — Fred Berry, Rich Shinske and Clayton Pachal — when they were drafted by NHL teams.

"I scored 68 goals last season because the centres always got me the puck," said Lofthouse, a New Westminster native. "This year I've been trying to do it all myself and it's hurt everyone.

"I'm coming out of it, though, and I'll show the scouts that I'm a first-round pick the rest of the season."

Lofthouse does not have an agent yet.

The Bruins were Memorial Cup finalists the last two years. They were beaten by Toronto Marlboros in the 1975 final at Kitchener, Ont., and lost to Hamilton Fincups in the final last year at Montreal.

The national Junior final will be played at the Pacific Coliseum in nearby Vancouver this May.

Maxwell, Beck and Lofthouse agree that the World Hockey Association is an alternative to playing in Montreal should they be drafted by Montreal, but only Maxwell has considered playing in the WHA.

"It might be a good experience for one year," he said, "but that would be it . . . a stepping stone to the NHL."

Blazers ace on sidelines

PORTLAND (AP) — Bill Walton, star centre with Portland Trail Blazers of the National Basketball Association, returned here Wednesday with an inflamed Achilles tendon.

Publicity director John White said the tendon hurt too much for Walton to play, adding that in addition to Wednesday night's game against Kansas City Kings, Walton would miss tonight's game at Indianapolis against the Pacers. An earlier report that Walton's right foot would be placed in a cast was discounted.

Ipswich ousted from cup event

LONDON (Reuter) — Ipswich Town, English First Division title contenders, was knocked out of the Football Association Cup competition in a fourth-round replay Wednesday night, going down 1-0 away to Wolverhampton Wanderers.

Wolves striker John Richards scored in the 22nd minute, rising high in the air to head home his 10th goal in 12 league and Cup games. Richards had also scored both Wolves goals in the 2-2 draw in Ipswich last Saturday.

Ipswich had several chances to draw level, but Trevor Whymark and Paul Mariner both missed golden opportunities.

Derby County got a goal from Leighton James to win its fourth-round replay against Fourth Division Colchester, 1-0 ,while in the only First Division contest, Leeds United defeated Birmingham 1-0 to repeat its victory over the side it beat in the Cup last Saturday.

There was more bad luck Wednesday for Scottish international centre-half Jim Holton, transfer listed recently by Sunderland. The former Manchester United defender fell awkwardly after a tackle in a reserve game and was carried off with a broken leg for the third time in his career.

In a Scottish Cup third round replay, Celtic hammered Airdrieonians 5-0, four goals coming from Joe Craig.

Krautzun continues dual role

VANCOUVER (CP) — Eckhard Krautzun agreed Wednesday to continue as coach of bath Vancolver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League and Canada's team in the World Cup competition.

Krautzun now is under contract to the Whitecaps until Nov. 1 and also has an agreement with the Canadian Soccer Association that concludes in October, 1978, when the World Cup is played in Argentina.

The 35-yeqr-old West German native coached the Whitecaps into the NASL playoffs for the first time in the Western Division in 1976 and later guided Soccer Canada past the United States and into the second round of the World Cup elimination series for the first time ever.

Krautzun also will have a full-time assistant coach in 1977 so that he can devote time to both coaching jobs.

Krautzun said he will leave for Europe shortly to find an English-speaking assistant coach and hopefully sign five import players for the 1977 season.

General-manager John Best said the Whitecaps will open their 1977 schedule at home April 8 against Portland Timbers of the Wesern Division. Vancouver's 13-game home schedule ends Aug. 4 against Los Angeles Aztecs.

Vancouver will play seven Sunday home games, three Tuesdays, two Thursdays and one Friday.

Best also said he was attempting to schedule up to four international games at Empire Stadium. The Whitecaps' largest growd in 1976 — over 16,000 — attended an exhibition game against Manchester United.

The Whitecaps had a 14-10 record last season under Krautzun in his first season in Vancouver.

The club also announced that veteran defender Sam Lenarduzzi had been appointed media relations director. Lenarduzzi said he wasn't sure whether his new position would allow him to be a full-time player in 1977.

Out after one game

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — New York Islanders defenceman Bob Lorimer, who played in his first National Hockey League game Tuesday, underwent surgery Wednesday for removal of his spleen and will miss the remainder of the season.

The 23-year-old Lorimer was operated on at Good Samaritan Hospital by Drs. Rudolph Domingo and Robert McCormack because of an injury sustained to the blood vessels attached to the spleen. When the accident occurred was not known. He was expected to be in hospital six to eight weeks.

Grahame sidelined

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association said Wednesday they are recalling goaltender Lynn Zimmerman to replace injured starter Ron Grahame. Grahame suffered a groin pull in Tuesday night's 6-1 victory over Calgary Cowboys and will be out of action seven to 10 days, Aeros trainer Bobby Brown said. Zimmerman, 34, has played in 44 games for Erie in the North American Hockey League this season and has compiled a 20-23-1 record.

Mainland quartets coming

Ten rinks from the Lower Mainland area, two of them from New Westminster, are included in the out-of-town entry of 20 rinks set to take part in the annual senior men's bonspiel at the Victoria Curling Club.

Entries also include rinks from Edmonton, Seattle, Vernon and Trail, which has two entries, and five rinks from other Island centres.

Bonspiel play starts at 8 on Tuesday morning and will be confined to the daytime for the duration. Draws are at 8 and 10:15 a.m. and 12:30 and 2:45 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday. A fifth draw, at 5 p.m., in scheduled on Thursday and two draws Friday will complete play. There are four events on a Chisholm draw.

First draw for each of the 48 rinks:

8:00 a.m. — E. McDormand vs. E. Dobson; R. Bradshaw vs. R. Stephenson; Harry Daniel vs. E. Johnston; E. Wounell (MB) vs. J. Smith; W. Cowie vs. J. Dahl; S. Thomson vs. Ray Kelly; G. Inglis vs. J. Graham; H. Thom (Sea) vs. J. Duffus.

10:15 a.m. — D. Taylor (MB) vs. R. Darwin (Van); W. Walkey (Van) vs. W. Sumerfeldt; R. Yells vs. G. Hewgill (Van); A. Merlo (Trail) vs. W. Shearing; G. Walker vs. B. Wright (NW); G. Evans vs. G. Anderson (NW); A. More vs. E. McLeod; O. Gill (Trail) vs. J. Tang.

12:30 p.m. — L. Toby vs. A. Merrick (Van); R. Service (Qual) vs. L. Walker; E. Bilquist (Nan) vs. A. Dodd (Van); L. Court vs. G. Moore; C. Pepper (Van) vs. S. Cuthbert (Edm); H. Helm (D) vs. M. MacDonald; R. Rudoski (Van) vs. H. Webb (BVernon); D. Sutherland vs. D. Dumphy (Van).

India wins fourth test

BANGALORE, India (Reuter) — India duly won the fourth test Wednesday, but a splendid innings of 81 none out by England wicket-keeper Alan Knott made them work unexpectedly hard to achieve it.

The final margin of victory was 140 runs, considerably less emphatic than seemed likely at the start of the day when England resumed at 34 for four. They had begun the second innings Tuesday needing 318 to win and in 9.5 overs lost their first four wickets for eight runs.

When overnight batsmen Roger Tolchard and Tony Greig were out in the first eight overs Wednesday morning to make England 61 for six, the end seemed imminent. But Knott, ably supported by the tailenders, extended the match past the lunch interval and the total reached 177 before Bob Willis was last out, stumped by Syed Kirmani off Bishen Bedi.

Veteran signs

WHA hopes to patch relations

TORONTO (CP) — Bill MacFarland, president of the World Hockey Association, agrees the latest breach in pro hockey relations must be resolved.

In a telephone interview from his home in Phoenix, MacFarland was responding Wednesday to word that the International Ice Hockey Federation will not agree to a WHA tour next season of four European clubs unless Hockey Canada and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association request it.

Alan Eagleson, Hockey Canada's international committee chairman, said Tuesday the WHA's proposal had been rejected by IIHF president Dr. Guenther Sabetzki.

Some members of the WHA threatened to pull out of Hockey Canada if their plan — to pit the Soviet Union, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland against all 12 WHA teams with results to count in WHA standings — was rejected.

"There's a divergence of opinion in our league about divorcing ourselves from Hockey Canada," MacFarland confirmed. "I feel we must work within Hockey Canada.

"What I don't want to see is for us to become polarized. Already there are some people in our league talking litigation. I hope to meet with Eagleson as soon as I get back to Toronto."

MacFarland said he met with officials of the United States AHA in Denver on the weekend and had that group's support in arranging the tour.

The IIHF constitution requires consent of the home country's representative to any international games in its country. Eight of the 12 WHA teams are U.S.-based.

"Our people are concerned they are not getting a fair shake with Hockey Canada, that all plans seem to benefit the NHL, not us," MacFarland said.

Block rink B.C. champs

CRANBROOK (CP) — The Jake Block rink from Abbotsford, won the British Columbia senior men's curling championship Tuesday, defeating the Ed Huitema rink from Trail, 10-5.

The win followed Block's 8-3 victory Monday in the best-of-three final.

The Block rink will represent B.C. in the Canadian Senior men's championship in Winnipeg Feb. 20 to 25. Other members of the rink are Tony Folk of White Rock and Dale Longmuir and Frank Granger, both from Haney.

Nets trade ace

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — John Williamson, the New York Nets' leading scorer this season, was traded to Indiana Tuesday for the Pacers' No. 1 pick in the 1977 NBA college draft and undetermined future considerations.

Next game: Tonight — Athletics vs. Stevens, 9 p.m., Lambrick Park School.

John Lauvaas, who scored 20 of his 28 points in the second half, snapped a tie in the final seconds Wednesday to give Oak Bay a 75-73 win over Trilec Installations in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Oak Bay Junior High School.

Tom Hatcher added 20 points for the winners, who moved to within two points of first-place Victoria Athletics.

Steve Pescod led Trilec with 27 points.

In a Tuesday game, Little Giant Bakeries upset James Bay 70-66 at Lambrick Park School.

OAK BAY (75) — Tom Hatcher 20, John Lauvaas 28, Corky Jossul 12, Stu Montgomery 6, Al Huddleston 4, Rod Finch 4, Peter Mason 3.
TRILEC (73) — Steve Pescod 27, Darrell Johnson 22, Steve Dunbar 4, Gord Gummer 5, Thad Newman, Doug Calbeck 10, Dave English 4, Bruce Lutinich, Charlie Davis 1, Kevin Worth.

Foreman issued Viking ultimatum

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (UPI) — Minnesota Vikings general-manager Mike Lynn said Wednesday that all-pro halfback Chuck Foreman "will either play for the Vikings — or retire."

An attorney for Foreman said the top Viking running back had no intention of suiting up for the Vikings anymore.

"He will not play under this contract for the Vikings and he doesn't want the matter discussed anymore," attorney Tom Reich was quoted as saying in a copyrighted dispatch in the Chicago Tribune.

"We have said we do not contemplate a trade," Lynn said. "So Foreman will either play for the Vikings—or retire."

Foreman is under contract until 1978.

"It is a long-standing policy of the club not to renegotiate anyone's contract," Lynn said. "We feel very comfortable in the two year contract extension offer we have made for 1979-80. As long as he wants to play, we are willing to continue discussions on the extension."

So far as the next move is concerned, Lynn said, "In contract negotiations, nothing is really final unless a player chooses to retire—or he dies."

"I think it would be best that the issue remain dormant for a couple of months. We're all suffering from the 'blahs'. Come spring, I hope we can get back and hold some discussions."

Yankee pitcher signs contract

NEW YORK (AP)—Ed Figueroa, a 19-game winner for New York Yankees last year, has signed a four-year contract with the American League baseball champions. Figueroa's contract was negotiated for him by agent Jerry Kapstein after the right-hander said he was upset that the Yankees had offered him a modest raise over his $50,000 salary of last season. No terms of the contract were disclosed.

Everything goes at Alkazar Mansion

During the next two weeks, a Victoria salvage company will remove the Alkazar Mansion's bevelled door, stained-glass windows, hall tiles, banisters, carpets, plumbing fixtures, floorboards and ornaments. Then a demolition company will finish the job by bulldozing the empty structure to the ground. Ornate door, above, is expected to fetch $3,500 as salvage. The 1913-14 four-storey mansion on Fairfield Road is being guarded against looters. Reeson and Pinch Homes Ltd., owner of the Alkazar, decided to tear building down rather than upgrade safety standards.

Labor council prodded over unemployment

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

The Victoria Labor Council executive was prodded into action Wednesday night after hearing a grim story of Victoria's growing unemployment.

It was also mildly chided by one delegate for failure to make itself heard on the matter before now.

Among other things, the council was told:

- The listed unemployment rate of 10 per cent was probably really "15 per cent or better;"
- The unemployment rate for youth stands somewhere between 25 and 30 per cent;
- About 70 per cent of shipyard workers are off the job;
- Membership in the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America has shrunk from a peak of 2,200 to about 1,400.

Ernie Knott, an IWA delegate, won unanimous support for his motion that the executive study the economic problem and come up with a program for organizing the unemployed.

Noting that the sagging economy had already brought calls for help from Mayor Michael Young, Ald. Murray Glazier and Charles Barber (NDP—Victoria), Knott said:

"In fact, everyone but the labor movement is speaking up. This is very significant."

He described as a "criminal situation" the fact that young people were sleeping outside Canada Manpower in midwinter so they could be first in line to find jobs. He called attention to a Colonist photo of two such men.

Knott urged the council to act while the B.C. Legislature was still in session.

He thought the provincial government's various actions had had a disastrous effect on the economy.

"No one other organization has had a worse effect on this community than the present government," he said.

The plight of the shipyards was brought up at another point during the meeting by Dave Higgins of the Boilermakers, who said only 200 of the normal Yarrows work force of 700 remained on the job. Thirteen unions are affected.

Old-timers who have worked at the shipyards since the 1940s say the unemployment picture there is the worst they can remember.

On Higgins' urging, the labor council decided to approach the federal cabinet for badly needed help for the shipyards. The case will be made for the need to favor the West Coast with some of the ship repair work that generally goes to eastern Canadian yards.

Delegates demand TV action

Delegates stacked a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday night and backed their executive into a corner on the question of television programming.

As a result, the executive will have to begin planning a series of labor education programs for Channel 10—a proposal it tabled after council delegates had approved it at a Jan. 19 meeting.

The executive's action was questioned by more than one delegate who thought it imperative that the programming begin as a means of rubbing some of the tarnish off labor's image.

"The union hierarchy has become something other than our servants," carpenters' delegate Larry Tickner complained. "It is more in bed with the capitalist class, and I think they're afraid of us."

Second vice-president Stan Darlington said there had been some fear that if proper precautions weren't taken with such programming, the wrong people could give the wrong impressions of labor. He referred mainly to what might happen if less-than-astute labor people were pinned down by interviewers, or left coping with open-line callers.

Secretary Larry Ryan said in an interview that the delegates had simply approved the program in principle and referred it to the newly-elected executive for consideration.

Daryl Anderson of the Canadian Union of Public Employees reflected the views of other delegates when he asked: "Is there any way our image can get any lower?"

The IWA's Jack Groves, a former labor council president, said he didn't think he executive had the right to take the action it did.

While there were denials that the meeting had been stacked, there were far more delegates present than usual. There was an especially big showing from the B.C. Governmenit Employees' Union. Included in this group was Norm Richards, president of the 35,000-member BCGEU, who seldom attends such meetings.

Inside workers 'unhindered' in single talks

Rick Doyle denied Monday that Victoria's inside workers would be hindered by their decision to go it alone in core municipality and Capital Region negotiations.

The employers "intend to treat us exactly in the same manner as the other group," said Doyle, who is president of the 200-member city inside workers' local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

He was responding to a claim from union sources that the Doyle local would be dealt to the bottom of the deck while the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association bargained with the joint negotiating committee of the other seven CUPE locals involved.

Sources had said it was "obvious" the single local would simply pick up any settlement won by the major group.

They left the impression that the inside workers had made a serious mistake in separating from the bulk of the 2,000 employees involved and opting for binding arbitration in place of strike or lockout procedure.

Doyle said the inside workers are asking for a package within the six per cent Anti-Inflation Board guidelines. The other locals estimate their requested package at 10½ to 11 per cent.

"I think we're far closer to a settlement than they are," Doyle said in reference to the group of seven.

Negotiations have actually only got under way, but Doyle's optimism appeared to be based on his local's low-keyed demands. He said Carl Anshelm, chief GVLRA negotiator, had promised a second meeting with his local either Friday or Monday. He will be meeting Thursday with the larger group, which presented him with its counter proposal Tuesday.

The seven locals are asking for an eight per cent increase in wages, as well as a dental plan and vacation improvements they say would tack another 2½ to three per cent onto the costs.

Doyle said the major hurdle for his local may be the difference of opinion over length of contract. His local wants a one-year agreement, but GVLRA is proposing that it last two years with a six per cent hike in the first year and four per cent in the second. Both are AIB guideline figures.

"If the guidelines should be lifted this year we've been told we could re-negotiate next year's agreement, but only on the matter of wages," he said. "If that's the case we would want to be able to renegotiate any cost items we asked for and didn't get this year."

Port Renfrew going alone?

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

With paternalism no longer in vogue, people want a degree of control over their lives, and the Capital Regional Board is about to help some people accomplish that.

Repreesentatives will visit Port Renfrew next Thursday and ask people to sign a petition that would turn the place into a "specified area" under the Municipal Act, instead of a company town.

This would mean the residents would acquire, operate and maintain the existing water supply system and sewage disposal system, the existing fire protection facilities and power for street lighting.

Members of the region's local works and services committee were told Wednesday that a tax levy of 37.5 mills would be necessary to cover costs, and residents would also pay school taxes of 42 mills.

The area would be administered by a commission.

The board's executive director, Dennis Young, said this would mean an average total of $300 annually for Port Renfrew homeowners. They would be able to deduct the $280 annual homeowner grant from that amount.

View Royal director Pat Massy wanted to know what would happen if residents rejected the petition.

"I suppose B.C. Forest Products would be forced to continue its support," regional engineer Norman Howard said.

Young said he expected the petition to succeed.

"There is a trend in all company towns to transfer responsibility to residents so that they have a degree of self-determination," Young said. "The paternalistic attitude of company town operations is dying out."

There are 90 housing lots in the area specified in the petition, some of them still owned by B.C. Forest Products.

To be valid, the petition would have to be signed by two-thirds of the lot owners who collectively own at least half of the assessed land value of the area.

Sooke director Charles Perkins said he had been asked that representatives take the petition to a meeting in Port Renfrew next Thursday.

At that time, it was decided, residents would also be told what the total tax would be on individual lots.

Petition pushing end to BCFP paternalism

Government wins again

The second non-confidence motion in the provincial government was defeated Wednesday night by 26-16 in the 55-member B.C. Legislature.

Scott Wallace (PC-Oak Bay) voted with the New Democratic Party on the motion, claiming that the people of B.C. had no confidence in the $3.83 billion budget brought down by Finance Minister Evan Wolfe.

Gordon Gibson (L-North Vancouver-Capilano) was not present when the vote was taken.

10-year-old clerk victim of holdup

At 10 years of age, little Henry Lem may hold the distinction of being one of Victoria's youngest holdup victims.

Henry was minding his parents' store, the L and N Market at 530 Craigflower Wednesday night, when a man approached the till, reached into his pocket as if clutching a gun, and demanded the money.

"He said get the money out fast," said Henry, who claimed he saw what appeared to be the handle of a "silver gun" sticking out of the man's pocket.

The youngster didn't waste any time obeying. He said he handed over about $290.

He described the bandit as young and said he was wearing a sweater with Indian design. He escaped on foot.

Was Henry badly frightened by his experience?

"Yeah, I guess so."

Was there anyone else in the store at the time?

"Yeah, my sister."

What was she doing?

"Reading comic books."

The holdup was the 14th in Greater Victoria so far this year.

Area's Grade 4s scored well in reading tests

Grade 4 pupils in the Greater Victoria school district generally did well on provincial reading tests, although some aspects need strengthening, both in the classroom and the test, a committee of trustees, parents and educators has concluded.

The committee examined the test questions and estimated how well they thought Grade 4 students should do in them, and then compared their estimates with the actual performance of the pupils.

The test was given to all Grade 4 pupils in the province in January, 1976, and tested word identification skills and comprehension of prose, and "functional materials" such as road maps and signs.

Word-identification skills were generally higher than the committee anticipated, but the committee concluded that comprehension was only "satisfactory," although both were above the provincial average.

They recommended that teachers be encouraged to develop questioning techniques to improve comprehension of prose.

Some of the test questions were ambiguous, and could have resulted in wrong answers, the committee said. It also recommended that international standard road signs be used on the tests, since Canada had accepted these standards.

Steps should be taken to acquaint district teachers with the weaknesses revealed by the test, to the extent that individual school results should be made available to principals and staff, the committee recommended.

But trustee Dr. Hal Knight, who was on the committee, told other trustees at a board meeting Wednesday that the education ministry was quite reluctant to release the results on a school-by-school basis, for fear that they might be used to compare schools.

Board names adviser

The post of legal and financial affairs adviser to the school superintendent and board has been created by the Greater Victoria School Board.

Ernest Shaw, currently secretary-treasurer for the school board, has been named to the post, created on the recommendation of district superintendent Allan Stables. His salary will stay the same.

Shaw will assist the board and superintendent on legal and financial affairs, and will review and draft the board's policies and bylaws.

Board chairman Susan Brice said the board had been criticized in the past for not having its policies up to date, but no one in the administration had had time to look into legal and financial policies.

The board will advertise for a secretary-treasurer to replace Shaw.

The board could be criticized for increasing the size of its administration at this time, Mrs. Brice admitted.

Sewage expert is 15

Studies show treatment a future must

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist Reporter

She is careful to say she doesn't want to give any opinions about it, but Ruth Carson is one of the best informed 15-year-olds about the Clover Point sewer.

The Oak Bay Junior High school 10th-grader recently entered the schools' science fair with a model of the proposed sewer outfall for Clover Point, and a large map with overlays showing currents and dispersion patterns.

She also wrote a lengthy report on sewage disposal and treatment using information gleaned from interviews with officials involved.

"It was harder than usual to get information, because I couldn't go to the library and find it," she said.

AS A RESULT of her project, she now believes that a treatment plant will be necessary in the future, and that work should proceed on the outfall quickly.

Did she learn anything about politics while doing the project?

She doesn't say. "I just tried to look at the facts."

But her father is a Victoria alderman (Frank Carson), and it's probably good politics that she doesn't express an opinion.

OTHER PROJECTS at the science fair included a study of the properties of highly electro-positive elements, complete with a small sealed lab in which the researcher works using built-in gloves; a model of a tidal generating plant; a collection of herbs of medicinal value, a Tesla coil which generates 1.2 million volts, and a study of light refraction, using a laser.

A study of learning, using a maze, showed that the average 15-year-old male found his way through in 42.2 seconds, and that the average adult male took 49.6 seconds. Take that, Dad.

Some of the projects will be entered in the Vancouver Island science fair at Hillside mall March 17-19. Regional winners will be eligible to enter the national science fair at the University of Victoria May 15-21.

Two-mill hike Lum's hope

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said Tuesday he was hopeful the tax rate increase this year could be held to two mills.

"At present it looks like a small hike," he said.

Lum also predicted that when final figures were released next week the 1976 surplus would be about $300,000 — about one and a half mills.

Romance: 'Kiss it goodbye'

By DARLA WELLES
Colonist - Copley News Service

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Ah, romantic love. The stuff of poets and playwrights. The fodder for Tin Pan Alley tunes and operatic arias.

The storybook image of the relationship between man and woman — the candlelit world of champagne and roses in which prince and princess live happily ever after.

What ever happened to all that?

It's fading out. Or at least changing form.

And that, according to Dr. Mary Lindenstein Walshok, is something to thank your star-crossed lovers for.

Walshok, a sociologist and assistant dean for academic affairs at the University of California at San Diego Extension, is not a curmudgeon opposed to the concept of romance. She just feels that when its importance is overplayed or its significance misunderstood, relationships suffer.

"Lock at the great classical romances — Romeo and Juliet, Tristan and Isolde — think how they came out," she said. "Classically, romantic love is seeking after a lover who is unavailable or forbidden. And when the lovers do finally get together, something dreadful always happens. Like they die."

And it's not so different with contemporary relationships, she said, when they're based solely on romantic love rather than more enduring qualities.

By definitioon, she explained in an interview, romantic love is desperate, exciting, passionate and mysterious. And in order to maintain that feeling there must be some aura of mystery about the person, some air of intrique about the relationship.

Marriage and other long-term relationships eventually fall into a routine.

"And routinization," said Walshok, "is antithetical to romantic love. The two simply do not exist together in a steady pattern of things without the element of adventure. You can't be married to somebody or living with somebody and maintain that sense of high melodrama."

But that's not all bad, according to the sociologist who feels that the time has come when people should be — and often are — placing less emphasis on romantic love as a basis for relationships.

Much of romantic love she said, can be attributed to each partner's idealized image of what a perfect lover should be. And when the partner fails to live up to that image — just as in classicl tales of romance — something tragic happens. Disappointment, resentment and bitterness set in and stifle th relationship.

And part of the problem arises from reluctance to relinquish the romanticized ideas of what a mate and a relationship should be. Instead of re-examining those ideals, people are quick to say there's something wrong with their mates, to terminate the relationship and go in search of another mate who will, in their optimistic viewpoint, conform to their standards.

That means, according to Wolshok, that when romantic love is the core and essential reason for a relationship, it's almost certainly doomed to failure.

But that doesn't mean romantic love doesn't have value or shouldn't be a part of a love relationship. It certainly adds a bit of zip and dash to life in her estimation. But she considers it a poor basis for selecting a life partner.

'Singing for God' Connie Haines aim

By NOEL OSMENT
Colonist - Copley News Service

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — By the end of the 1940s, Connie Haines could consider herself a success in show business. She had sung with the Harry James and Tommy Dorsey bands. She had been in several movies and appeared at top clubs.

That was not, however, what she really wanted.

Her idea from childhood on was "to sing for God."

Now, she is doing just that — singing only for God as an ordained minister for Unity churches.

When she began her rise to fame as a singer with the big bands, she was still a teenager, who had never heard anyone say "damn."

"I didn't even know any women who smoked," she said, "and knew only one person who drank, and that was a negative experience."

She was born in Savannah, Ga., where her father, a Roman Catholic of French descent, was a veterinary surgeon. Her mother and grandmother, Protestants, raised her in a very religious atmosphere. When the family moved to Jacksonville, Fla., when she was four, she was surrounded by her maternal relatives, all very active in religious life.

Added to that was a religious experience she had when, as a little girl, she became seriously ill with rheumatic fever leaving her crippled for a time and with a weak heart.

"I was always outgoing, loved entertaining, and had a lot of volume, even as a child. I remember standing at my window when I was about 10, singing out as loudly as possible and thinking maybe I'd be discovered, there in Jacksonville."

She was still using her own name, Yvonne Marie Antoinette Ja Mais, when she went to New York with her mother at 17. When she joined the Harry James band shortly afterward, in 1939, her name was changed and she became a part of show business life, appearing in nightclubs and traveling from city to city.

Connie Haines, 'teacher'

In spite of her success, she never really felt herself a part of that world, she said.

"I never went out with the band for drinks and parties.

"I realize now that I must have turned a lot of people off with my preaching. In Unity, we don't preach — we teach."

Haines' last appearance in a strictly show business sense was in 1974 in New York.

Even while she was immersed in her career, she followed certain rules, among them turning down engagements, whenever possible, that would require her to sing on Sunday.

When she was living with her first husband in Hollywood, where her two children were born, she became active in church there and developed friendships among others in whose lives religion played an active part. She also joined with actress Jane Russell (whose mother is a minister), Rhonda Fleming and Beryl Davis to form a group that sang religious music, often touring.

Her life has contained ordeals — two marriages ended badly and an illness left her unable to walk for months after the birth of one of her children.

To become a minister, she had to take a three-year program concentrated into two years at the church's headquarters near Kansas City.

"During my first three months I wondered what I had done, as I frantically tried to find a study pattern."

She did, however, manage the intensive Bible study and studies of the world's religions which are part of the course. Ordained a year ago, she was assigned to the Unity Church in Sacramento where she is in charge of the music ministry.

Happy birthday to me! It was one year ago we started this column. From the many comments we've heard I know many of you found it useful.

How is your tie situation? This year some interesting new things are appearing in neckwear. Square end ties are going to be seen this spring. The square end tie is definitely the rage in fashionable European circles and we know of two Canadian manufacturers who will be introducing it within the next few months.

Another interesting facet to the tie industry is the recognition that younger men are turning to a dressier look. As a result the spring season will be shaped by a subtle return to conservative fashion.

There will be a greater interest in medium colour tones rather than the lighter shades of past years. Look also for geometric stripes and special panel effects.

More well dressed men will be featuring pocket puffs co-ordinated to their neckwear. Puffs will be either matching or contrasting to give a very dressy touch.

We are professionals!

ann landers

Dear Ann: I am tired of being bored to death with endless stories and pictures of other people's children and grandchildren.

Yesterday I was late for an appointment because I couldn't pry myself lose from a woman who was bragging about how popular her granddaughter is. When I started to leave, she pulled out two dozen pictures from her purse and I was stuck for another 10 minutes.

Today I looked forward to reading some letters during lunch when a former neighbor spotted me and slid right into the booth. I had to sit through 40 minutes of shameless boasting about her children's accomplishments, their salaries, big homes and trips. Then came a fistful of pictures. I was fit to be tied.

This sort of thing goes on at meetings, church socials, parties — everywhere. I have beautiful, smart kids, but I wouldn't dream of imposing personal details and pictures on others.

Please, Ann, how can we protect ourselves against the insensitive clods without being rude? — P.O. in Oregon.

Dear P.O.: After just a few minutes, say, "How nice . . ." and change the subject. When you are handed a fistful of pictures, go through them rapidly. Then catch a glimpse of someone you simply must see, and leave.

Occasionally, some individuals are interested. They can skip this advice. Several people have asked to see pictures of my grandchildren, and guess what — I have never carried any, for just the reason you stated in your letter.

Confidential to Advice Needed for First-Time Speaker: (1) Be sincere. (2) Be brief. (3) Be seated.

Dear Ann: I am in desperate need of advice. Mary (made-up name) and I have been best friends since the second grade. We are 16 now. Her mom and dad always treated me like a daughter. My folks feel the same way about her.

Last night Mary's dad drove me home and propositioned me. He said he wanted to teach me to make love the right way and not have some high school kid "spoil it all" by being clumsy because he doesn't know what he was doing.

This man is one year younger than my dad. I was so upset I shook like a leaf and ran straight to my room when I got home so I wouldn't have to face my parents.

The problem is, now I can't look at Mary without seeing her dad. Should I tell her what happened? How can I avoid being alone with that man? Please help me.— Superior, Wis., Dilemma

Dear Dill: Please don't tell Mary. She would be devastated.

Avoid being alone with that man again — no matter what. If he offers to drive you home again, insist that Mary come along for the ride.

Prison: Wives suffer outside

MONTREAL (CP) — Society turns a cold shoulder on women involved with prisoners and the experience of doing time on the outside is sometimes harder than spending a term behind bars, says Marilyn Finesilver, a case worker with the John Howard Society.

"The families of prisoners are victimized in at least the same way as their husbands, if not more," Miss Finesilver says.

"Landlords, welfare agencies and schools are hard on them. "The whole attitude is one of rejection."

She says the hardships are not just financial.

"The emotional and social implications of his being in prison are tremendous."

The disappointment of being rejected by friends and family members who consider a woman tainted can be overwhelming, she says.

"At least you find out who your friends really are."

Miss Finesilver has recently started a group for wives and girlfriends of incarcerated men with the aim of getting them together and encouraging them to support each other.

"The social stigma attached to anything to do with prisons is immense and most wives find themselves living in complete isolation."

Finding out there are scores of other women facing similar problems every day is a source of consolation, she ways.

She wants the group to concentrate on trying to effect change, "because sitting around commiserating . . . all day won't make the reality of their lives any better."

The first concrete issue the group is taking up is the transportation system to and from institutions.

She says schedules for existing bus services don't coincide with visiting hours and that bus stops are sometimes far from the prison gates.

"My investment in this is supporting the women in what they want to do and in helping them to make their decisions," she says. "Their needs and wants and problems are ultimately as important as is the prisoner."

Miss Finesilver says the group is having a problem finding women who need help because they are so used to being isolated and often don't know there is somehwere to go.

Most of her referrals have come from the case books of the John Howard Society, an established prisoners' aid group.

Party dips with panache

By KAY JARVIS
Colonist - Copley News Service

The best antidote for that postholiday letdown is a party. Invite your best friends and plan a menu that will let you enjoy their company instead of being stuck in the kitchen.

That means planning ahead. If it will be a large party, you may wish to serve only foods which require no forks for eating. Paper plates and lots of napkins, both cocktail and standard size are essential. Plastic glasses and plastic-coated paper cups save on cleanup the next day.

Buy lots of picks for cheese chunklets, tiny meatballs, other foods that need to be speared. Check serving dishes early in the week, pick up extra candles, make a list of all the ingredients you'll need for recipes.

There are a surprising number of recipes which improve when made ahead. A number of them will be given here. The pate, my favorite and a hit with those who say they never touch liver is one. Cheese mixtures only improve and even dips are better made the day before.

For substantial fare, still needing no forks, you might choose from ham, roast beef or turkey, thinly sliced and served with a huge tray of the small rolls and breads. Offer lots of butter, mustard and mayonnaise. I split the rolls, but let the guests do the spreading on of condiments and layering of meat.

It's fine to have lots of food set out on one table, but have tidbits on other tables throughout the party area. It's important to make food as accessible as possible.

Now to the recipes. The first three are for dips. No matter how trite they may seem, people like them and that's what counts. These have distinguishing characteristics to give them a dash of panache.

They lend themselves well to crunchy vegetables such as carrots, celery, zucchini, turnips (cut in thin half rounds), broccoli, cauliflower, and to crisp crackers.

WATERCRESS DIP

½ cup mayonnaise
1 cup sour cream
1 clove pressed garlic (in garlic press or smash with flat side of knife to puree)
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. fresh lemon juice
1-3 cup finely chopped watercress
½ cup blue cheese, crumbled and loosely packed

Blend together all ingredients except watercress and blue cheese. Fold them in gently, cover and refrigerate until serving time. Makes two cups.

CRUNCHY PECAN DIP

½ cup mayonnaise
1 cup sour cream
1 tbsp. dry sherry
½ cup blue cheese, crumbled, loosely packed
½ cup finely chopped pecans

Blend together first three ingredients. Gently fold in blue cheese and pecans. Cover and chill. Makes two cups.

DANISH MERMAID DIP

½ cup mayonnaise
1 cup sour cream
¼ tsp. dill weed
½ tsp. tarragon, crumbled
Dash cayenne pepper or Tabasco
1 cup chilled cooked salmon, cut in small pieces
1-3 cup finely diced Danish Samsoe or Havarti cheese

Blend together first mayonnaise, sour cream and herbs. Fold in salmon and cheese. Makes two cups. (Shrimp may be substituted for salmon.) Cover and chill.

This pate is the best I have ever made. It can be served with small rounds of pumpernickel or rye bread or with small chunks of French bread, crisp crackers or melba toast.

When putting through the blender, do so in small amounts. The pate should be quite smooth. It freezes beautifully, can be kept covered and refrigerated for several days, or, if coated with clarified butter, for up to a month in the refrigerator.

(To clarify butter, melt butter, let sediment settle to bottom of pan, pour the clean liquid over crocks of pate to seal, cover and refrigerate. Remove butter before serving.)

Now to the recipe. It will serve 30 for cocktails and is very rich. Pack it in any containers that please you, from small earthenware crocks or pots to china souffle dishes. Garnish with chopped parsley, if desired. Provide a butter spreader. It's thick.

VERY SPECIAL PATE

1 lb. chicken livers
2 medium-size onions, chopped
½ cup butter
1 clove garlic, mashed
¼ cup butter
1 tbsp. flour
1 tsp. salt
½ tsp. pepper
1 bay leaf (or ½ tsp. ground bay leaves)
⅛ tsp. thyme
⅛ tsp. oregano
⅛ tsp. tarragon
3 tbsps. brandy
Clarified sweet butter

Saute the onions in the ¼ cup butter with the garlic until just tender. Remove from the skillet. Now, saute the livers in the additional ¼ cup butter until almost tender.

Sprinkle with flour and stir in the salt, pepper, bay leaf, thyme, oregano, and tarragon. Cover and simmer for one minute on very low heat. Remove bay leaf if used whole. Cool slightly and combine with the sauteed onions. At this point use a blender if you have one.

Put livers, etc. in the blender, a little at a time, add the brandy gradually.

If you don't have a blender, put the mixture through the meat grinder about three times, using the finest blade, and then mix with the brandy. Taste for seasoning.

Let the liver pate cool to room temperature, then pour into several small bowls or crocks.

Cover each bowl or crock with a thin coating of the clarified butter and place in the refrigerator. After they are cold, check them to be sure that butter has completely sealed the liver pate. If not, cover with a little more of the melted clarified butter and chill again.

This procedure is only necessary if you want to keep the pate for a period of several weeks or a month.

If you are planning to serve it within a few days, it is not necessary to seal with the clarified melted butter.

Sex views change at home—author

By CARL RITTER
Colonist - Copley News Service

His book, Honor Thy Father, strips away and interprets most of the Mafia's dark secrecy, and his Kingdom and the Power deals convincingly with intellectual conspiracies behind The New York Times.

Yet, in between, a segment of American society not thought to be complex or profound has left writer Gay Talese baffled, he confesses.

It is the American lower middle class.

"I think that's where the big story is," Talese said in an interview.

He was referring to sex mores in the United States and their relationship to American family life, a subject he has been researching for two years. He will bring out a book on it next summer, he said. The title has not been decided.

"There has been a quiet social revolution," he said. "A new (sexual) understanding." What used to be "sources of embarrassment," he said, now are not.

He was not referring to the radical college campus element credited or charged with noisily leading the way in the 1960s, but to what might be called the blue-collar class of "law-and-order" men and women, Talese said.

He said he noticed the phenomenon while researching nudist clubs and swingers' organizations where mate-swapping and other new sexual freedoms were practiced.

"Many of the cars had American decals," he said. God Bless America — Love It or Leave It and the like; but not peace symbols or antiwar proclamations. "This was the law-and-order element," he said. "Yet with a strange, swinging sex life."

Talese termed it "confusing." He said he observed this apparent paradox time and again. "I have," he said, "come to no conclusion."

The New Jersey-born author, son of an Italian tailor who immigrated from the old country, said he has found that wives in today's society "can be unfaithful in marriage and not have their husbands in a state of shock seeking to get a divorce right away."

This unfaithfulness, he said, "does not mean that these women are not in love with their husbands."

Is society deteriorating with sexual saturation?

Talese said it is not, although he predicted "great change in the family structure in the next 20 years." He suggested that women assuming more aggressive sex roles, in which they learn to accept rejection as part of taking a chance, should lead to more powerful roles in business, politics and industry for females.

Achieving real equality with men, they would not face the need of banding together as feminists or women's libbers, according to Talese.

What about children in the new society?

"I make a distincciton between minors and adults," Talese said. "I exercise censorship in my home.

"There are two minors (daughters Pamela and Catherine) there. We don't let them drive an auto or go to bars."

Talese said he doesn't see why this policy cannot be maintained in the home relating to sexual matters.

In his business research, he said, he subscribes to hardcore pornography publications, which he said his children are not welcome to read.

On the other hand, he said, he leaves copies of Playboy and Playgirl lying around the house as no problem.

Talese conceded that if minors want to read hardcore pornography magazines, they probably can obtain them.

"I don't believe in democracy at home," Talese said.

"I tell them, "When you come of age.'" Illustrating his view, he said a child of 11 years of age probably is capable of driving a car, but why let him or her?

"How old is old enough (for sexual freedom)?" Talese was asked.

"Eighteen," said Talese.

Cut proposed in halibut quota

VANCOUVER (CP) — A proposed reduction in halibut quotas this year to 22 million pounds — down three million pounds from 1976 — has been announced by scientists of the International Pacific Halibut Commission. Their recommendations followed a meeting last week in Vancouver by halibut fishermen, vessel owners and processors.

Pain first hurdle for stepfamilies

TORONTO (CP) — Stepfamilies, the product of marriages between divorced persons, are a phenomenon that is attracting increasing attention from social research groups.

In 1974, there were 15,277 divorces in Ontario and 56 per cent of them involved one or more dependent children. Given the marriage rate for divorced parents, this means some 12,600 of the children are likely to become members of stepfamilies.

Like all families, stepfamilies have their problems, with a few additional ones added.

For instance, does the child of a stepfamily tell his teacher that his father is not his natural father? Should relationships with natural parents be kept up? And what about the ambivalent feelings children and stepparents often have for each other?

Lillian Messinger, chief investigator of remarriage for the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry, says persons involved in second marriages don't like to talk about them.

"We had real problems from the older children in different ways — just a tremendous amount of anger, impotent anger . . ."

"The tendency is to assume that the new family is serving the same function as the nuclear family—biological parents and their progeny—almost as if they would wish to wipe out the fact that there had been a previous marriage," she said.

But when children are involved the new partners discover they aren't heading "one big happy family."

After studying 70 such couples, she found that at least 60 per cent of the children of divorced parents retained a relationship with the absent parent outside the new household.

Brenda and Fred Brown (not their real names) are unusual in that they prepared themselves and their children for remarriage.

She brought three children to her second marriage, nine-year-old twin girls and an 11-year-old son. Her husband brought two sons, one nine and one six.

"We had real problems from the older children, in different ways — just a tremendous amount of anger, impotent anger, if you know I mean," said Mrs. Brown.

The Browns are still contending with the emotional swings of the children but they are happening less often now. They believe the children are looking for assurances of parental love and resent a step-parent pretending to be a "real" mother or father.

M. V. Chesnut's Garden Notes

One question which has been cropping up with considerable frequency in my mail lately is what to do about the pruning of recently planted shrubs.

Do you cut them back almost to the ground, as with newly planted roses? Or do you let them go their own way until their normal pruning season?

As a general rule, I think it is best not to prune a shrub at all immediately after it is planted. By this, I mean a shrub planted last fall or any time through the winter, and of a variety which would normally be pruned in winter should be left unpruned until next winter.

A rather different problem is posed by a new shrub which is normally pruned in the spring. What happens to it this coming spring will depend very largely on what kind of weather we get during the next six or seven weeks.

If the late winter is mild and not overly wet, encouraging the formation of new roots, and if the new shrub seems happily established and feeling at home in its new surroundings, it should show signs of vigorous growth in early spring and leaf out at its normal time. Under these conditions, there need be no hesitation about spring pruning.

If, on the other hand, the shrub seems a bit reluctant to get going this spring, it is best to treat it to a little wholesome neglect. Don't prune it, don't pester it with attention, don't give it any spring "tonics" or fertilizers in an attempt to ginger it up.

Just make it comfortable by stirring the soil surface over the roots to break up any crust and let some air in, and spray the top growth occasionally with plain water in dry weather.

A good example of this type of shrub, normally pruned in the spring, is the popular Ceanothus Gloire de Versailles, with lovely powder blue flowers in late summer and autumn. Ordinarily, a Ceanothus is pruned in March, and in a long-established shrub, the new wood made during the past year is cut hard back, almost to the old wood.

It should be obvious that a new shrub would never get off the ground if it were never allowed to retain any new wood in this way.

An important point to remember, when dealing with shrubs, is that you can't do them any great harm by neglecting their pruning for a year. On the other hand, they can be damaged, permanently and irremediably, by brutal surgery at a time when their vitality is low.

There are a few exceptions such as the Deutzia, some of the Spiraeas and most of the shrubs which are grown especially for the coloring of their young stems; these should be cut right down almost to soil level occasionally. With most kinds, though, it is best if their pruning is not done on a strictly annual basis.

In most cases, after a period of unrestricted growth, what is needed is more of a general thinning and shaping rather than a pruning proper.

This thinning, naturally, doesn't become necessary until considerable growth has been made and the centre of the bush is congested.

WASHINGTON — People who talk about the weather are now getting paranoid about it. They keep looking at the TV weather maps and they aren't laughing anymore at the jolly men and women who are bringing them bad weather news.

I know this for a fact. I was sitting in the living room with Seltzer and the weatherman said, "Well, I guess you folks out there are wondering when it's going to warm up. Would you believe things are going to get worse before they get better?"

"I'll kill the SOB," Seltzer said, as he made a move toward the screen.

I stopped him. "It's not his fault that the news is bad."

"Why does he have to grin when he's telling it? Cronkite doesn't grin when he tells you about an Amtrak train derailing in New Jersey."

The weatherman was standing up in front of a screen.

"Let's take a look at the satellite map. This white stuff here means it is cloudy over the eastern part of the United States which means freezing temperatures, snow, sleet and icy winds. Over here in Southern California, where there are no white spots, it means they're having sunny weather with temperatures in the 80s."

"He's a sadist," Seltzer says. "He gets his kicks pointing to white spots on satellite maps."

"It's his job," I said. "He doesn't like the white spots anymore than you do."

The weatherman continued. "Ordinarily, we would have gotten some relief except for this cold front which is coming in from Canada."

"Aha!" Seltzer shouted. "It's Canada again. How long are we going to take that stuff from Canada? Why don't we tell 'em 'one more cold front from you people and we nuke Ottawa.' "

"It isn't really Canada's fault. The front probably originated in the Arctic and just passed through Canada."

"Why does Canada let it pass through?" Seltzer asked. "Tell me that."

"Because if she didn't let it pass through it would become a stationary front and hang over Canada. No country wants a dark cloud hanging over it day and night."

The weatherman was still talking. "Now behind this cold front is another cold front coming up from the South."

"I knew it," shouted Seltzer. "The South is sending all its bad weather north. The people down there don't care any more about us than the Canadians."

"The South is suffering, too," I said.

"Good. If they want to originate cold fronts they have it coming to them."

We turned back to the weatherman. "But what we really have to be concerned about is this low-pressure system over here of warm air meeting this high-pressure system over here of cold air which could cause precipitation of up to two feet of snow."

Seltzer threw his shoe at the screen.

The weatherman chuckled. "So be prepared to put on your long underwear and your galoshes and if you can start your car up, you'll have better luck than I did this morning."

Let me ask you something," Seltzer said. "How come the newspapers have a little box somewhere with the weather which says 'sunny, cloudy, rain or sleet,' and television spends 15 minutes telling you about every snowflake in North Dakota?"

"It's a good spot to sell Bayer aspirin or Anacin," I said.

The weatherman had a puppet in his hands. "Let's talk to Ezra about how cold it really is outside. 'Ezra, if the temperature is five below and the wind is 35 knots, and the wind chill factor is 30 below, how do you get your car started in the morning?' Ezra, the puppet, replied, 'You send your wife out in her housecoat, ha! ha! ha!' "

"I'm still going to kill him," Seltzer said.

Little things that irritate me in a big way:

Clerks who take telephone calls from customers while forcing those who come to the store in person to wait.

Dog-owners who don't restrain their animals from running after moving cars and snapping at the wheels. (If the pet is accidentally injured or killed, the driver is automatically the villain.)

Films that have no justification for their existence except the lurid depiction of some natural catastrophe.

Cab-drivers who play their radios at a deafening volume, and grumble if a passenger requests that it be turned down a little.

Letters from firms addressing one as esquire, which only means that the product they are touting is snobbishly expensive.

The continuing rotten telephone service in France, for which there is no rational excuse. (As the sour joke goes, half the Frenchmen are waiting for a telephone, and the other half for a dial tone.)

Orators and writers who invoke "our founding fathers" only to stress those principles they agree with ignoring other strains that balance or cancel out their thesis.

TV networks that compel their "news" announcers and commentators to display samples and deliver commercials — which, instead of enhancing the products, only demean and diminish the commentators.

People who assume that "I intended to" is a satisfactory explanation, when it is only a poor excuse.

The use of outdated counterculture slogans like "Right on!" by squares trying pathetically to sound like trapezoids.

Lawyers who specialize in squalid clients, with the disingenuous defense that "every accused person is entitled to counsel." (But every lawyer doesn't have to concentrate on known scoundrels.)

Psychologists (like the ubiquitous Dr. Joyce Brothers) who use the royal or editorial "we" in duscussing psychological theories, as if speaking officially for the entire body of psychologists, when in fact they are as divided as theologians.

Feminists who would insist that a political "mandate" be called a "persondate" — ignorant of the fact that the prefix "man" in the word refers to "hand" and not to "male."

Growing old wisely

Stuart Rosenberg

Are the best years ahead or behind?

Anatole France, the great French writer, undertook his literary efforts when he was almost 65. Winston Churchill was nearing his 70th birthday when he delivered his famous "Blood, Sweat and Tears" speech to his beleaguered countrymen. Over 80, David Ben-Gurion was still a major symbol of Israel's youthful verve and pioneering spirit. At 90 years of age, Oliver Wendell Holmes, the famous American jurist-philosopher, was still inspiring hearts with his wisdom and insight.

Much of the literature of our time deals with the frustrations that men experience because of their fear of getting old. In turn, there is a glut of books offering suggestions on how to avoid the perils of our inevitable older age. Most of these, however, present only techniques for living; they do not deal with the meaning and significance of human life. Instead, they deceive us into believing that life is like some machine that can be adjusted by a simple twist or turn of a screw, or that it can be brought into line by some psychological exercise.

Life is a much more delicate instrument, and it cannot be standardized by formulas that treat human nature mechanistically or in robot-like style. Spiritually-oriented people know very well that growing older offers opportunities for greater experience and deeper understanding. No one else can live our lives for us; nor can another's philosophy substitute for our own inner growth. Age means more sympathy and compassion, clearer insights and profounder comprehension of life's private meanings. Older age helps make men more aware of life's delicacies — softer and more sympathetic to the hurts of others.

Not all of us will retain the physical verve and vigor which Anatole France, Churchill, Ben Gurion, Holmes, and fortunate others have kept to the close of life. Physical stamina certainly helps color our spiritual outlook. A healthy mind stays healthier in a healthy body. Unhappily, there is no guarantee that our steps won't fail, our eyes won't dim, or that our sight won't fail.

Some of us may wear out our bodies much too early. But not our minds and hearts. The more we use them now — the more mind and heart we will have left for use in later years. The sharper, the broader our penetration of life's mysteries and the more wisdom we accumulate now, the larger, and the more hopeful our grasp of life in the aging years that still lie ahead.

And if we come to the fullness of our life, ripe with time, we can mean more to ourselves because we mean more to others whose lives we may still shape and inspire.

The Kronos Quartet, coming to the Belfry on Monday

Good shows at Belfry

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

Some fine enteryainment is lined up at the Belfry next week.

On Monday at 8 p.m. the Belfry presents the Kronos Quartet, with David Harrington and Richard Balkin, violins; Michael Jones, viola and Walter Gray, cello.

The magical group will perform quartets by Bartok and Shostakovich, among others.

A wild three nights are expected on Feb. 11, 12 and 13 when Vancouver's Valri Bromfield of Saturday Night Live fame comes to the Belfry with her latest one-woman show, You're Eating Out Of The Dog's Dish.

Showtimes for the Bromfield show — superb satires on the lunacy of conventional behavior — are at 8 p.m. Tickets for Bromfield and the Kronos Quartet can be had from The Belfry, 1291 Gladstone Avenue, 385-6815.

□

For music collectors: Bruckner's Mass No. 2 in E Minor has been released on a new Angel disc, SQ (S-37112), with the John Aldis choir and the English Chamber Orchestra under the direction of Daniel Barenboim.

Five complete opera recordings are in the works for Beverly Sills, who has signed a long-term contract with Capitol Records. The performances will be released on the Angel label and affiliate companies of Capitol.

The Arts

Canadian National Ballet stars Karen Kain and Frank Augustyn left Moscow Sunday after a three-week tour of four Soviet cities. They received a standing ovation from more than 1,000 fans after their final performance Friday in Kiev. Kain and Augustyn also performed Giselle at Moscow's Bolshoi Theatre, and with the local companies in Tallinn, Volnius and Kiev.

The Camera As Engineer's Witness, an exhibition of photographs from the 1850s to 1900, is at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria until Feb. 27.

The Tuesday Noon Film Series will begin on Feb. 15 with the films of photographers Edward Weston, Dorothea Lange and Edward Steichen.

On Feb. 22 the noon series presents a film of Ansel Adams discussing his views on photography.

And on Mondays at 8 p.m. the gallery shows its series called A History of the Film: Style and Content.

Part I of the series, surveying film from its beginnings to the 1940s, will show on 22 consecutive Monday nights from Feb. 7 to June 27.

Quebec singers invade France

PARIS (Reuter) — Quebec has invaded France with protest singers, rock stars and balladeers who have won a 10-year battle for popularity in the land of their ancestors.

They have had two top television shows devoted to them, constantly tour the country and now often rival homegrown singers on French radio.

Their biggest boost came last November when Rene Levesque astounded Canada with the victory of his separatist Parti Quebecois in the Quebec provincial election.

But the singers have also seduced the French public with their twangy accents and the immense variety of music.

Robert Charlebois chooses rock to sing We are the Bastards of America, Giles Vigneault mocks bilingual Canada with a barn dance jig, and Felix Leclerc pours out his protests in gentle folk rhythms.

Leclerc, a craggy-face figure with a laconic sense of humor, is the Moses of the movement, the patriarch who first created interest in Quebec music in France.

His first major concert here a decade ago came in the same year that Charles de Gaulle launched his famous cry "Vive le Quebec libre" (long Live Free Quebec) from the balcony of the Montreal City Hall.

Other singers gradually followed in Leclerc's footsteps, and as Gilles Vigneault put it in a recent interview: "It was through songs that the people of Quebec first demanded their own identity."

ADD SOMETHING TO YOUR LIFE
It's very easy to fall into a routine. It sometimes makes for uncomplicated living, but most of us need a change to add some spice to the days. This can range from buying new clothes to just taking a walk. Adding something different to your menu can also do it. That's why I'd like to invite you to join us tonite for our EXTRA SPECIAL Italian Buffet at the Little Italy Ristorante in the James Bay Inn. Every Thursday nite between 5 and 9 p.m., we present authentic foods for Italy, cooked in the old Country Way. Some of the dishes you'll have tried before, others will be a new adventure. Our Ristorante is a warm, intimate place and we will make you feel welcome. Reservations are not needed, but we would appreciate a call if you're coming tonite at 384-7151. And oh yes, the price is only $5.95 per person and we guarantee you won't go away hungry. Lots of free parking at the Little Italy Ristorante in the James Bay Inn, 270 Government Street.

THE ACES® ON BRIDGE

by IRA G. CORN JR.
TEAM CAPTAIN

"It is better to be stupid like every one than to be clever like no one." — Anatole France.

In today's challenging game, declarer earned no medals for being clever. Although it may not be fair to say that he was stupid, the least we can do is observe where he went wrong so that at some time in the future someone might notice how cleverly we handled a similar situation.

South made the right decision when he jumped to the no trump game. However, after the play started, he paid no attention to the bidding he had heard and he promptly lost his vulnerable game.

East put up the spade king on the first trick and South won the ace. The diamond finesse looked handy and the diamond jack lost to East's king. Back came another spade to knock out declarer's last stopper and the game was gone forever. Declarer struggled and squirmed but there was no hope -- he had only eight tricks and when he tried to establish a club, East won the ace and the remaining spades beat the hand one trick.

How can one be clever with the diamond finesse offside? By remembering the bidding and putting the information to use. East's takeout double promised all the unseen high cards and declarer should have known the diamond finesse would lose. So instead of playing diamonds, declarer should first play clubs.

Playing a club to dummy's queen and East's ace might win on normal days. But when suits break badly, it's better to look for the play that cannot lose.

After winning the first spade, declarer should lead a heart to dummy's ace and lead a small club from dummy. If East takes the ace, declarer would have four clubs and five other sure tricks and the contract would succeed. If East ducks (as he probably would), declarer wins his club king and switches to the diamond suit. Now four diamond winners go along with his five other tricks and it's time for the next rubber.

Isn't it much better to be considered clever rather than stupid?

Answer: Four spades. North is strongly suggesting a game and the fine spade support should be enough. Do not gamble on three no trump since that contract may fail in many ways.

Pulp-paper: Skies darkening

By CRAIG MEREDITH
Colonist Correspondent

CROFTON — One of two machines involved in the Kraft pulp process at British Columbia Forest Products mill here will be shut down for 10 days Feb. 14, but both union and management spokesmen said it would not result in any layoffs.

Mill manager Al Wallace told the Colonist that half the Kraft mill was being shut down in order to correct an inventory overrun of 5,000 metric tons, and employees wanting holidays at this time would be accommodated.

"Those that don't will be found work to tide them over until the machine is operating again on Feb. 23," Wallace stated.

He said the machine was also shut down during the Christmas period for a week, and a similar arrangement was offered to employees who had holidays coming.

Robert Green, president of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada local, which represents the majority of the 1,050 employees at the Crofton mill, said the shutdown would affect about 125 jobs.

"There is no problem as far as we are concerned," he stated, "although the situation could change by the end of the month at the mill because of the labor situation at three mainland chemical plants."

He was referring to a coordinated move Monday by members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, which shut down three plants that produce chlorine and caustic soda for use in most of B.C.'s pulp mills.

Green said he understood the Crofton mill only had a 15-day supply of chemicals, but this was later revised upward by mill management, who said they had a month's inventory.

Reg Ginn, the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada national president, said the union may picket pulp mills if mill management tries to bring chemicals from other suppliers.

Local PPWC president Green said the union members at the Crofton mill have not formulated a policy if the company does attempt to circumvent the regular suppliers.

Animal control problems aired by region

The ability to strangle cougars with one's bare hands may not be a requisite for a dog control officer, but it certainly can be a help.

One of the most successful provincial officers was Joan Yates of Metchosin, members of the Capital Region Board's works and services committee were told Wednesday.

"Mrs. Yates went around just once to collect a dog licence fee," Sooke director Charles Perkins said. "If she didn't get it she took the dog away with her."

"SHE WAS TRAINED by strangling cougars with her bare hands," Colwood director John McIllree rejoined.

"She was a very vigorous dog collector," Perkins added.

The conversation came as directors discussed problems of dog control in unorganized areas since the provincial government all but abandoned its program last year.

Metchosin director Mac Tipton said there is a serious problem with dogs in Sooke, Metchosin, Langford and Colwood.

In Sooke and Metchosin, he said, the general complaints were about dogs killing livestock; in the other areas the complaints were of property damage, along with losses of rabbits and poultry.

"THE PROVINCIAL government has abandoned its responsibility completely," he said. "They just threw in their hands and quit."

Perkins said weekly RCMP reports from Sooke show that the most common complaints are about dogs bothering children or running deer.

Losses of farm stock have been high, the committee was told.

"In Sooke, 24 sheep were run over a bluff," Tipton said.

ON SALT SPRING Island, 17 sheep were killed on one farm alone, according to director George Heinekey.

"I know of two farmers who take turns patrolling their herds with rifles at night," he said.

"It's not the old-timers who are the problem. It is the people who have arrived from Vancouver or Victoria and because there is open country, they feel their dogs can run free, and the fact that some of them don't come home in the morning doesn't seem to make any difference."

VIEW ROYAL director Pat Massy said she had also heard complaints from dog owners, who said their animals had been impounded after officers had gone onto lawns to get them.

The committee decided to get in touch with Esquimalt MLA Lyle Kahl and tell him the committee is interested in taking over dog control, but wants provincial government assurance that any shortfall in costs would be made up by the government during the first five years of operation.

There is only one domestic animal protection officer on Vancouver Island, working in the Colwood, Langford and Metchosin area, since other officers were laid off on June 30, 1976.

Swiss skier pads World Cup margin

MARIBOR, Yugoslavia (CP) — Lise-Marie Morerod of Switzerland, skiing aggressively, won Wednesday's giant slalom and increased her World Cup lead over Austrian downhill ace Annemarie Moser-Proell.

Morerod, 24, covered the 1200-metre run, with 48 gates and a drop of 310 metres, in one minute 12.04 seconds. Monika Kaserer, 24, of Austria, was second in 1:12.13, followed by Fabienne Serrat of France in 1:12.91.

Morerod's victory brought her 25 points in the World Cup standings, giving her 238, Moser-Proell, who failed to finish among the top 10 in Wednesday's race, remained second with 191, and Kaserer, gaining 20 points, climbed to the third place with 156.

Kathy Kreiner, the 19-year-old Olympic gold medalist from Timmins, Ont., skied a cautious race and wound up 17th with a time of 1:15.30, while Susan Clifford of Old Chelsea, Que., had a slow section on the lower part of the course and finished with a time of 1:17.23, good for 32nd place.

Griffith decisions ring rival

NEW YORK (UPI) — Emile Griffith evoked occasional memories of greatness with a strong finish Wednesday night when he triumphantly celebrated his return to Madison Square Garden on the eye of his 39th birthday by hammering out a 10-round majority decision over a bloody Christy Elliott.

Griffith, who has his sights set on another title shot to add to his three welterweight and two middleweight reigns, was goaded by his manager, Gil Clancy, before the start of the final round.

"Fight your best round. This may be your last round in Madison Square Garden," Clancy told Griffith.

Griffith got up on his toes and came out aggressively. He dominated the round as blood flowed from Elliott's nose. Just before the end, Griffith landed a bullet-left to Elliott's face to nail down the narrow victory.

Seminar woos women

DUNCAN — An organizational and political skills seminar for women sponsored by the federal government's Secretary of State Department will be held at the Duncan United Church, 246 Ingram Street, this Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The objective of the seminar is to help women gain the skills necessary to participate in local, provincial and federal political systems.

Topics to be covered in workshops include: developing a strategy for the women's movement; developing a public image and understanding the mass media; and developing political skills.

'Unsafe to hang dog' on trial's evidence

NANAIMO (CP) — Opposing counsel in the British Columbia Supreme Court murder trial of John David Ross told jurors Wednesday that their deliberations might revolve more around the credibility of the witnesses than that of the accused.

"We still may not have heard the truth," said defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood.

He and crown counsel George MacMinn presented the case in which Ross, 34, is charged with the Nov. 1, 1975, fatal shooting of Malcolm Preston Cunningham, 23, of Victoria.

During the trial which began Jan. 10, court was told that police mistreated witnesses with threats and long periods of unrelenting interrogation, and offered them bribes.

Owen-Flood, citing police treatment of witnesses, said as a result of this treatment their testimony was "so tainted, so awful, you would be unsafe to hang a dog on it."

He added there was little likelihood that the threatened witnesses were telling the truth in all cases.

Witness Gordon Caldwell was interrogated without break for 23 hours and was offered money and immunity from prosecution on drug charges, the trial was told.

The defence counsel said police offered Caldwell $50,000, adding, "The evidence you get from such people is not worth a pinch of anything, not worth a damn."

McMinn questioned the credibility of witness Russell Mutter.

Mutter originally gave police a statement in which he implicated Ross in the murder. At this trial, Mutter repudiated that statement when he testified that another witness, Rodney Steigenberger, had confessed to him about killing Cunningham.

MacMinn referred to Mutter's testifbny about a rifle reported stolen.

Mutter had testifed that the rifle used in the kiling, his gun, was reported stolen Nov. 3, 1975. However, testimony by Victoria police officers indicated the theft report was made Nov. 2, 1975.

Showing the document to the jury, MacMinn said, "This document speaks for itself."

"You will have no difficulty to conslude the testimony Russell Mutter gave to this court is untrue," said MacMinn.

MP pulled 'rank' to get papers on Hughes estate

TORONTO (UPI) — A member of Parliament from B.C. used his influence to obtain documents on the Howard Hughes estate and gave them to a political contributor wanted in the U.S. on tax evasion and conspiracy charges, the Globe and Mail reported Wednesday.

In a copyrighted story, the newspaper said John Reynolds, who announced his resignation as a Conservative MP for the Vancouver area this week, got the documents from the Mexican government by telling officials he was investigating CIA activities in Canada.

Reynolds said Wednesday he did nothing improper.

The newspaper said Reynolds acknowledged in interviews he obtained the 60 pounds of papers Oct. 21 and gave them to John Meier, a U.S. citizen now living in Delta, part of Reynolds' constituency.

Meier, 43, is a former Hughes employee wanted in the U.S. on charges stemming from the sale of $8 million in mining claims to the Hughes Tool Co. He also has been charged with failing to appear in court. Canadian laws do not allow extradition on tax evasion charges.

The newspaper said Reynolds admitted that on Oct. 5 he wrote to A. G. Manero, a senior official in Mexico's attorney-general's office, and told him the documents were needed to investigate CIA activities in Canada and connections with Howard Hughes.

The letter was on House of Commons stationery and referred to an affidavit by a man who claimed to have spied on Meier for the CIA. None of the documents was passed on to the RCMP or any government department, the newspaper said.

The documents subsequently were photocopied by Vancouver accountant Anne Clemes-Trevillion. Miss Trevillion testified at a court hearing in Salt Lake City last month she was permitted to copy 3,428 documents after obtaining a letter of introduction from David Pickford, second secretary at the Canadian embassy in Mexico City.

After reviewing the papers, Reynolds wrote to Meier and told him he would forward them "in case there is something that may be relevant to your case in the United States," the Globe and Mail said.

The newspaper said Reynolds acknowledged he had received political contributions from Meier in the form of "some tickets to a $100-a-plate dinner."

Earlier this week, Reynolds announced he would resign his Commons seat to go to work for a California-based company and its Richmond subsidiary.

Minister baffled by rules

Environment Minister James Nielsen confessed Wednesday night he was "mystified" over federal regulations controlling the operation of oil tankers in Canadian waters.

Nielsen, prodded by Don Lockstead (NDP — Mackenzie), said in the Legislature he had written to his federal counterpart, Romeo LeBlanc, seeking some answers.

Lockstead expressed concern over the lack of controls on foreign tankers operating within Canada's 200-mile limit.

Lockstead, whose constituency includes a large part of B.C.'s northern coast, said the wreck of the Vanlene on Vancouver Island's west coast in 1971 cost the federal government $169,000 in fuel oil clean-up expenses, and said all vessels in B.C. waters should be adequately insured.

He wondered how many tankers entering B.C. waters were examined as to their seaworthiness, the ability of their officers to read charts, the quality of the charts, and whether any carried insurance.

Lockstead said he understood the federal government was still trying to recover the $169,000 of lost taxpayers' money that the Vanlene clean-up cost.

Nielsen said his replies would probably not directly answer the MLA's concerns, but he had written to LeBlanc asking how the $150-a-ton bond required under the Canadian Shipping Act would apply to B.C. waters, whether risk analyses had been done for various parts of the B.C. coast, and if Ottawa had defined areas of environmental responsibilities for the two governments.

Another plea by Lockstead for quick action to save the Coasts Ferries Service that runs to 100 small mainland communities went unanswered by the government side.

Lockstead said that unless a $300,000 subsidy was forthcoming soon from Ottawa, the company would close in March, leaving the communities isolated.

Burglary yielded 'enemies list'—MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Information used to compile a 1971 government "blacklist" was obtained illegally in a burglary during a fire, a Conservative MP charged in the Commons Wednesday.

Frank Oberle (PC — Prince George-Peace River) made the mysterious allegation when asking Prime Minister Trudeau for precise details on the RCMP or other security force investigation behind the list.

He did not elaborate on his charge.

The 1971 list and a letter written by Jean Pierre Goyer, then solicitor-general, contined the names of 21 public servants described as members of the new left with subversive intentions. It was circulated among members of the cabinet.

Trudeau told Oberle that he does not know how the information on the 21 was gathered and said he never asks the RCMP for such details.

Outside the Commons Oberle told reporters he has obtained information showing that the list was compiled on the basis of "documents selectively stolen from files in the office of a company in Toronto during a fire."

Oberle would not disclose any other details of the incident, saying he would do so today in the Commons if the government refuses to either supply the details or provide an inquiry or other forum "so I can tell what I know."

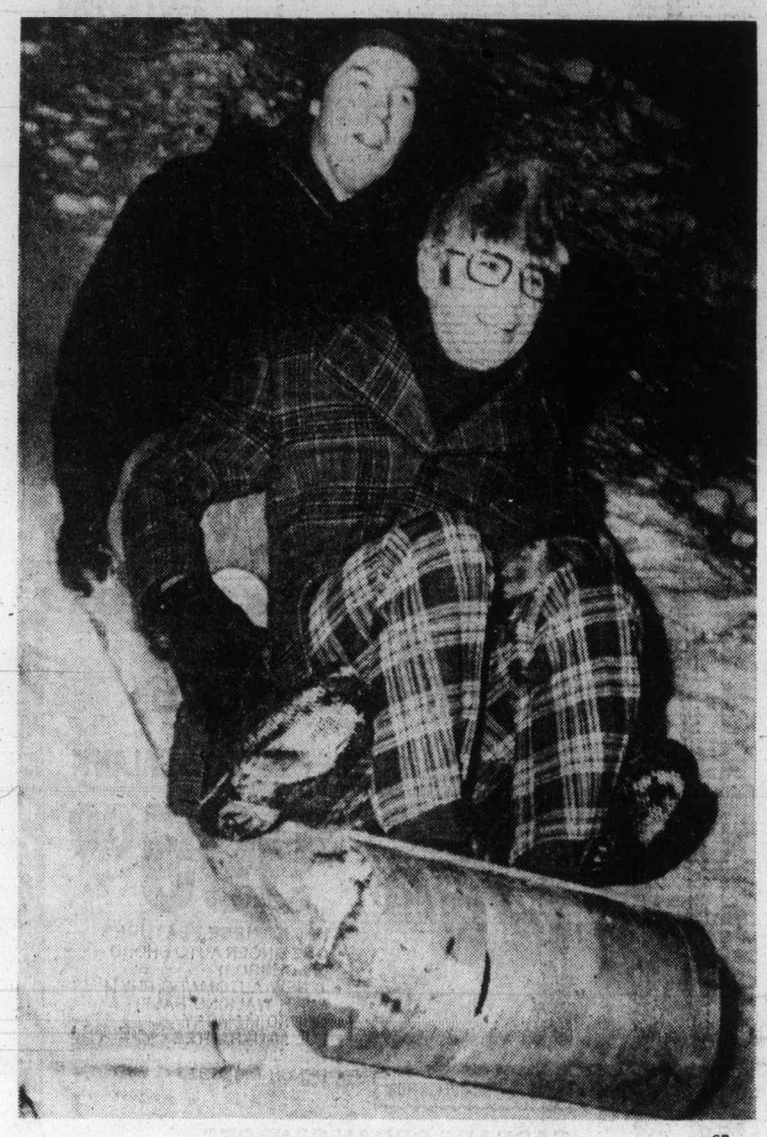

"I have information which makes me very nervous about the thing," said the MP who first divulged the list without the names, and Goyer letter, in the Commons last week.

Oberle said he told Solicitor-General Francis Fox everything he knew about the list a

Blacklist of employees denied

Bennett calls probe into ministry leak

Premier Bennett has ordered an internal probe of the environment ministry by the attorney-general to try to find a leak of confidential documents, including what has been called a list of enemies of the Social Credit government.

Bennett made the announcement shortly before the 6 p.m. adjournment of the Legislature Wednesday.

Before announcing the investigation, Bennett said he rejected allegations made earlier by William King (NDP - Revelstoke-Slocan) regarding a black list of government employees.

He said King had tabled a series of unrelated documents to "make a case which doesn't exist." Of far greater concern, Bennett said, was the fact that the confidential documents had found their way into New Democrats' hands from Environment Minister James Nielsen's office.

Scott Wallace (PC-Oak Bay) said he didn't object to the investigation but asked the premier to consider placing it under the jurisdiction of an all-party committee so that "justice can appear to be done" as well as being done. Bennett made no response.

Is it a blacklist comprised of "enemies" of the government? Or is it a letter from an over-concerned civil servant expressing personal opinions on other staff members?

King says it's the former. Bennett says it's the latter.

Whatever it is, it was tabled in the Legislature by King along with a statement charging that the premier and the environment minister were being at least evasive in answering questions.

The "blacklist" was first mentioned Tuesday by King and opposition leader David Barrett. Both wanted to know if the premier was aware that such a list had been forwarded from his office to the office of Nielsen.

Bennett said he was unaware of such a list and that, as far as he was concerned, no blacklist existed in government circles. Nielsen said he'd never received such a list.

King Wednesday asked leave of the house to make a formal statement and "table certain documents."

The documents turned out to be:

- A personal and confidential memorandum to Nielsen from Dan Campbell, head of inter-governmental affairs, outlining the need for reducing a "top-heavy bureaucracy."
- Two management charts outlining the management structure in the land management branch of the environment ministry.
- A list of order-in-council appointments made while the NDP was in power and covering appointments of aides to all political parties.
- A hand-written letter addressed to "Dan" and signed by Klaus Ohlemann.

The letter, dated Dec. 23, 1975 (the day after the Social Credit cabinet was sworn in)

Chapel users face wrath

OTTAWA (CP) — Dissident Roman Catholic priests have been warned they will be punished if they continue to celebrate mass in a separate Ottawa chapel.

The warning came in a recent letter to priests signed by Archbishop Joseph Aurele Plourde, who said the rebels' chapel was built without his consent.

"It goes without saying that the celebration of the mass and liturgical offices are not authorized," the letter states.

The $20,000 chapel, constructed by a 55-year-old postal worker, Maurice St. Jean, is the site of a revolt by conservative Catholics who celebrate the Tridentine Latin mass, banned by the church following the Vatican II reforms of the 1960s.

The letter, dated Jan. 17, says priests using the chapel face "appropriate action" by the archbishop, including removal of their powers in the diocese.

In a separate message which priests were instructed to deliver to their congregations Sunday, the archbishop urged his followers to prove they supported the church by avoiding the rebel chapel.

In response to the archbishop's letters, St. Jean said: "Great. The more publicity he's going to give us, the better."

Less than 100 people usually turn out for the masses, and the archbishop's reaction "shows how much they're afraid of us," says the father of 13 children.

Hefty cash jump for top servants

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy admitted Wednesday that senior civil servants could take up to 30 per cent of a retroactive 51 per cent pay hike in cash over a three-year period.

The increase, over three years ending April 1 this year, is for some 400 non-unionized civil servants, at the deputy minister and associate deputy minister levels.

In a statement "in reference to erroneous information given through the media," Mrs. McCarthy confirmed, however, that senior civil servants would get up to $20,000 in benefits under the agreement.

She said the New Democratic government, having signed "very generous" contracts with the unionized civil servants, agreed to a study which resulted in the "acceptance and implementation" of the raises.

Mrs. McCarthy said the mandarins, for 'giving up the benefits of collective bargaining, security, overtime pay and the 35-hour civil service week, deserved the compensation.

"No more than 10 per cent can be taken in cash. The rest may be used to buy extra vacation time (within limits), voluntary superannuation, education leave, pre-retirement leave, or pay technical or trade organization fees."

Mrs. McCarthy went on to say that a second level, some 800 department heads and the like, who had given up union security, the right to refuse overtime and the right to grievance, won 11 per cent a year.

A third group of about 130 employees, exempt from union membership because of the confidential nature of their work, were awarded "optional" benefits equal to 3 per cent of their pay.

Mrs. McCarthy confirmed the federal Anti-Inflation Board approved the raises because it "accepted that a prior commitment has been established" for the agreement.

Levesque rejects talks during police slowdown

MONTREAL (UPI) — The robbery and murder rate bulged in the wake of a metropolitan police slowdown to protest a lack of contract talks but Quebec Premier Rene Levesque Wednesday refused to negotiate "while police are holding a gun to our heads."

Earlier Wednesday the policemen had defied their union leaders and refused to end a work slowdown that has prompted a wave of armed robberies throughout the city including 20 bank heists. Police were also investigating five murders.

"We're so damned fed up with promises that there's no way we're going to end this action until we get a contract," said a union stewart for one police station.

Hydro cutbacks aimed at commercial sector

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro officials have met with federal and provincial government building operators, and now are meeting with commercial users in an effort to urge a cutback in lighting and a saving of energy.

"Cutting back of illumination in the commercial sector is going to be the next step (in energy conservation), because it is going to pay them," says Rejean Racine, manager of energy use and engineering for Hydro.

"People are going to start turning lights off because they'll find they can't afford them."

Racine's comments are aimed equally at the large buildings with lights blazing on sometimes empty offices and storekeepers who advertise their wares at night in floodlit display windows.

He notes that in Ontario the drain on electrical energy is so acute that government action is being threatened against commercial users who waste electricity by leaving lights on.

In B..C. there still is enough energy for essential requirements but, with 60 per cent of the total electrical energy consumption of a large office building being used for lighting, a great saving can be made, says Racine.

He says the 21-storey Hydro building in downtown Vancouver has been attempting to conserve on lighting and now a committee has been set up to look into further savings by such methods as turning out more lights earlier and providing high-intensity lighting only in certain offices where it is required.

Lottery dreams breeding 'generation of gamblers'

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto psychiatrist says government-run lotteries have dangerous psychological aspects and are breeding a generation of gamblers.

Dr. Jerry Cooper, head of the psychiatric unit of York-Finch General Hospital, said in a recent interview the get-rich-quick appeal of the lottery is a sign of crumbling values in a society that has lost faith in the old-fashioned work ethic.

People no longer believe that "hard work, sacrifice and the sweat of the brow will gain them some security," he said.

Many who buy $5 to $10 lottery tickets for a chance at up to $1 million in tax-free prize money actually believe they are going to win despite odds which lottery officials admit are astronomical, Cooper said.

It is childish and immature to think that playing lottery games is the way to get ahead, he said.

"They'd have a better chance if they went down to Las Vegas and started shooting craps," he added.

Cooper said Canadian lotteries flourish on people's false expectations, just as mobsters in large U.S. cities exploit the dreams of the ghetto poor with the illegal numbers racket.

He said Canadian provincial and national lotteries appeal mainly to middle-income wage earners who see them as their only chance to get out from under mortgages and government-controlled wages.

Since the Olympic Lottery, now called Loto-Canada, had its first draw in April, 1974, Canadians have spent more than $700 million on lottery tickets in the major national and provincial lotteries.

Tests confirm PCB spill reached harbor

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

A transformer explosion at the Canadian Cellulose mill near Prince Rupert 12 days ago released the toxic chemical polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) into Porpoise Harbor, federal pollution officials confirmed Wednesday.

And the federal fisheries department on Friday advised persons not to eat shellfish taken from Porpoise Harbor because of their possible contamination.

Crabs taken from about 150 yards to five miles away from the spill site were given "a clean bill of health" by the B.C. agriculture laboratory in Vancouver, where water, sediment, and shellfish samples were sent last week for tests, a federal pollution spokesman said Wednesday.

He stressed that tests on water and sediment from the harbor were only preliminary, and further tests would be required to determine concentrations of the chemical.

He said it was certain that PCB escaped from the drainage system of the CanCel mill into the harbor, but exactly how much escaped is not known.

As of Wednesday, there were no test results on crabs picked up within 100 yards of the spill site, he said.

Materials at the mill which may have come into contact with the chemical have been placed in steel drums and sealed for future disposal. There are about 100 drums of "potentially contaminated" debris, the spokesman said.

PCB can be destroyed only if it is burned at temperatures exceeding 2,500 degrees fahrenheit.

A spokesman for the provincial environment ministry said Wednesday that 25 gallons of PCB, trapped in a sump at the mill, were "placed in a safe container until it can be disposed of in a furnace hot enough to destroy it."

There are several sumps, which act as catchers, connected to a network of sewer lines at the mill.

A CanCel transformer released about 180 gallons of PCB when it overheated and exploded. About 120 gallons were contained on the roof of the mill while the rest escaped through a roof drain and into the network of sewers which discharge into the harbor.

Environmentalist Gary Gallon of SPEC said in a telephone interview from Vancouver last week that effects of PCB are usually not immediate.

He said the danger to humans comes when the chemical has dispersed itself into the food chain.

He said PCB does not cause outright death, but may cause cancer over a long period of time.

Manufacture of PCB in the U.S. will be outlawed on Jan. 1, 1979. The oily liquid is used as an insulator in electrical equipment such as transformers because it is difficult to ignite.

Curbs till 1978 says Macdonald

OTTAWA (UPI) — Price and wage controls will probably remain in effect until early 1978, Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said Wednesday at the conclusion of the two-day federal-provincial finance ministers' meeting.

"I would think it would be a matter of many months, perhaps into the new year, before there is an end to controls," Macdonald said.

"Sometime after the first of January is a probable time," he added.

Tuesday, Macdonald had told the meeting that economic conditions might allow the end of controls before the official termination date of December, 1978.

"The economic situation throughout 1977 and into 1978 looks relatively favorable for exit from the controls program," he said.

Macdonald said some provinces wanted the controls removed immediately, while others urged retention of the Dec. 31, 1978, termination. A civil service task force will examine provincial viewpoints further.

A confrontation between the federal government and Quebec Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau, expected by some, never materialized.

However, Macdonald would not unhesitatingly endorse investment in Quebec, an apparent divergence from the position of encouraging investment taken by Prime Minister Trudeau a week ago.

"I think that in terms of direct investment there has to be an element of uncertainty," Macdonald said.

"I would have to bring a foreign investor's attention to it," he said in reference to the provincial government's goal of an independent Quebec.

The federal and provincial governments disagreed over financial arrangements during the transition period before new federal-provincial tax sharing agreements take effect April 1.

The provincial governments have already been allowed a bigger share of tax revenue, but are still collecting revenue transfers under the old system. Some $800 million is in dispute.

"They shouldn't expect to be paid twice," said Macdonald, who admitted the calculation of the amount actually overpaid by the federal government was not yet settled.

He said he would "See what kind of compromise we can work out" before a bill affecting the dispute was presented to Parliament.

Paralysed East moves as weather improves

Colonist Wire Service

Conditions gradually returned to normal Wednesday as clean-up operations continued across southwestern Ontario after one of the worst snowstorms in recent memory hit the area earlier this week.

Environment Canada warned that another weather disturbance was moving into Ontario, but winds and snowfall were not expected to match the earlier storm which paralysed the region.

Schools in the Niagara area, closed since Friday, were to re-open today with the exception of a handful of small rural schools where children are transported by buses, officials said. Schools in other regions opened Wednesday.

To help municipalities in the storm's aftermath, Premier William Davis announced Tuesday that the province is setting up a special cabinet committee to study the logistical problems faced by the Niagara Peninsula and Prince Edward County.

In Ottawa, the House of Commons approved a proposal that the federal government consider defraying the cost of relief operations.

Meanwhile the cold, the layoffs and the fuel shortages continued Wednesday, but Americans in frozen cities and towns across the United States Midwest and East fought back with clean up and conservation efforts.

"It's still a disaster, but at last we're coping with it," said Edward Regan, chief executive of New York's Erie County, which includes hard-hit Buffalo.

While Congress worked on emergency energy legislation and officials warned of long-term and costly industrial shutdowns, new conservation measures were put into effect in some of the dozen or so states suffering the most from the cold.

Estimates on the number of people out of work because of factors directly or indirectly related to natural gas curtailments ranged up to two million, with Ohio reporting one million unemployed in that state alone.

The Federal Energy Administration said states reporting "significant plant closings and unemployment of over 30,000" included Alabama, Georgia, Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio, Kentucky, New York and Pennsylvania. States listed as having less severe problems were Iowa, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, North and South Carolina, Mississippi and West Virginia.

The Florida Citrus Comission has decided to lift its embargo on shipments of fresh fruit.

The commission imposed the embargo Jan. 24 to allow the inspection service time to isolate fruit that was damaged by the state's record freezes Jan. 10 to 13 and keep it from being shipped to market.

No fresh citrus was certified for sale or movement from the billion-dollar citrus belt during the embargo.

A CHANCE TO CHOOSE YOUR BABY'S SEX

Since earliest times, few topics have interested prospective parents more than the sex of their children. A few years ago Reader's Digest published the condensation of a book by a Columbia University gynecologist-obstetrician outlining a set of procedures for helping parents pre-select the sex of their children. Since then the doctor has heard from nearly 3,000 people who have followed his advice, fewer than a dozen reporting failure. Now a revised edition of that book has been published, and the February issue of Reader's Digest presents a further condensation. ON WAY TO RECORD is Toronto's Ian Turnbull (2) who cuts in behind Al Cameron (26) of Detroit Red Wings during Wednesday night action in Toronto. Turnbull scored five goals as the Maple Leafs belted Detroit 9-1, becoming the first defenceman in National Hockey League history to accomplish the feat. — CP

Five goals by Turnbull record for defencemen

Ian Turnbull, who is partnered with Borje Salming on what many claim to be the best defence conbination in the National Hockey League, gave the argument quite a boost Wednesday night by scoring a record five goals.

They came while Toronto Maple Leafs were romping to a 9-1 win over tthe inept Detroit Red Wings in a game which had a scoreless first period.

The 23-year-old Turnbull, who is in his fourth NHL season, opened the scoring in the second minute of the second period and completed his splurge with three goals in the third period.

It was the first time an NHL defenceman has had more than four goals in a game, a record equalled six times and shared by five players. None of them named Bobby Orr.

Harry Cameron of Toronto Arenas set the old record by scoring four goals in a 7-5 victory over Montreal Canadiens on Dec. 26, 1917. Then Newsy Lalonde of Canadiens got even with four goals in a 13-4 rout of the Arenas on Jan. 11, 1919.

That set up a unique accomplishment. On March 3, 1920, Lalonde and Cameron, then teammates with the Canadiens, each scored four goals in a 16-3 rout of Quebec Bulldogs.

Sprague Cleghorn of Canadiens equalled the record in 1922, and then came another oddity. John McKinnon of Pittsburgh Pirates scored four goals in a 10-5 win over Toronto Maple Leafs on Nov. 19, 1929. Ten days later, also in Pittsburgh, Hap Day scored four times to lead the Maple Leafs to a 10-5 win over the Pirates.

Turnbull, who now has a league-leading total of 16 goals (for defencemen) got his first goal after being set up in the slot by Lanny McDonald, and his second came less than nine minutes later while both clubs had two men off with penalties.

Jim Rutherford replaced Ed Giacomin in the Detroit goal in the third period, and Turnbull got No. 3 with a slap shot from the point. Then he tied the record by bursting in close to bang the puck in, and the record-setter came on a feed from Salming, who drew three assists in the game to boost his league-leading total to 49.

Turnbull's performance took place in front of 16,422 home-town fans, a different scene than greeted Chicago Black Hawks.

The Hawks, now only one point out of the Smythe Division lead, are again on the move. But not too many Chicagoans seem to care. The Hawks ran their unbeaten streak to five games by taking Atlanta Falcons, 4-2, but only about 7000 fans were there to watch.

Pittsburgh Penguins, 9-4-3 since Christmas, continued their drive to nail down second place in the Norris Division with a 5-2 home-ice win over Minnesota North Stars.

Top calibre volleyball at UVic on weekend

Top international-calibre action is in store for volleyball fans this weekend when 28 teams take part in the University of Victoria tournament for both men and women.

Twelve women's teams have entered the three-day competition, which starts Friday afternoon and continues through Sunday afternoon at the McKinnon gymnasium, the UVic old gym and, on Saturday, Mount Douglas high school.

Pepperdine University of Los Angels and two Seattle squads add international flavor to the women's division but the team to beat will probably be Vancouver Chimos, who have had a virtual monopoly on the aCnadian championship for the past decade. Olympic team members Cathy Girvan and Patty Olson and former national team players Helen Hunt and June Wilms give the Chimos the pre-tourney edge.

Sandy Vrba, a U.S. national team player in 1974, heads the Pepperdine squad.

University of B.C. Thunderettes, UVic Vikettes, University of Calgary, Edmonton Phoenix, J.P. Volleyball club of Surrey, two Victoria "Y" teams and Victoria Volleyball Club round out the field.

UBC features national junior team player Dorothy Schwaiger while the Kent Andrews-coached Vikettes have national junior team player Linda Chiu, Denise Montgomery, Alison Penny and Diana McDonald in the lineup and could produce several upsets.

The men's division boasts one of the most competitive fields ever assembled for a Canadian tournament.

The Gama Filho University team, Brazilian intercollegiate champions last year, will be here and the squad will be led by Paulo Roberto de Frietas, a national team member and one of the top setters at the 1776 Olympics in Montreal.

University of Winnipeg has national team players Garth Pishke, a centre blocker, and Don Michelski, a setter. Pishke is regarded as the top player on the Canadian team and is one of the top jumpers in the world.

Victoria's Greg Russell, another national team player, sparks the University of Manitoba entry, handled by national team coach Bill Neville.

Also competing are the Calgary Volleyball Club, University of B.C. Thunderbirds, UVic Vikings, Loyola University of Southern California, Vancouver Volleyball Club, Multnomah Athletic Club of Portland, Edmonton Phoenix, B.C. Olympics, Eugene, Ore. Volleyball Club, and three B.C. provincial teams.

Coached by Al Scott, the Vikings face Brazil at 9 p.m. Friday in one of the feature matches.

Action starts at 4 p.m. Friday and resumes Saturday at 9 a.m. Quarter-finals in the men's division will be played Saturday evening and semi-finals and finals in both divisions will be held Sunday with the women's final at 1 p.m. and the men's final at 2:30 p.m.

Barons' players, owner given proposal deadline

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Barons were asked Wednesday to take a 27 per cent deferment in pay to keep the National Hockey League team alive the rest of the season, and some quickly agreed.

The rest have until noon Friday to make up their minds, said Alan Eagleson, executive director of the NHL Players' Association, adding that he recommendd acceptance.

The deferment plan was conditional on unanimous agreement by the players, Eagleson said.

And Mel Swig, the beleaguered San Francisco businessman who owns a major interest in the team that has yet to complete its first season here, also was given a deadline.

John Ziegler, chairman of the NHL board of governors who joined Swig and Eagleson in four hours of talks here, said the league would wait until May 31 for payment of the $250,000 the team owes, but that would be it.

The league has put $8 million into the team, virtually all of it during the club's previous nine-year California sojourn as the Golden Seals, "and that's enough," Ziegler said.

The pay delay proposal included no general guarantee the club would operate next year, Eagleson said.

But it did include a guarantee the 24 players involved would get the full 72 per cent remainder of their pay through the rest of the season, if they accept the plan, Eagleson said.

He said Swig agreed to his requirement the money go into a bank as prepayment to assure the salaries would be available.

The team wasn't paid on schedule Monday or Tuesday.

Eagleson said the future of the team now depends on the players and on the willingness of the board of governors to go along with the plan when it meets Feb. 11 in Chicago.

If the players agree and the governors agree, then By Feb. 17 Swig "has to fish or cut bait," he added.

Under league rules covering pay default, a player becomes a free agent if payment isn't made within 15 days after he gives notice to the team owner.

If either group rejects the plan, Eagleson went on, "I'm certain that between the 12th and the 17th that Mr. Swig will liquidate his assets in the same manner as anyone else would."

He said that by evening, 16 players had given Swig default notices and 10 had signed the pay agreement.

The deferment is retroactive to Jan. 1, and that figures out to 13 per cent for the season, he added.

Its aim is simple: "the survival of the club," Eagleson said.

And the association's position also is clear-cut, he went on.

"There are six players that are crucial to the franchise, six more that are marketable, and 12 of the 24 people will not find jobs," he said. "At least four of those people (the crucial six) have to remain in Cleveland if the franchise is to remain credible."

Swig, of course, may sell or trade players within the 15-day default deadline, he said, adding that "if there are four that agree to stay and two or more that are not interested and Mr. Swig can replace them," then that too might be okay.

Meanwhile, he said, the players have an obligation to play the next 14 days without pay before they are on their own.

Dale loses ground

Dale Shaw lost ground Wednesday in her bid to qualify fodr the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

The former Victoria champion, Canada's woman golfer of the year in 1975, had putting miseries in the second round of the 72-hole test tournament at Sarasota, Florida, and is 17th at the half-way point.

She carded a 79 Wednesday, seven over par on the 6302-yard Bent Tree Golf and Racquet Club course, and is at 159 for the first 36 holes.

That's nine strokes behind two U.S. golfers, Debbie Massey and Debbie Skinner, who share the lead. Miss Massey, who retained the Canadian amateur championship last year, made a big leap Wednesday, carding a two-under 7 to get her 150.

Conditions Wednesday were about the same as for the opening round on Tuesday — definitely on the cool side with what was described as a two-club wind blowing throughout.

The decision on how many in the field of 48 will get cards wasn't to be announced until this morning. It had been previously announced that LPGA playing cards would be issued to everyone scoring 312 or better for the 72 holes, but if a maximum number is set it may not be necessary to score 312.

It is, however, likely that Miss Shaw is currently on the shady side.

"I know," she said Wednesday, "that I will have to do better in the third round."

She felt that a 76, or even a 77, today would keep her in the running to be among the new card-holders.

Eastern skaters earn two titles

CALGARY (CP) — Lorri Baier of Mitchell, Ont., and Lloyd Eisler of Seaforth, packed their 2½ minute program with activity and combined to complete the first throw double axel in Canadian novice competition as they won the novice pairs title Wednesday in the 1977 Canadian figure skating championships.

The brilliant performance of the acrobatic 13-year-olds gave teams developed by coach Kerry Leitch of Preston Figure Skating Club the top two spots. Lee-Ann Jackson of Brantford and Roger Collins-Wright of Cambridge combined to finish second.

Vanessa Howe and Jeffrey Mawle of Victoria finished eighth.

Earlier, Marianne Van Bommel and Wayne Deweyert of St. Thomas Figure Skating Club won the novice dance event to become the first champions of the competition.

The Ontario youngsters were named first by five of seven judges to nip Laura King and Doug Kelly of the Ottawa Minto Club for the title.

Rhonda and Jamie Greenwood of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., were third, followed by Michael Tracy of Coquitlam and Kerry Spong of Vancouver, Jennifer and Oliver Coomes of Victoria and Janet and Terry Scheffee of Peterborough, Ont.

Juan de Fuca King John Gulls upset Fuller Lake Flyers 5-3 Wednesday night and retained fourth place in the South Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Gulls, who lead Oak Bay Trios by two points in the battle for the final playoff spot, scored the only two goals of the third period at Fuller Lake Arena to earn their 15th win of the season.

In a game at Lake Cowichan, the Trios romped to a 7-1 win over Lake Cowichan Bairds Trucking. Trios play host to the Gulls tonight at Oak Bay Arena.

Tom Wilson, Kevin Kellington, Brad Girling, Bob Grant and Perry Therrien scored for the Gulls and Rob Kadun, with two goals, and Wayne Wrigglesworth scored for the third-place Flyers.

Stan Alstad and Clay Bertoia scored two goals each for the Trios, Ken Wilson, Kerry Blain and Steve Hunt were the other marksmen and Shindy Kalar scored the Lake Cowichan goal.

Vic High takes lead as St. Mikes idle

Victoria High took advantage of a schedule change to move into first place Wednesday in the Greater Victoria inter-high school rugby league.

The Titans scored a 22-10 win over visiting Spectrum and jumped one point up on St. Michael's University School, which had a match with Claremont Spartans postponed until Friday.

Mount Douglas Mountainmen moved into a second-place tie with SMU by thumping Reynolds, 39-10; Parkland Panthers trimmed Belmont, 20-0, and Oak Bay Barbarians won by default over Esquimalt. Oak Bay played an exhibition match with Alberni Chieftains and were 21-0 winners.

Tim White led the Vic High attack with two tries, Steve Forsyth scored a try and penalty goal, Tim Curtis added a try and Mike deGoede booted a penalty goal. Peter Smillie and Brian Bell scored tries for Spectrum and Smillie added a conversion.

At Mount Douglas Bob Young (2), Bruce Halter, Ian Butters, Jim Campbell and Wayne Mahar scored tries, Kerry Sheppard booted a conversion and penalty goal and Dave Zaparinuk wicked three conversions and a penalty goal.

Lance Mitchell scored a try and Louie Garroway booted two penalty goals for Reynolds, which trailed by only 13-10 at the half.

Brett Hartley scored two tries for Parkland, Darryl Stubbs scored a try and added two conversions and Darryl Bussey scored a try.

At Oak Bay, Steve Bristow (2), Steve Brice and Craig Bentley scored tries, Mark Britner booted a penalty goal and Andy Johnstone added a conversion.

Bruins start long trip by bowing to Chiefs

New Westminster Bruins started their longest road trip of the Western Canada Hockey League season on a losing note Wednesday.

The Western Division leaders, scheduled to play 11 games in 14 nights, took a 5-2 setback from the Chiefs in Kamloops. Bruins, who enjoy four games in hand on the second-place Chiefs, fell behind 1-0 in the first period, 3-0 in the second and were down 5-1 before Brad Maxwell scored his second goal of the game late in the final 20 minutes.

The victory moved the Chiefs one point up on Victoria Cougars but the Cougars now have three games in hand.

In other Wednesday action, Portland Winter Hawks moved to within four points of the Cougars by thumping the visiting Lethbridge Broncos, 6-3; Flin Flon Bombers blasted Winnipeg Monarchs, 13-5; Saskatoon Blades topped Regina Pats, 7-3, and Brandon Wheat Kings were 7-3 winners over Medicine Hat Tigers.

Wayne Babych scored twice for the Winter Hawks, who visit Victoria for a Saturday night game.

In Flin Flon, Jordy Douglas, Ray Neufeld and Kim Davis each scored three goals for the Bombers and in Brandon, Dan Bonar was a three-goal marksman for the Wheat Kings.

Exposition centre society takes step forward

Special to The Colonist

Nanaimo businessman Norm Christensen was elected the first president of the Madrona Exposition Centre Society at its annual general meeting held recently in the Malaspina College Theatre.

The society was established last spring to construct the Exposition Centre at Malaspina College with funds supplied by the National Museums of Canada, the provincial Recreation Facilities Fund and the people of the area. Construction of the building started in mid-December and once it is completed it will be handed over to the Malaspina College, which has already agreed to provide the necessary operating funds.

Christensen heads a board of directors that includes vice-president Sabina Taylor, secretary Jacqueline Ball and treasurer Ted Woolard along with community representatives Gino Sedola (City of Nanaimo), Judy Beldsoe (parks and recreation), Beryle Bennett (college council), John Barnard (Chamber of Commerce), Zane Lewis (Nanaimo Museum), Earle Frood (arts Council), Ray Brookbank (Regional District) and special advisors Gael Tower and Peter McMullan from the college.

The Cowichan Valley Regional Arts Council has still to nominate its representative and the District 69 Arts Council (Parksville-Qualicum) has also been invited to take a seat on the board.

John Charnetski, the college art instructor who has spearheaded the drive to build the centre, outlined its history and explained that a further application had been made to the federal government for assistance in closing the $48,000 gap that exists between the total funds raised already, $248,000, and the estimated cost of the centre, $295,400.

"When we came to the point of deciding whether or not to build the centre we found ourselves caught in a real bind," he explained. "We knew we were still about $48,000 short but, at the same time, we had to start construction or run the risk of losing the grants from the federal and provincial governments.

"I am quite certain we have done the right thing and we have now applied for emergency federal funding to make up the deficit. One of the reasons for the big increase in the cost of the building was the National Museums' insistence on a very high standard of temperature and humidity controls. Without these we would have no chance of qualifying to host the really good exhibitions that are available from a variety of different sources," he explained.

Charnetcki added that the centre, which will have two galleries, was a most economical type of wooden building which will cost around $60 a square foot, a figure that includes furnishings and architects fees.

Charnetski added that the first objective of the new board would be to plan a variety of activities that would be co-ordinated to provide a really determined fund raising drive. "This is something that has to be done right away. We can't just leave things where they stand at the moment," he added.

Mayor's hearing April 5

COURTENAY — Preliminary hearing has been set for April 5 for Mayor William Moore, charged with two counts of perjury and one count of wilfully attempting to obstruct justice.

The charges were laid after a trial last June in which Moore was convicted of driving with a blood-alcohol count of more than .08.

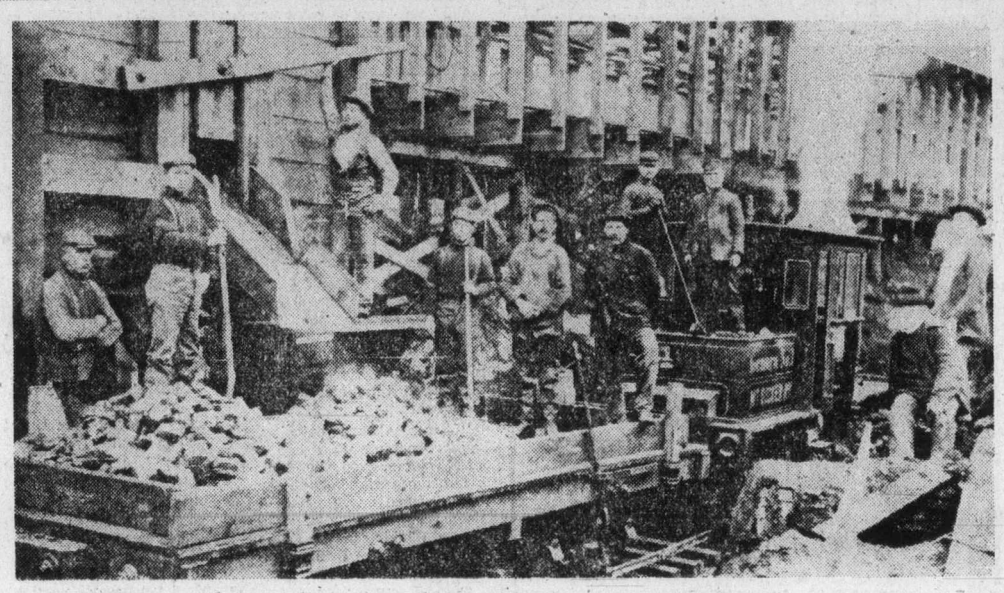

The perjury counts allege he committed perjury in a provincial court trial by falsely swearing he had not been driving a car and also falsely swearing he was a passenger in the car driven by his wife.

Moore protested the delay between his trial and laying of the perjury charges. He said it was very difficult to live with such charges in a small community.

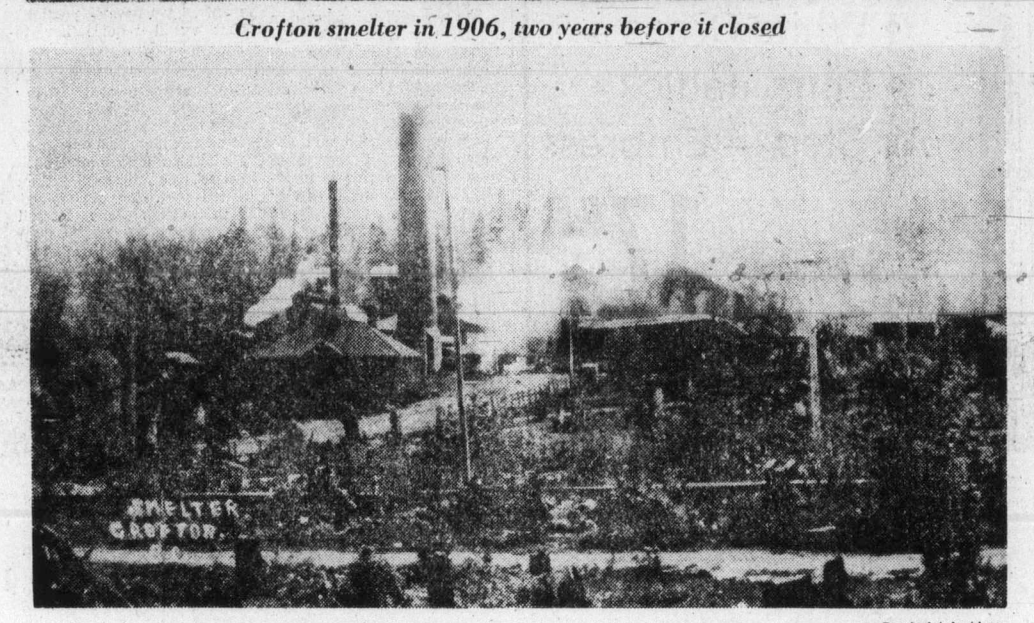

Crown counsel Jim Taylor told the court Moore's trial concluded June 23 and there followed discussion between the crown counsel and the regional crown counsel.

"It's a serious matter," he said, "not to be entered upon lightly."

Moore elected trial by judge without jury and was remanded to the April preliminary hearing.

Seminar woos women

DUNCAN — An organizational and political skills seminar for women sponsored by the federal government's Secretary of State Department will be held at the Duncan United Church, 246 Ingram Street, this Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The objective of the seminar is to help women gain the skills necessary to participate in local, provincial and federal political systems.

Topics to be covered in workshops include: developing a strategy for the women's movement; developing a public image and understanding the mass media; and developing political skills.

Each participant will be able to attend two of the three workshops; one at the morning session and one in the afternoon.

Resource persons are women with experience in mass media, brief preparation, research, elected office, and various aspects of election campaigns.

There is no cost for the workshops and daycare is available at no charge, but participants are asked to bring their own lunches. Coffee and tea will be provided.

Pre-register by phoning Rene Hill at 748-3854; pre-registration is essential if daycare is needed.

The seminar will be offered in Parksville, Courtenay and Port Hardy later in February and early March.

Soft-cover book

Crofton marks 75th year

CROFTON — To celebrate this waterfront community's 75th birthday this year, a 40-page soft-cover book was put on sale this week documenting the area's colorful history.

It was written by Crofton residents Mrs. Pearl Haley and Mrs. Dorie Killick, who spent two years researching and gathering the information of the book with other members of the Old Crofton School Museum Society.

Eight hundred copies were published and proceeds from the sale of the book called The Early Years will go into the restoration of the Old Crofton School, which was saved from demolition by the society in 1971.

British Columbia Forest Products, which operates the pulp and paper mill at Crofton, has already purchased 200 copies of the will-illustrated edition.

Sewer-water loan bylaw

Nanaimo has to go to vote

NANAIMO — It's now official. They city will have to go to a vote on a controversial $15 million sewer and water loan bylaw.

It was announced at city council this week that a petition organized by the Concerned Citizens' Committee had sufficient names to force the city to take the bylaw to the people.

A total of 1,131 names was needed to force the vote and after careful checking by city hall staff, the petition was found to contain 1,198 legitimate signatures.

The vote is expected to be held in March or early April.

The CCC decided to try to force a vote because it is against the city's policy of having all city taxpayers pay for all sewer and water projects.

The CCC feels only those benefitting directly should pay for projects, and that the "over-all" system panders to developers.

The city says the over-all system is the only one that is fair to everybody. All areas sooner or later will need money spent on sewer and water and the over-all system keeps individual costs lower by spreading the load around as many people as possible, they say.

Meanwhile, Nanaimo council, as expected, has adopted a curfew bylaw for those under 15 years of age between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. on nights preceding a school day and from midnight to 6 a.m. at other times.

Penalty for habitual disregard of the bylaw is a $5 fine for parent or guardian.

But no layoffs yet

Skies darkening in pulp-paper labor situation

By CRAIG MEREDITH
Colonist Correspondent

CROFTON — One of two machines involved in the Kraft pulp process at British Columbia Forest Products mill here will be shut down for 10 days Feb. 14, but both union and management spokesmen said it would not result in any layoffs.

Mill manager Al Wallace told the Colonist that half the Kraft mill was being shut down in order to correct an inventory overrun of 5,000 metric tons, and employees wanting holidays at this time would be accommodated.

"Those that don't will be found work to tide them over until the machine is operating again on Feb. 23," Wallace stated.

He said the machine was also shut down during the Christmas period for a week, and a similar arrangement was offered to employees who had holidays coming.

Robert Green, president of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada local, which represents the majority of the 1,050 employees at the Crofton mill, said the shutdown would affect about 125 jobs.

"There is no problem as far as we are concerned," he stated, "although the situation could change by the end of the month at the mill because of the labor situation at three mainland chemical plants."

He was referring to a coordinated move Monday by members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers' International Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada, which shut down three plants that produce chlorine and caustic soda for use in most of B.C.'s pulp mills.

Green said he understood the Crofton mill only had a 15-day supply of chemicals, but this was later revised upward by mill management, who said they had a month's inventory.

Reg Ginn, the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada national president, said the union may picket pulp mills if mill management tries to bring chemicals from other suppliers.

Local PPWC president Green said the union members at the Crofton mill have not formulated a policy if the company does attempt to circumvent the regular suppliers.

"When the situation arises we will contact the Vancouver local and then try to determine what directions we should take," Green said.

Commenting on the eventual lack of chemicals if the mainland walkout continued, the Crofton mill manager said the company was still undecided on what steps to take should the situation arise.

"There is talk that any chemical brought in from other suppliers would be classed as hot . . . we are just hoping the situation will sort itself out before we run out," he stated.

The walkout at the three mainland chemical plants, according to officials from both unions, resulted because members were upset at having their 1976 contract rolled back by the federal Anti-Inflation Board.

Animal control problems aired by region

The ability to strangle cougars with one's bare hands may not be a requisite for a dog control officer, but it certainly can be a help.

One of the most successful provincial officers was Joan Yates of Metchosin, members of the Capital Region Board's works and services committee were told Wednesday.

"Mrs. Yates went around just once to collect a dog licence fee," Sooke director Charles Perkins said. "If she didn't get it she took the dog away with her."

"SHE WAS TRAINED by strangling cougars with her bare hands," Colwood director John McIlree rejoined.

"She was a very vigorous dog collector," Perkins added.

The conversation came as directors discussed problems of dog control in unorganized areas since the provincial government all but abandoned its program last year.

Metchosin director Mac Tipton said there is a serious problem with dogs in Sooke, Metchosin, Langford and Colwood.

In Sooke and Metchosin, he said, the general complaints were about dogs killing livestock; in the other areas the complaints were of property damage, along with losses of rabbits and poultry.

"THE PROVINCIAL government has abandoned its responsibility completely," he said. "They just threw in their hands and quit."

Perkins said weekly RCMP reports from Sooke show that the most common complaints are about dogs bothering children or running deer.

Losses of farm stock have been high, the committee was told.

"In Sooke, 24 sheep were run over a bluff," Tipton said.

ON SALT SPRING Island, 17 sheep were killed on one farm alone, according to director George Heinekey.

"I know of two farmers who take turns patrolling their herds with rifles at night," he said.

"It's not the old-timers who are the problem. It is the people who have arrived from Vancouver or Victoria and because there is open country, they feel their dogs can run free, and the fact that some of them don't come home in the morning doesn't seem to make any difference."

VIEW ROYAL director Pat Massy said she had also heard complaints from dog owners, who said their animals had been impounded after officers had gone onto lawns to get them.

The committee decided to get in touch with Esquimalt MLA Lyle Kahl and tell him the committee is interested in taking over dog control, but wants provincial government assurance that any shortfall in costs would be made up by the government during the first five years of operation.

There is only one domestic animal protection officer on Vancouver Island, working in the Colwood, Langford and Metchosin area, since other officers were laid off on June 30, 1976.

Cowichan Region's planning director calls it quits

Colonist Correspondent

DUNCAN — Director of planning for the Cowichan Valley Region District for the past three years, Ken Stinson, told the Colonist Wednesday that he has tendered his resignation effective March 15.

The 34-year-old planner, who has been instrumental in bringing regulatory bylaws into Cowichan Valley electoral areas, substantiated the rumor that had been circulating since Tuesday.

When the Colonist contacted regional board chairman Ken Paskin about the rumor, he said he would not verify or deny it until such time as discussions were held with other board members.

But later on Wednesday, Paskin admitted he had received the resignation with deep regret.

"He was the right man at the right time for the Cowichan Valley and I have tried to get him to reconsider but he had made up his mind," Paskin said.

Stinson told the Colonist he was returning to the Lower Mainland where he worked previously, to start a private consulting practice.

Asked if the recent resignation of the Cowichan Valley Region Board administrator or any other matter relating to the district had prompted his resignation, the planning director said no.

"I am resigning for strictly personal reasons. It has nothing to do with Mr. Sharp's resignation or the recent election of a new board chairman.

"I have been considering this for a number of months," Stinson stated, adding that it was just coincidental that he tendered his resignation on the day the former administrator's resignation became effective.

The former administrator, Robert Sharp, tendered his resignation on Jan. 1 with one month's notice to become municipal clerk of Saanich after spending less than a year with the Cowichan Valley Region Board.

It was reported in Sunday's Colonist that a Vancouver management consulting firm has been retained by the regional board to help fill the district's top non-elected post and also conduct a review of the local government's administration practices.

Commenting on the regional district's progress in planning since he arrived, Stinson said that most of the groundwork for future years has been done now and he was pleased to be a part of it.

He admitted there has been some reaction to the institution of building bylaws and zoning regulations in the electoral areas.

"Nobody wants to be regulated or legislated, but at the same time the public asks us to solve their problems. You can't do one without the other," the planner stated.

Stinson agreed that among developers and real estate interests in the Cowichan Valley, he wasn't always referred to in the nicest terms.

"It is understandable . . . the planning department, which acts under direction from the board, has made a lot of developeers work for their money and they haven't appreciated this,"

The Kronos Quartet, coming to the Belfry on Monday

Good shows at Belfry

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

Some fine entertainment is lined up at the Belfry next week.

On Monday at 8 p.m. the Belfry presents the Kronos Quartet, with David Harrington and Richard Balkin, violins; Michael Jones, viola and Walter Gray, cello.

The magical group will perform quartets by Bartok and Shostakovich, among others.

A wild three nights are expected on Feb. 11, 12 and 13 when Vancouver's Valri Bromfield of Saturday Night Live fame comes to the Belfry with her latest one-woman show, You're Eating Out Of The Dog's Dish.

Showtimes for the Bromfield show — superb satires on the lunacy of conventional behavior — are, at 8 p.m. Tickets for Bromfield and the Kronos Quartet can be had from The Belfry, 1291 Gladstone Avenue, 385-6815.

Part I of the series, surveying film from its beginnings to the 1940s, will show on 22 consecutive Monday nights from Feb. 7 to June 27.

Quebec singers invade France

PARIS (Reuter) — Quebec has invaded France with protest singers, rock stars and balladeers who have won a 10-year battle for popularity in the land of their ancestors.

They have had two top television shows devoted to them, constantly tour the country and now often rival homegrown singers on French radio.

Their biggest boost came last November when Rene Levesque astounded Canada with the victory of his separatist Parti Quebecois in the Quebec provincial election.

But the singers have also seduced the French public with their twangy accents and the immense variety of music.

Robert Charlebois chooses rock to sing We are the Bastards of America, Giles Vigneault mocks bilingual Canada with a barn dance jig, and Felix Leclerc pours out his protests in gentle folk rhythms.

Leclerc, a craggy-face figure with a laconic sense of humor, is the Moses of the movement, the patriarch who first created interest in Quebec music in France.

His first major concert here a decade ago came in the same year that Charles de Gaulle launched his famous cry "Vive le Quebec libre" (long Live Free Quebec) from the balcony of the Montreal City Hall.

Other singers gradually followed in Leclerc's footsteps, and as Gilles Vigneault put it in a recent interview: "It was through songs that the people of Quebec first demanded their own identity."

In a province where 80 per cent of the six million people are French-speaking, he explained: "My country is a language. We were threatened with being wiped off the map by the supremacy of a conquering tongue."

Flower-counters sniff daisies in their wine

The Greater Victoria Chamber of Commerce's flower-count promotion at the Captain's Palace restaurant Tuesday was nothing to sneeze at.

Where else in Victoria on a weekday afternoon could guests hobnob with the captains of commerce while sniffing yellow or white daisies in their sparkling wine?

The gathering was held to promote Victoria's second annual flower count Feb. 14 to 18.

The flower count is "aimed at letting the rest of Canada know that spring comes first to Victoria," chairman Carmella Costigan said at the well-irrigated affair.

The five-day flower count, sponsored by the chamber's tourist and convention committee, will ask Victorians to count the blossoms in their gardens or balconies. Three switchboard operators in the View and Douglas window of Eaton's will record the count. The numbers are 383-3111, 3112, or 3113.

As part of the chamber's tourist promotion, about 15,000 seed-packet postcards will be sent across Canada and to the U.S. The "cards" open with this greeting: "The Garden City of Victoria would like to flower your world," and contain the types of seeds of flowers that grow in the municipal hanging baskets.

About 150 T-shirts with scented flower logos and the inscription, "Victoria, Canada's Best Bloomin' City," will be sent to "morning men on radio stations, television weathermen and news editors across Canada," Mrs. Costigan said.

On Feb. 16, at a chamber luncheon during the flower count, the guest speaker will be nurseryman William Vander Zalm, she said.

Last year 4,000 Victorians phoned in to report a total of 183,638 flowers outdoors during the flower-count week in February.

Mrs. Costigan said the target this year was 250,000 blooms.

CUPE delivers first pitch

Municipal bargaining opens in ball park

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

The Canadian Union of Public Employees was on the mound at Lambrick Park Tuesday to deliver the first pitch in its major contract game with the core municipalities and the Capital Region.

To the employers, it would have to be called ... Ball One, High ... because it topped the Anti-Inflation Board guidelines.

Daryl Anderson, spokesman for the seven-local joint negotiating committee, said the requested package was in the neighborhood of a 10½-to-11-per-cent increase.

Of this, he said, eight per cent concerned actual wages and the rest was made up of proposed improved vacations and a dental plan.

Where the union is concerned, the employers pitched a low curve recently with a package offer falling within the six per cent guideline.

The opening rounds of the major negotiations have taken on the baseball look because of the decision to hold them in a building at Lambrick's ball park complex. It is reported to be the most convenient site for the locals representing some 2,000 employees, and the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, bargaining arm of the municipalities and regional government.

"Actually, we're closer to the pool than anything else," a union official said after Monday's meeting. "Maybe we'll all be in over our heads before we're through."

An eighth CUPE local, representing 200 Victoria municipal inside workers, chose earlier to face GVLRA on its own. It has already opened negotiations, but according to reports Monday it will have to wait until the other seven locals have had their turn at bat.

The inside workers have chosen to stay within the guidelines and favor binding arbitration over the strike-lockout route.

Sources from other locals say the fringe benefits sought by the inside workers acually take their requested package over the guideline level.

They also see the local's individual thrust as fruitless, claiming the local obviously end up with the same settlement as the majority.

Locals involved in the joint bargaining represent city outside workers, Esquimalt, Saanich and Oak Bay inside and outside workers, Capital Region workers, and Greater Victoria School Board inside and outside workers.

The last contract talks plunged the area into a three-month strike-lockout in 1975 that saw an interruption in garbage collection and various other services.

In connection with the current demands, Anderson said the dental plan, if granted, would be a new feature. The union wants it to be completely financed by the employers.

The requested vacation improvement would add an extra day after five years' service and one day more after each succeeding year. It would mean that the three weeks or 15 days now granted after five years would become 16 days. This would stretch to five weeks after 15 years.

Anderson said the vacation plan sought was the same one now enjoyed by provincial government employees.

'Leisurely' boom in Saanich

Recreation facilities in Saanich are enjoying a boom, according to recreation administrator William Young.

Revenues at Cedar Hill Community Centre in January exceeded $15,000, compared with $9,000 for the same period last year, he told Tuesday night's park and recreation committee meeting.

He attributed the general upswing to successful displays at shopping centres and top-notch leaders for arts, music, drama and sports activities.

Young said 1,100 persons were registered in 132 classes at Cedar Hill. In bridge classes more than 100 persons registered, more than double the number expected.

The recreation program at Lochside school attracted 114 from a school population of 200, he reported.

Auditoriums at Cedar Hill and Gordon Head recreation centre were fully booked for the rest of the year, Young added.

Cedar Hill Golf Club is also reporting a brisk business in memberships with 650 already acquired.

Vice-chiefs on way out at 13 schools

The Greater Victoria School Board's budget committee, by a 5-4 margin, voted Monday to do away with the office of vice-principal in 13 smaller district schools.

The decision means a saving to the district of $13,432 in wages, plus fringe benefits, information officer Bill Stavdal said Tuesday.

There are 53 vice-principals in the district, he said.

Elementary schools with fewer than 400 pupils will have a principal and a "first assistant, curriculum co-ordinator, or other office on a lower pay scale than vice-principal," Stavdal said.

$35 less — please

Although tourism was a bust last year, the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau is requesting $35 less this year from Saanich. Council's finance committee was told Tuesday the request this year was for $2,645.

Quitting cash queried

Terri Durshel, who quit her $1,600-a-month job as Victoria's acting city clerk Monday, has been told she'll get $3,273 worth of accumulated sick leave, but union officials claim she's entitled to $5,237.

To obtain the additional money for Mrs. Durshel, city hall's inside union will go to the Labor Relations Board, charging the city with violation of negotiated agreement.

Rick Doyle, president of Local 388 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said Tuesday the union would ask the LRB for an officer's ruling.

He said according to the contract, employees are entitled to collect accumulated sick leave on the basis of "current basic pay."

Doyle said the union also had instructed a lawyer to find out whether sex discrimination might have been involved in the events that led to Mrs. Durshel's resignation.

The $3,273 sum Mrs. Durshel is to receive for accumulated sick leave is based on her salary as a clerk 2. However, last Dec. 1 her salary was increased from $975 to $1,600.

The union says that according to her last basic salary, Mrs. Durshel should receive $5,237.

Burglary yielded 'enemies list'—MP

OTTAWA (CP) — Information used to compile a 1971 government "blacklist" was obtained illegally in a burglary during a fire, a Conservative MP charged in the Commons Wednesday.

Frank Oberle (PC — Prince George-Peace River) made the mysterious allegation when asking Prime Minister Trudeau for precise details on the RCMP or other security force investigation behind the list.

He did not elaborate on his charge.

The 1971 list and a letter written by Jean Pierre Goyer, solicitor-general contained the names of 21 public servants described as members of the new left with subversive intentions. It was circulated among members of the cabinet.

Trudeau told Oberle that he does not know how the information on the 21 was gathered and said he never asks the RCMP for such details.

Outside the Commons Oberle told reporters he has obtained information showing that the list was compiled on the basis of "documents selectively stolen from files in the office of a company in Toronto during a fire."

Oberle would not disclose any other details of the incident, saying he would do so today in the Commons if the government refuses to either supply the details or provide an inquiry or other forum "so I can tell what I know."

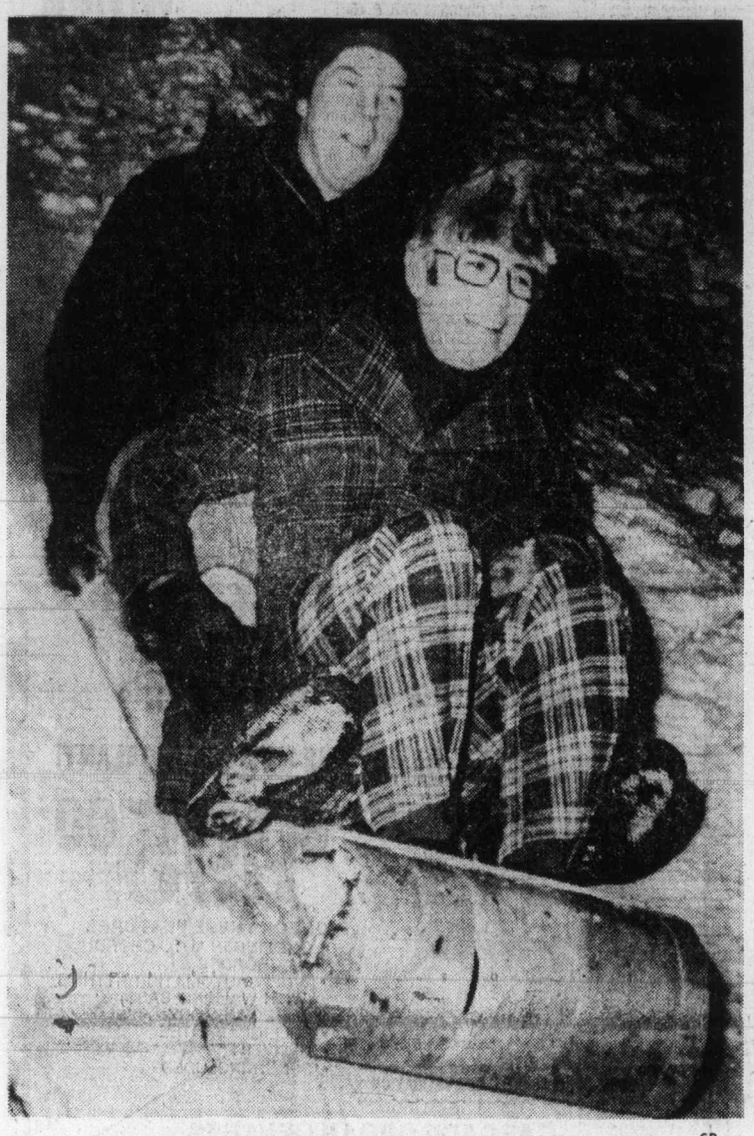

"I have information which makes me very nervous about the thing," said the MP who first divulged the list without the names, and Goyer letter, in the Commons last week.

Oberle said he told Solicitor-General Francis Fox everything he knew about the list a

Blacklist of employees denied

Bennett calls probe into ministry leak

Premier Bennett has ordered an internal probe of the environment ministry by the attorney-general to try to find a leak of confidential documents, including what has been called a list of enemies of the Social Credit government.

Bennett made the announcement shortly before the 6 p.m. adjournment of the Legislature Wednesday.

Before announcing the investigation, Bennett said he rejected allegations made earlier by William King (NDP - Revelstoke-Slocan) regarding a black list of government employees.

He said King had tabled a series of unrelated documents to "make a case which doesn't exist." Of far greater concern, Bennett said, was the fact that the confidential documents had found their way into New Democrats' hands from Environment Minister James Nielsen's office.

Scott Wallace (PC-Oak Bay) said he didn't object to the investigation but asked the premier to consider placing it under the jurisdiction of an all-party committee so that "justice can appear to be done" as well as being done. Bennett made no response.

Is it a blacklist comprised of "enemies" of the government? Or is it a letter from an over-concerned civil servant expressing personal opinions on other staff members?

King says it's the former. Bennett says it's the latter.

Whatever it is, it was tabled in the Legislature by King along with a statement charging that the premier and the environment minister were being at least evasive in answering questions.

The "blacklist" was first mentioned Tuesday by King and opposition leader David Barrett. Both wanted to know if the premier was aware that such a list had been forwarded from his office to the office of Nielsen.

Bennett said he was unaware of such a list and that, as far as he was concerned, no blacklist existed in government circles. Nielsen said he'd never received such a list.

King Wednesday asked leave of the house to make a formal statement and "table certain documents."

The documents turned out to be:

- A personal and confidential memorandum to Nielsen from Dan Campbell, head of inter-governmental affairs, outlining the need for reducing a "top-heavy bureaucracy."
- Two management charts outlining the management structure in the land management branch of the environment ministry.
- A list of order-in-council appointments made while the NDP was in power and covering appointments of aides to all political parties.
- A hand-written letter addressed to "Dan" and signed by Klaus Ohlemann.

The letter, dated Dec. 23, 1975 (the day after the Social Credit cabinet was sworn in)

Chapel users face wrath

OTTAWA (CP) — Dissident Roman Catholic priests have been warned they will be punished if they continue to celebrate mass in a separate Ottawa chapel.

The warning came in a recent letter to priests signed by Archbishop Joseph Aurele Plourde, who said the rebels' chapel was built without his consent.

"It goes without saying that the celebration of the mass and liturgical offices are not authorized," the letter states.

The $20,000 chapel, constructed by a 55-year-old postal worker, Maurice St. Jean, is the site of a revolt by conservative Catholics who celebrate the Tridentine Latin mass, banned by the church following the Vatican II reforms of the 1960s.

The letter, dated Jan. 17, says priests using the chapel face "appropriate action" by the archbishop, including removal of their powers in the diocese.

In a separate message which priests were instructed to deliver to their congregations Sunday, the archbishop urged his followers to prove they supported the church by avoiding the rebel chapel.

In response to the archbishop's letters, St. Jean said: "Great. The more publicity he's going to give us, the better."

Less than 100 people usually turn out for the masses, and the archbishop's reaction "shows how much they're afraid of us," says the father of 13 children.

Hefty cash jump for top servants

Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy admitted Wednesday that senior civil servants could take up to 30 per cent of a retroactive 51 per cent pay hike in cash over a three-year period.

The increase, over three years ending April 1 this year, is for some 400 non-unionized civil servants, at the deputy minister and associate deputy minister levels.

In a statement "in reference to erroneous information given through the media," Mrs. McCarthy confirmed, however, that senior civil servants would get up to $20,000 in benefits under the agreement.

She said the New Democratic government, having signed "very generous" contracts with the unionized civil servants, agreed to a study which resulted in the "acceptance and implementation" of the raises.

Mrs. McCarthy said the mandarins, for giving up the benefits of collective bargaining, security, overtime pay and the 35-hour civil service week, deserved the compensation.

"No more than 10 per cent can be taken in cash. The rest may be used to buy extra vacation time (within limits), voluntary superannuation, education leave, pre-retirement leave, or pay technical or trade organization fees."

Mrs. McCarthy went on to say that a second level, some 800 department heads and the like, who had given up union security, the right to refuse overtime and the right to grievance, won 11 per cent a year.

A third group of about 130 employees, exempt from union membership because of the confidential nature of their work, were awarded "optional" benefits equal to 3 per cent of their pay.

Mrs. McCarthy confirmed the federal Anti-Inflation Board approved the raises because it "accepted that a prior commitment has been established" for the agreement.

Levesque rejects talks during police slowdown

MONTREAL (UPI) — The robbery and murder rate bulged in the wake of a metropolitan police slowdown to protest a lack of contract talks but Quebec Premier Rene Levesque Wednesday refused to negotiate "while police are holding a gun to our heads."

Earlier Wednesday the policemen had defied their union leaders and refused to end a work slowdown that has prompted a wave of armed robberies throughout the city including 20 bank heists. Police were also investigating five murders.

"We're so damned fed up with promises that there's no way we're going to end this action until we get a contract," said a union stewart for one police station.

Hydro cutbacks aimed at commercial sector

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Hydro officials have met with federal and provincial government building operators, and now are meeting with commercial users in an effort to urge a cutback in lighting and a saving of energy.

"Cutting back of illumination in the commercial sector is going to be the next step (in energy conservation), because it is going to pay them," says Rejean Racine, manager of energy use and engineering for Hydro.

"People are going to start turning lights off because they'll find they can't afford them."

Racine's comments are aimed equally at the large buildings with lights blazing on sometimes empty offices and storekeepers who advertise their wares at night in floodlit display windows.

He notes that in Ontario the drain on electrical energy is so acute that government action is being threatened against commercial users who waste electricity by leaving lights on.

In B.C. there still is enough energy for essential requirements but, with 60 per cent of the total electrical energy consumption of a large office building being used for lighting, a great saving can be made, says Racine.

He says the 21-storey Hydro building in downtown Vancouver has been attempting to conserve on lighting and now a committee has been set up to look into further savings by such methods as turning out more lights earlier and providing high-intensity lighting only in certain offices where it is required.

Lottery dreams breeding 'generation of gamblers'

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto psychiatrist says government-run lotteries have dangerous psychological aspects and are breeding a generation of gamblers.

Dr. Jerry Cooper, head of the psychiatric unit of York-Finch General Hospital, said in a recent interview the get-rich-quick appeal of the lottery is a sign of crumbling values in a society that has lost faith in the old-fashioned work ethic.

People no longer believe that "hard work, sacrifice and the sweat of the brow will gain them some security," he said.

Many who buy $5 to $10 lottery tickets for a chance at up to $1 million in tax-free prize money actually believe they are going to win despite odds which lottery officials admit are astronomical, Cooper said.

It is childish and immature to think that playing lottery games is the way to get ahead, he said.

"They'd have a better chance if they went down to Las Vegas and started shooting craps," he added.

Cooper said Canadian lotteries flourish on people's false expectations, just as mobsters in large U.S. cities exploit the dreams of the ghetto poor with the illegal numbers racket.

He said Canadian provincial and national lotteries appeal mainly to middle-income wage earners who see them as their only chance to get out from under mortgages and government-controlled wages.

Since the Olympic Lottery, now called Loto-Canada, had its first draw in April, 1974, Canadians have spent more than $700 million on lottery tickets in the major national and provincial lotteries.

Tests confirm PCB spill reached harbor

By STEPHEN HUME
Colonist Reporter

A transformer explosion at the Canadian Cellulose mill near Prince Rupert 12 days ago released the toxic chemical polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) into Porpoise Harbor, federal pollution officials confirmed Wednesday.

And the federal fisheries department on Friday advised persons not to eat shellfish taken from Porpoise Harbor because of their possible contamination.

Crabs taken from about 150 yards to five miles away from the spill site were given "a clean bill of health" by the B.C. agriculture laboratory in Vancouver, where water, sediment, and shellfish samples were sent last week for tests, a federal pollution spokesman said Wednesday.

He stressed that tests on water and sediment from the harbor were only preliminary, and further tests would be required to determine concentrations of the chemical.

He said it was certain that PCB escaped from the drainage system of the CanCel mill into the harbor, but exactly how much escaped is not known.

As of Wednesday, there were no test results on crabs picked up within 100 yards of the spill site, he said.

Materials at the mill which may have come into contact with the chemical have been placed in steel drums and sealed for future disposal. There are about 100 drums of "potentially contaminated" debris, the spokesman said.

PCB can be destroyed only if it is burned at temperatures exceeding 2,500 degrees fahrenheit.

A spokesman for the provincial environment ministry said Wednesday that 25 gallons of PCB, trapped in a sump at the mill, were "placed in a safe container until it can be disposed of in a furnace hot enough to destroy it."

There are several sumps, which act as catchers, connected to a network of sewer lines at the mill.

A CanCel transformer released about 180 gallons of PCB when it overheated and exploded. About 120 gallons were contained on the roof of the mill while the rest escaped through a roof drain and into the network of sewers which discharge into the harbor.

Environmentalist Gary Gallon of SPEC said in a telephone interview from Vancouver last week that effects of PCB are usually not immediate.

He said the danger to humans comes when the chemical has dispersed itself into the food chain.

He said PCB does not cause outright death, but may cause cancer over a long period of time.

Manufacture of PCB in the U.S. will be outlawed on Jan. 1, 1979. The oily liquid is used as an insulator in electrical equipment such as transformers because it is difficult to ignite.

Everything goes at Alkazar Mansion

During the next two weeks, a Victoria salvage company will remove the Alkazar Mansion's bevelled door, stained-glass windows, hall tiles, banisters, carpets, plumbing fixtures, floorboards and ornaments. Then a demolition company will finish the job by bulldozing the empty structure to the ground.

Ornate door, above, is expected to fetch $3,500 as salvage. The 1913-14 four-storey mansion on Fairfield Road is being guarded against looters. Reeson and Pinch Homes Ltd., owner of the Alkazar, decided to tear building down rather than upgrade safety standards.

Labor council prodded over unemployment

By DON COLLINS
Colonist Reporter

The Victoria Labor Council executive was prodded into action Wednesday night after hearing a grim story of Victoria's growing unemployment.

It was also mildly chided by one delegate for failure to make itself heard on the matter before now.

Among other things, the council was told:

- The listed unemployment rate of 10 per cent was probably really "15 per cent or better;"
- The unemployment rate for youth stands somewhere between 25 and 30 per cent;
- About 70 per cent of shipyard workers are off the job;
- Membership in the Victoria local of the International Woodworkers of America has shrunk from a peak of 2,200 to about 1,400.

Ernie Knott, an IWA delegate, won unanimous support for his motion that the executive study the economic problem and come up with a program for organizing the unemployed.

Noting that the sagging economy had already brought calls for help from Mayor Michael Young, Ald. Murray Glazier and Charles Barber (NDP—Victoria), Knott said:

"In fact, everyone but the labor movement is speaking up. This is very significant."

He described as a "criminal situation" the fact that young people were sleeping outside Canada Manpower in midwinter so they could be first in line to find jobs. He called attention to a Colonist photo of two such men.

Knott urged the council to act while the B.C. Legislature was still in session.

He thought the provincial government's various actions had had a disastrous effect on the economy.

"No one other organization has had a worse effect on this community than the present government," he said.

The plight of the shipyards was brought up at another point during the meeting by Dave Higgins of the Boilermakers, who said only 200 of the normal Yarrows work force of 700 remained on the job. Thirteen unions are affected.

Old-timers who have worked at the shipyards since the 1940s say the unemployment picture there is the worst they can remember.

On Higgins' urging, the labor council decided to approach the federal cabinet for badly needed help for the shipyards. The case will be made for the need to favor the West Coast with some of the ship repair work that generally goes to eastern Canadian yards.

Delegates demand TV action

Delegates stacked a Victoria Labor Council meeting Wednesday night and backed their executive into a corner on the question of television programming.

As a result, the executive will have to begin planning a series of labor education programs for Channel 10—a proposal it tabled after council delegates had approved it at a Jan. 19 meeting.

The executive's action was questioned by more than one delegate who thought it imperative that the programming begin as a means of rubbing some of the tarnish off labor's image.

"The union hierarchy has become something other than our servants," carpenters' delegate Larry Tickner complained. "It is more in bed with the capitalist class, and I think they're afraid of us."

Second vice-president Stan Darlington said there had been some fear that if proper precautions weren't taken with such programming, the wrong people could give the wrong impressions of labor. He referred mainly to what might happen if less-than-astute labor people were pinned down by interviewers, or left coping with open-line callers.

Secretary Larry Ryan said in an interview that the delegates had simply approved the program in principle and referred it to the newly-elected executive for consideration.

Daryl Anderson of the Canadian Union of Public Employees reflected the views of other delegates when he asked: "Is there any way our image can get any lower?"

The IWA's Jack Groves, a former labor council president, said he didn't think he executive had the right to take the action it did.

While there were denials that the meeting had been stacked, there were far more delegates present than usual. There was an especially big showing from the B.C. Govermenit Employees' Union. Included in this group was Norm Richards, president of the 35,000-member BCGEU, who seldom attends such meetings.

Inside workers 'unhindered' in single talks

Rick Doyle denied Monday that Victoria's inside workers would be hindered by their decision to go it alone in core municipality and Capital Region negotiations.

The employers "intend to treat us exactly in the same manner as the other group," said Doyle, who is president of the 200-member city inside workers' local of the Canadian Union of Public Employees.

He was responding to a claim from union sources that the Doyle local would be dealt to the bottom of the deck while the Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association bargained with the joint negotiating committee of the other seven CUPE locals involved.

Sources had said it was "obvious" the single local would simply pick up any settlement won by the major group.

They left the impression that the inside workers had made a serious mistake in separating from the bulk of the 2,000 employees involved and opting for binding arbitration in place of strike or lockout procedure.

Doyle said the inside workers are asking for a package within the six per cent Anti-Inflation Board guidelines. The other locals estimate their requested package at 10½ to 11 per cent.

"I think we're far closer to a settlement than they are," Doyle said in reference to the group of seven.

Negotiations have actually only got under way, but Doyle's optimism appeared to be based on his local's low-keyed demands. He said Carl Anshelm, chief GVLRA negotiator, had promised a second meeting with his local either Friday or Monday. He will be meeting Thursday with the larger group, which presented him with its counter proposal Tuesday.

The seven locals are asking for an eight per cent increase in wages, as well as a dental plan and vacation improvements they say would tack another 2½ to three per cent onto the costs.

Doyle said the major hurdle for his local may be the difference of opinion over length of contract. His local wants a one-year agreement, but GVLRA is proposing that it last two years with a six per cent hike in the first year and four per cent in the second. Both are AIB guideline figures.

"If the guidelines should be lifted this year we've been told we could re-negotiate next year's agreement, but only on the matter of wages," he said. "If that's the case we would want to be able to re-negotiate any cost items we asked for and didn't get this year."

Port Renfrew going alone?

Petition pushing end to BCFP paternalism

By NANCY BROWN
Colonist Reporter

With paternalism no longer in vogue, people want a degree of control over their lives, and the Capital Regional Board is about to help some people accomplish that.

Repreesentatives will visit Port Renfrew next Thursday and ask people to sign a petition that would turn the place into a "specified area" under the Municipal Act, instead of a company town.

This would mean the residents would acquire, operate and maintain the existing water supply system and sewage disposal system, the existing fire protection facilities and power for street lighting.

Members of the region's local works and services committee were told Wednesday that a tax levy of 37.5 mills would be necessary to cover costs, and residents would also pay school taxes of 42 mills.

The area would be administered by a commission.

The board's executive director, Dennis Young, said this would mean an average total of $300 annually for Port Renfrew homeowners. They would be able to deduct the $280 annual homeowner grant from that amount.

View Royal director Pat Massy wanted to know what would happen if residents rejected the petition.

"I suppose B.C. Forest Products would be forced to continue its support," regional engineer Norman Howard said.

Young said he expected the petition to succeed.

"There is a trend in all company towns to transfer responsibility to residents so that they have a degree of self-determination," Young said. "The paternalistic attitude of company town operations is dying out."

There are 90 housing lots in the area specified in the petition, some of them still owned by B.C. Forest Products.

To be valid, the petition would have to be signed by two-thirds of the lot owners who collectively own at least half of the assessed land value of the area.

Sooke director Charles Perkins said he had been asked that representatives take the petition to a meeting in Port Renfrew next Thursday.

At that time, it was decided, residents would also be told what the total tax would be on individual lots.

Government wins again

The second non-confidence motion in the provincial government was defeated Wednesday night by 26-16 in the 55-member B.C. Legislature.

Scott Wallace (PC-Oak Bay) voted with the New Democratic Party on the motion, claiming that the people of B.C. had no confidence in the $3.83 billion budget brought down by Finance Minister Evan Wolfe.

Gordon Gibson (L-North Vancouver-Capilano) was not present when the vote was taken.

10-year-old clerk victim of holdup

At 10 years of age, little Henry Lem may hold the distinction of being one of Victoria's youngest holdup victims.

Henry was minding his parents' store, the L and N Market at 530 Craigflower Wednesday night, when a man approached the till, reached into his pocket as if clutching a gun, and demanded the money.

"He said get the money out fast," said Henry, who claimed he saw what appeared to be the handle of a "silver gun" sticking out of the man's pocket.

The youngster didn't waste any time obeying. He said he handed over about $290.

He described the bandit as young and said he was wearing a sweater with Indian design. He escaped on foot.

Was Henry badly frightened by his experience?

"Yeah, I guess so."

Was there anyone else in the store at the time?

"Yeah, my sister."

What was she doing?

"Reading comic books."

The holdup was the 14th in Greater Victoria so far this year.

Area's Grade 4s scored well in reading tests

Grade 4 pupils in the Greater Victoria school district generally did well on provincial reading tests, although some aspects need strengthening, both in the classroom and the test, a committee of trustees, parents and educators has concluded.

The committee examined the test questions and estimated how well they thought Grade 4 students should do in them, and then compared their estimates with the actual performance of the pupils.

The test was given to all Grade 4 pupils in the province in January, 1976, and tested word identification skills and comprehension of prose, and "functional materials" such as road maps and signs.

Word-identification skills were generally higher than the committee anticipated, but the committee concluded that comprehension was only "satisfactory," although both were above the provincial average.

They recommended that teachers be encouraged to develop questioning techniques to improve comprehension of prose.

Some of the test questions were ambiguous, and could have resulted in wrong answers, the committee said. It also recommended that international standard road signs be used on the tests, since Canada had accepted these standards.

Steps should be taken to acquaint district teachers with the weaknesses revealed by the test, to the extent that individual school results should be made available to principals and staff, the committee recommended.

But trustee Dr. Hal Knight, who was on the committee, told other trustees at a board meeting Wednesday that the education ministry was quite reluctant to release the results on a school-by-school basis, for fear that they might be used to compare schools.

Board names adviser

The post of legal and financial affairs adviser to the school superintendent and board has been created by the Greater Victoria School Board.

Ernest Shaw, currently secretary-treasurer for the school board, has been named to the post, created on the recommendation of district superintendent Allan Stables. His salary will stay the same.

Shaw will assist the board and superintendent on legal and financial affairs, and will review and draft the board's policies and bylaws.

Board chairman Susan Brice said the board had been criticized in the past for not having its policies up to date, but no one in the administration had had time to look into legal and financial policies.

The board will advertise for a secretary-treasurer to replace Shaw.

The board could be criticized for increasing the size of its administration at this time, Mrs. Brice admitted.

Ruth Carson with model and map of Clover Point outfall

Sewage expert is 15

Studies show treatment a future must

By PAUL DE GROOT
Colonist Reporter

She is careful to say she doesn't want to give any opinions about it, but Ruth Carson is one of the best informed 15-year-olds about the Clover Point sewer.

The Oak Bay Junior High school 10th-grader recently entered the schools' science fair with a model of the proposed sewer outfall for Clover Point, and a large map with overlays showing currents and dispersion patterns.

She also wrote a lengthy report on sewage disposal and treatment using information gleaned from interviews with officials involved.

"It was harder than usual to get information, because I couldn't go to the library and find it," she said.

AS A RESULT of her project, she now believes that a treatment plant will be necessary in the future, and that work should proceed on the outfall quickly.

Did she learn anything about politics while doing the project?

She doesn't say. "I just tried to look at the facts."

But her father is a Victoria alderman (Frank Carson), and it's probably good politics that she doesn't express an opinion.

OTHER PROJECTS at the science fair included a study of the properties of highly electro-positive elements, complete with a small sealed lab in which the researcher works using built-in gloves: a model of a tidal generating plant; a collection of herbs of medicinal value, a Tesla coil which generates 1.2 million volts, and a study of light refraction, using a laser.

A study of learning, using a maze, showed that the average 15-year-old male found his way through in 42.2 seconds, and that the average adult male took 49.6 seconds. Take that, Dad.

Some of the projects will be entered in the Vancouver Island science fair at Hillside mall March 17-19. Regional winners will be eligible to enter the national science fair at the University of Victoria May 15-21.

Two-mill hike Lum's hope

Saanich Mayor Ed Lum said Tuesday he was hopeful the tax rate increase this year could be held to two mills.

"At present it looks like a small hike," he said.

Lum also predicted that when final figures were released next week the 1976 surplus would be about $300,000 — about one and a half mills.
